Calls Crops Control Suicide Step.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] today characterized as "national suicide" the scarcity economics of the administration's farm dictatorship bill, which, he said, proposes to restrict production while our foreign markets are being taken away by other countries and millions of Americans haven't sufficient food to eat.

The veteran Idaho liberal also declared, in his senate speech, that the farm bill would subject every individual farmer to an unconstitutional system of dictatorship which would follow for industry and labor. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Senator Borah said, already has suggested in his annual report that the regimentation of agriculture was only the first step, and that the control of industry and labor would follow.

House Rejects Amendments.

While the senate debate continued, the house rejected two amendments intended to modify the referenda required by the terms of the bill to impose compulsory control marketing quotas for the basic commodities of cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, and rice.

Representative Gerald Boileau [Radical, Wis.] sought to eliminate the requirement that compulsory marketing quotas be approved by two-thirds of the voting farmers. He argued that this scheme was not democratic, since a minority of one-third could set aside the will of a majority, and that the ends of "democracy" would be served by giving Secretary Wallace power to issue decrees without approval by the farmers. This proposal was roared down on a voice vote.

Two-thirds Vote Urged.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] sought to make the referenda more democratic by providing that no quota should become effective unless approved by two-thirds of the farmers who would be subject to it.

"In some instances," he said, "the manner in which other referenda have been conducted has been an invitation to deception, coercion, and fraud. Elections are conducted under this section by those who presumably favor the establishment of a quota. Their jobs depend upon the establishment of a quota. They are, therefore, personally and directly interested in the adoption of a quota."

Mr. Hoffman's amendment also was roared down on a voice vote.

Warns of Living Cost Rise.

Representative Bruce Barton [R., N. Y.], in his first house floor speech since election, warned that the farm bill would raise living costs and that there would be protests from the cities.

"The idea seems to be that the nation has lost its backbone, or needs no backbone," he continued. "This, I think, is an unsound assumption. The middle class is long suffering and slow to anger, but it's beginning now to stir.

"I think my Democratic colleagues from New York City will hear a murmuring when they go back to the cotton fields of Brooklyn, the rolling wheat fields of Manhattan, the warm tobacco fields of Harlem, and the sunny rice fields of the Bronx. They will hear voices asking:

"'Why should our cost of living be pushed always higher and higher? Why are we always the ones elected to foot the bill?'"

Challenges Constitutionality.

Senator Borah, who is recognized as the foremost constitutional authority in the senate, was the first to raise a serious challenge of the constitutionality of the farm scheme.

"This bill, if enacted, would accomplish two things," he said.

"First, it would place the American farmer under complete burocratic control. Second, the bill would bring about a reduction of crops when millions of our people are hungry and in need.

"I pause to ask, by what authority, under what provision of the constitution, under what constitutional principle of law, may the secretary of agriculture, in advance of production of the crop, in advance of its moving toward interstate commerce channels, say how much wheat or

Family Sees Lemont Aviator Fall.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Two racing aviators, one flying close behind the other at 250 miles an hour, crashed to their deaths before thousands of spectators today at the same turn in the Miami All-American air meet.

The unusual accident was attributed to strange atmospheric conditions which the six other contestants in the race said had tossed their ships about. Strong winds and heavy downdraft at several places on the five mile course were factors in the tragedy.

Lemont Pilot Victim.

The victims were Rudy Kling of Lemont, Ill., and Frank Haines of Detroit, Mich. Kling, 29 years old, was the garage owner who surprised veterans at the National Air races in Cleveland last September when he walked off with $13,500 in prize money. He flew in one race at an average speed of 256.910 miles per hour for 200 miles.

Crash After First Lap.

The double tragedy occurred within a few moments after the ships had taken off. Starting from pylon No. 1 on the field in front of the grandstand, the two planes had just turned the second pylon after completing the first lap.

Suddenly Kling's low winged monoplane dived toward the ground as the pilot tried to straighten it out after the turn. Haines' racer, flying directly in back of Kling, appeared to be pulled down at the same fatal place.

Before the gaze of the spectators, in a grandstand less than half a mile away, the two ships plowed into the earth at their dizzy speed. They came to rest, pitiful masses of wreckage, a short distance apart.

Blame Unusual Air Drafts.

It appeared to witnesses that some of the racing ships were almost out of control from their takeoff because of unusual atmospheric conditions. Contestants said they encountered extremely rough air periodically throughout the race. They attributed the double accident to an unusual and unexplained downrush of air.

"I've raced here five times before and I've flown all around this part of the country," said Rusty Heard, a contestant whose ship was flying near the ill fated planes, "but I never before experienced anything like the pull on my plane just before Kling and Haines went down."

T. C. Hanson, Miami city air director and in charge of the airport, said it was his belief an unusual fall of air coupled with the air wash from the propellers caused the accidents.

Air Wash Engulfs Haines' Ship.

"The first plane caught in a downdraft of air in the stiff wind that was blowing at the time," Hanson explained. "The second plane then was caught in the air wash of the preceding plane's propeller and was forced down at the same point."

There was speculation as to wheth-

Dr. John J. B. Morgan, child psychologist and authority on behaviorism, was accused yesterday by an angry Evanston mother of choking and kicking her son of 10 years. A warant charging assault and battery was served. Dr. Morgan was released on his own recognizance and will come before Judge Harry H. Porter on Dec. 21 for trial.

Prof. J. J. B. Morgan.

The mother is Mrs. Faith Sherrie, 1006 Main street, Evanston, who is the wife of a fireman at the city pumping station. Dr. Morgan is associate professor of psychology at Northwestern university. He frequently has advised parents to leave their children alone; that the model child too often is a colorless citizen. He is author of the work, "Psychology of the Unadjusted Child."

What Happened on Nov. 29.

There was nothing colorless about Dr. Morgan's actions on Nov. 29, Mrs. Sherrie told officials. She said she and her son, Donald, were walking down the 700 block of Main street that afternoon and that she stopped to visit with a neighbor. She said Donald busied himself rolling snowballs along the parkway between the sidewalk and the curb. Mrs. Sherrie said of course Donald did not throw the snowballs at the doctor.

But whether Donald threw any snowballs or not, the car of Dr. Morgan stopped some 75 feet down the street and the authority on how to treat babies got out. Mrs. Sherrie said he strode up to Donald from behind, seized the boy by the scruff of the neck and kicked his pants with repeated earnestness.

No Response at Home.

She said she remonstrated with the doctor, but he walked away. She followed him into a store and protested again. She said he spoke harshly to her and went out. She followed him to the car, took the license number, traced it, and had the professor arrested.

One of Dr. Morgan's most recent exploits was the invention of a sleep machine which puts 60 per cent of the most persistent insomniacs into the arms of Morpheus. Last night neither his phone nor doorbell would bring response and it was suspected he may have been using his machine.

However, Dr. Morgan told Sergt. Arthur Wharton, who served the warant, that he remembered the incident. He said he did not strike the child, but only admonished him.

FOX LAKE PRESIDENT SMILES AGAIN—HE'LL BE BRIDEGROOM SOON

Time probably eases all sorrows, but this wasn't the reason that Arthur J. Amundsen, who wept mightily last January when his wife, Rose, got a divorce, was all smiles yesterday when he stepped into the Waukegan courthouse once more.

Amundsen, village president of Fox Lake, had another reason. He's getting married again—at 57. His new wife will be Mrs. Norma Augusta Topal, who is 38 years old.

Amundsen revealed his plans when he applied for a marriage license at the county clerk's office. He described Mrs. Topal as a beautiful widow. She lives at 7632 North Marshfield avenue with her two children.

By terms of the divorce Mrs. Rose Amundsen was given the village executive's home to occupy. Told last night of his plan to remarry, she said she wished him lots of luck. And he can even have the house back—provided he buys the house.

FLYING SOLDIER LEAPS TO MAKE NAME FOR SELF

San Rafael, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Aroused from quiet slumber during a routine flight, Radio Operator John W. Taylor looked out of his cockpit to see a cornfield rushing up toward the army plane.

He leaped for his life, tugging at the rip cord of his 'chute. As he floated to safety Taylor looked around to see what had befallen the plane and its pilot. He saw the ship gliding into a normal landing at the army field. Pilot Paul C. Ashworth merely had gone into a steep bank to get ready for the landing.

Now the boys call him "Rip Cord" Taylor.

New Viceroy of Ethiopia Named General of Air Fleet

ROME, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Aviation circles disclosed today that the duke of Aosta had been appointed general of the air fleet, the highest rank in the Italian air force. The duke has been named viceroy of Ethiopia.

Russian Envoy Refuses Call Home to Death

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Unwilling to have his name added to the long list of soviet Russian diplomats who have not been heard from since they were recalled recently to Moscow, Alexandre Barmine, former Russian chargé d'affaires at Athens, disobeyed his recall order. He took a train to Paris instead of Moscow and then sent a letter of resignation to soviet authorities.

Barmine's recall followed allegations that he disapproved publicly of recent trials in Russia of persons seized as conspirators against Dictator Josef Stalin.

Protests "False" Charges.

In an appeal addressed to the central committee of the League for Rights of Man, Barmine, who served the soviet union as a diplomat for nineteen years, today made what he called "a most pressing, desperate plea" on "behalf of those recalled diplomats who, perhaps, are still alive." He protested against "ignominious, trumped-up, and false accusations."

Persons mentioned as victims in Barmine's letter include Nikolai Krestinsky, former assistant foreign commissar, and Russian ambassadors and ministers formerly stationed in Turkey, Finland, Latvia, Estonia, and Rumania. Some of these diplomats have been reported executed in unconfirmed dispatches from Sweden and other countries near Russia's borders.

Ready to Face Bullets.

"I am thinking of my friends who have remained at their posts in other European countries, in Asia and in America, and over whose heads hangs the constant menace of a similar fate," Barmine wrote. "One day they too must face the tragic choice either of returning home to certain death or, by their refusal, of risking a bullet from soviet secret foreign agents—the same agents who only recently dogged my every footstep.

"I realize the danger that I run by my present action. I have signed my own death warant and exposed myself to professional killers' bullets. I have sent my resignation to Moscow and, renouncing diplomatic immunity, place myself under the protection of French laws as a political refugee."

Gen. Nikolai Semenov, who is still the nominal Russian military attaché in Paris, was the most recent soviet diplomat called to Moscow "to report." He left Paris Tuesday.

Plan to Remain in America for Several Weeks

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, and his duchess will, after all, visit the United States. The date of their departure from Europe has been set as Jan. 10 or 12.

This information came to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today from a source behind the veil of secrecy which covers all proceedings in the ducal apartment in the Hotel Meurice here.

Duke Resigned to Publicity.

Inquiry into the best sources available confirmed the information. It was said the only factor which might change the Windsors' plans would be to reveal them, but THE TRIBUNE learned also that the duke now is resigned to publicity.

[The duke and duchess of Windsor had planned to visit the United States early in November for a study of labor conditions. They called off the trip at the last minute following criticism of their association with Charles E. Bedaux, inventor of a labor speedup system.]

The duke has the choice of a French, German, or Italian ship for his journey to America. A British ship is out of the question because of an agreement he has made with King George VI. of Great Britain and the British cabinet. The betting is that he will take a French ship and that it will alter its schedule in order to take the ducal party aboard. It will leave France first and go to England, then return to France before pushing out across the Atlantic.

Prepare to Go to Riviera.

The Windsors are expected to break camp in the Hotel Meurice on or about Dec. 20 and go to the Riviera. Paris is alive with rumors as to just where they will go. The best guess at the moment is that they will visit Mme. Andre Dubonnet—not Mme. Paul Dubonnet, the internationally famous Jean Nash—at a villa near Cannes.

After a short stop there they will return to Paris and then sail for America. After a few weeks in the United States, during which time there will be no official recognition of them, they will return to France. They intend to make Paris their permanent residence, it was said.

Discouraged by his failure to be a leader of people, it is said, Windsor is reconciled to the idea of being an idle rich man in the one country where, relatively, he will not have publicity over his hourly doings.

TEN LOSE LIVES IN HOSPITAL, 8 MORE STRICKEN

Disease Kills Half of Sufferers.

Hundreds of newly born babies have died in the last ten years of acute epidemic diarrhea, known as enteritis, a disease that has baffled medical science. It has taken ten lives in Chicago since Nov. 23 and last night threatened eight more with death at St. Elizabeth's hospital. Of the eight, four were described as desperately ill.

The disease, which strikes without warning, kills 50 per cent of its victims. Medical men have tried in vain to determine whether it is germ or virus that causes it. Except that death is swift, caused by a violent inflammation of the small intestines, almost nothing is known of this form of diarrhea.

Reveal Former Outbreaks.

The outbreak at St. Elizabeth's is not the first in Chicago, it was revealed yesterday through newspaper files and the medical profession. At Michael Reese hospital in 1930 there were 34 cases and 14 deaths. At St. Luke's in 1935 there were 20 cases and 10 deaths. Outbreaks at the County hospital and at the Cradle in Evanston took other lives.

In New York City, from September, 1934, through December, 1936, there were 16 outbreaks and a loss of 234 lives, according to the Journal of the American Medical association. In Toronto in 1933 nine of 15 stricken died. Teaneck, N. J., lost 11 of 20 cases. Seattle lost 14 of 23. In Buffalo eight of 18 stricken died, and in Edinburgh 11 of 41 died.

In the outbreak at St. Luke's in Chicago, grandsons of Charles Walgreen and James Simpson died. At that time an investigation was financed by Charles Walgreen Jr., father of the child, in an effort to conquer the disease.

Combine Resources in Fight.

In the present outbreak full resources of the County and other hospitals and the board of health have been available to researchers. Dr. Richard H. Jaffe, director of the pathological institute at the County hospital, performed autopsies on the last two babies to die at St. Elizabeth's.

The same infection was found in each, but in one of them there was another condition that medical authorities considered significant—marked changes in the brain that apparently had occurred just before death. This strengthens the theory that the diarrhea is caused by virus, which cannot be isolated and identified. Bacteriological infections are simpler to analyze and combat.

3 Weeks Seems Age Limit.

The little that has been learned about the disease since it first appeared has shown that it can be stopped only by absolute isolation of the patients. It also is known that if a child passes its 21st day without contracting diarrhea, it is comparatively safe, since no infant older than three weeks has been stricken.

The diarrhea outbreak at St. Elizabeth's began on Nov. 23, but was not recognized for what it was until four babies had died. On Thanksgiving day all the cases were isolated and the babies that had not been stricken were sent home. At the same time the hospital temporarily closed its nursery and refused to take further obstetrical cases.

Babies Returned from Home.

The deaths continued, three being recorded last Saturday. On that same day, two babies that had been sent home were returned, suffering with the disease. On Sunday four more were taken back.

As soon as the outbreak was recognized the hospital notified the board of health. Nurses and public health doctors were sent to investigate. The water supply, sewage, sterilizers, and even food formulas were inspected, but no clew as to what caused the appearance of the disease could be obtained, according to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health.

All babies who survived are under close observation in their homes, both by health department physicians and others from the staf of the hospital.

The eight babies at the hospital

Daniel Marshal Enoresser, 726 North May street.

Dominick Scaturro, 2038 Le Moyne street.

Palmer Carl Lionel, 2117 McLean avenue.

Doris Norma Miska, 940 North Damen avenue.

Edmund Serge Wozniak, 2043 North Leavitt street.

James Lesec, 9 days old, 3659 North Sawyer avenue; died Nov. 30.

Every possible precaution has been taken by the hospital, according to Dr. Bundesen.

"Their coöperation with the board of health has been magnificent," he said. "So far, there is no defense against the infection. It appears without warning and its rate of mortality is about 50 per cent. Only absolute isolation can stop it. Medical science is doing everything possible to identify it and formulate treatment for the infection."

Rev. Barrett Describes Fight.

The Rev. John W. Barrett, diocesan director of hospitals, told of some of the steps taken at St. Elizabeth's to combat the disease. He said:

"In regard to the unfortunate malady which has struck St. Elizabeth's hospital, I would like to say that this type of malady is not unique in the history of nurseries. There have been three or four similar instances about the country in the last three years. The hospital has called in a staf of experts, physicians and nurses and is doing everything possible to ascertain the causes.

"When the first death occurred the health department was immediately notified. The hospital staf has coöperated with the health officials. The nursery was closed immediately and no new cases were admitted.

"The cause of the deaths appears to be intestinal inflammation or enteritis, but the staf of experts have not been able to discover the cause. The nursery will remain closed until it has been ascertained."

St. Elizabeth's hospital was founded 50 years ago at its present site, 1433 North Claremont avenue, as a charitable institution. It is operated by the Sisters of the Poor Handmaiden, whose superior is Mother Adolphine.

SENDS A $10,000 JEWEL WINGING AWAY IN SPACE

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—What started out to be an advertising stunt—wherein 170 carrier pigeons were sent to stores and publishing houses announcing a special issue of a fashion magazine—had its perpetrators nearly frantic tonight. Somewhere in New York one of the birds was merrily winging its way with a 6¼ carat diamond worth $10,000 attached to its leg.

W. Bayard Okie Jr., executive of a Fifth avenue jewelry firm, thinking it would be a good joke, slipped the diamond into the capsule attached to the leg of the pigeon he received. He then released the pigeon and awaited a call from the magazine people. When the call did not come, he told of his plight and a search began for the bird.

LOOP PHYSICIAN GETS 3 YEARS AS DOPE PEDDLER

Convicted by a jury as a dope peddler, Dr. Leo Ginsberg, physician with offices at 209 South State street and 4750 Sheridan road, was sentenced yesterday to serve three years in Leavenworth penitentiary and to pay a $2,000 fine. Two sentences of three years each were made to run concurrently. Federal Judge John P. Barnes denied a motion for bail and Dr. Ginsberg was taken into custody to begin serving his term. A federal agent testified he bought ten grains of heroin from the physician.

ENTERITIS' SWIFT PROGRESS BALKS SEARCH FOR CURE

Short Lived Outbreaks Defy Analysis.

BY DR. IRVING S. CUTTER.
[Tribune Health Editor.]

Fortunately for the newly born, outbreaks of enteritis such as have occurred during the last ten days in Chicago are sporadic and short lived. This is unfortunate for science, however.

None of the outbreaks has lasted long enough for a thorough bacteriological and pathological analysis necessary to a satisfactory study of the infection. Bacteriological tests are made of the mouth, throat, nasal, and intestinal secretions and of the blood while the patient is living. Pathological tests are made after death.

Virus Thought to Be Cause.

At this stage, it is impossible to name any cause or group of causes for the disease. Many scientific observers, however, are convinced that this form of enteritis is caused by virus rather than bacteria.

There is this difference between bacteriological and virus disease: bacteria can be isolated and identified; they are visible. A virus is invisible to the human eye with the most powerful microscope and therefore cannot be identified except by its behavior. In the filtration tests it is sometimes found that the bacteria that remain in the filter could not have caused the disease. When this is the case we know that some virus is responsible and use that which has gone through the filter in preparing vaccines and antitoxins.

This is done by injecting the filtered matter into healthy animals and producing the disease in them in a mild form. It is from bacteria from animal secretions that the vaccines are made. Thus it is that a disease that is yet unidentified is sometimes treated and controlled by a vaccine that is not understood.

Balked by Enteritis.

This is true of yellow fever, measles, and smallpox. But with a type of enteritis similar to intestinal influenza, we have not been able to progress far enough to take even this preventive step.

The disease will continue to strike without warning and run its course until comprehensive study can be made. The hospital cases are the ones that will help science. There are undoubtedly many deaths from this cause occurring in homes. We never hear of these because the family does not want an autopsy and the matter ends with a death certificate that does not set forth clearly the nature of the fatal infection.

Parolee and His Brother Identified as Robbers

Robert Sigman, a paroled convict, and his brother, Bernard, 21 and 18 years old, colored, were identified last night by John Turner of 11340 South Laflin street, a colored mailman, as the bandits who held him and his wife prisoner for seven hours last Monday night while they robbed their home of money, clothes, and jewelry valued at $400.

PLAN COLLAPSES TO EXPAND CITY AIRPORT FIELD

Strike Snag on Terms for Additional Land.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly last night announced the collapse of the city's plan to acquire a tract of land from Raymond E. Herman, real estate broker, for the expansion of the Chicago municipal airport. The announcement was made after an hour's conference with Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], chairman of the city council subcommittee on aviation, and John R. O'Connor, appraiser for the subcommittee.

O'Connor for several days has been negotiating in behalf of the city with Ernest H. Lyons, secretary of the Chicago Real Estate board, and representative of Herman. Thursday O'Connor announced that Lyons had named a figure close enough to the city's offer to inspire definite hope of an early settlement.

Need 2¼ Acres of Tract.

Herman owns 105 acres north of the present airport. Two and a quarter acres of it were needed to complete a plan, whereby the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad would have been removed from their present site along the 59th street line through the center of the proposed mile square airport.

The railroad obtained the site by condemnation, but Herman retains reversionary rights; that is, it would revert to him if the road should ever give up the right of way. It would be necessary for Herman not only to sell the 2¼ acre strip but give up his reversionary rights to make the city's plan possible. It was on this point that the negotiations struck a snag.

High Price Stumbling Block.

"Mr. Herman," said the mayor, "has offered to sell his reversionary rights for $17,500, but wants to use this figure as a basis for negotiations on the price of the land. He has set a price so exorbitant that there is no use continuing."

Further, the mayor said, Herman has refused to submit the matter for arbitration. By standing on his reversionary rights he prevents the city from bringing condemnation proceedings.

"The city is willing to be liberal," Mayor Kelly added, "but it is not going to be gypped. Even at the risk of bigger expense we will go ahead with other plans."

SHIP'S OFFICERS AID SURGEON TO OPERATE AT SEA

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—With ship's officers pressed into service as emergency assistants, Dr. H. P. Hamilton, surgeon of the liner President Hayes, performed a mastoid operation on a young seaman at sea. The youth had been transferred to the President Hayes from the British freighter Antonio in mid-Pacific. The operation failed to save the young seaman's life.

After the ships had met following a radio appeal from the freighter, Dr. Hamilton saw that the only hope for Arthur Duffy lay in a quick operation. He obtained permission from the freighter's captain. It would be an operation of the most delicate sort, requiring the services of several attendants, and Dr. Hamilton had only one nurse, Miss Carol Kelly.

He therefore called in Capt. Graham, Chief Engineer Richard Pedersen, and Chief Steward E. C. Pastori, instructed them and furnished them with masks and white gowns. Chief Engineer Pedersen administered the anesthetic while the others stood by to hand the surgeon his instruments.

DICTATOR BANS ALL POLITICAL PARTIES IN BRAZIL

Forbids Use of Uniforms and Private Armies.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Dictator Getulio Vargas, who seized power in a bloodless coup on Nov. 10, today ordered all political organizations in Brazil, including the Fascist Integralist party, to disband at once.

In his decree Vargas defined as political parties all groups registered with the now extinct Electoral courts. Violation of the decree carries a penalty of imprisonment of from two to four months and a fine of from $290 to $580.

Private Armies Forbidden.

Under Vargas' order all private militia and "organizations serving auxiliary ends of parties" were dissolved. It was this section of the decree which disbanded the Integralist party. The decree stipulated:

"Forbidden is the use of uniforms, banners, insignia, and other symbols of political parties and auxiliary organizations."

Another portion forbade creation of new parties pending a new electoral law, "even if they be purely legal persons ostensibly seeking other ends."

Under article IV. of the decree, however, the green shirted Integralist group could continue under another name.

"Political parties may continue existing as legal persons for cultural or beneficent ends or sports purposes," the decree said, "provided they do not do so under the same name under which they are registered as political parties."

Aimed at Integralists.

It was understood at the ministry of justice and interior that the decree was aimed directly at the Integralist movement. Salgado had dissolved the political section of his movement on Nov. 12, but preserved recreational and other features and retained leadership over his following, which he said numbered 1,000,000 men, women, and children.

The Integralists were permitted to agitate against communism throughout the presidential campaign, which was launched last May and which was extinguished with the promulgation of a state of war in the nation on Oct. 2. Now there will be no presidential election in January.

Today's decree raised the question of relative strength between the newly centralized government headed by Vargas and the Integralists and their sympathizers. Many of the latter hold positions of power.

Boy Chooses Mother

Urged to choose between his parents, Donald Amato, 7 years old, told Judge John J. Lupe yesterday in Superior court that he liked both of them but wanted to live with his mother now. This statement brought a tearful reunion between Donald and his mother, now Mrs. Helen Amato Kahn, 24 years old, of 2901 Augusta boulevard.

Mrs. Kahn appeared with her attorney, Harry X. Cole, to seek custody of Donald who had been with his father, Joseph Amato, 29 years old, 6541 West 16th street, since their divorce June 4, 1936. Mrs. Kahn said Amato violated terms of the custody agreement concerning Donald's education.

Judge Lupe ruled that each parent could have Donald for six months, beginning with the mother.

LOTS OF SWANK AS CHAUFFEURS PUT ON A BALL

The Chicago Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent association held its twenty-seventh annual dance and automobile exhibit in the Merry Garden ballroom at 3136 Sheffield avenue last night, and as usual it was a swanky affair.

Jewelry, fur coats, including mink, and other luxurious articles of apparel and decoration were plentiful. Many of the chauffeurs drove up in their employers' limousines. About 500 chauffeurs and their wives or sweethearts were present. For the first time, however, the rigid rule of formal attire was lifted, and many of the men came in civilian clothes. All the women, however, wore formal gowns.

Among the old time chauffeurs present were Fred Peterson, former chauffeur for the first Nelson Morris, who drove one of the first automobiles in Chicago, and Frederick Kaufmann, a chauffeur for 32 years. William Setterfield is president of the association.

Five men armed with machine guns and sawed-off shot guns stuck up a postal employé's automobile behind the Lockport post office yesterday, shot a postal clerk, stole nearly $25,000 of an industrial pay roll, and kidnaped Chief of Police Fred Lindner.

The money had been sent to Lockport by mail and was being transferred from Clerk John West's auto when a truck with five bandits dressed as mechanics drove up. Two of them seized the money and shot West in the leg when he resisted. The others seized Chief Lindner.

After firing twice at the chief as they drove northeast in State street, they freed him at 2d street, Lockport. The truck, stolen from a Chicago concern, later was found abandoned near highway 66, the Joliet road, near the Cook-Will county line.

COURT INQUIRES INTO HOME LIFE OF LOVE LIE GIRL

Juvenile court investigators said yesterday they had learned that Loretta Harynek, 15 years old, sweetheart of Warren Sinclair Stanley, who committed suicide Nov. 21, was absent from her home the week of Dec. 1, 1936, when she alleges she was married to Stanley.

Judge Frank H. Bicek, while refusing to disclose how the information was obtained, said the court was carrying on a twofold inquiry: to learn whether the girl's story of her marriage is authentic, and to determine from a study of her family life whether the court should act in her interest. The investigation will be completed in about three weeks, he said.

200 IN MAN HUNT SEEK SLAYER IN INDIANA SWAMP

Robber Kills Deputy and Wounds Two.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Heavily armed posses of citizens and peace officers kept an all night patrol on roads around a section of swamp and brush land five miles north of here tonight as they waited for daylight to renew their hunt for an outlaw who killed a deputy sherif and wounded two other men.

About 200 citizens, state policemen, and deputy sherifs, aided by a bloodhound, hunted the fugitive during the evening. They found no trace of him, although they felt certain he was surrounded in a district of rough territory several miles square.

Most of the citizens returned to their homes late tonight, but those deputized aided a score or more of police in keeping a guard line around the section under surveillance.

Posse Forms Quickly.

Farmers and townsfolk, armed with shotguns and hunting rifles, had assembled quickly when it was learned the killer, who is armed with at least one revolver, had fled to the swamp.

The man sought is Robert Shaw, 27 years old, who worked last summer on a farm about a mile from the swamp. He held up a grocery in Kendallville, Ind., fifteen miles south of here, last night and critically wounded a clerk, Earl Eulitt, 20 years old, who resisted him.

As Shaw fled from the store, after taking $59 while he menaced four clerks with his gun, Eulitt suddenly struck him on the head with a scale weight. The scalp wound inflicted led subsequently to Shaw's identification. Eulitt followed the dazed bandit outside the store and grappled with him. In the tussle Shaw shot the clerk in the abdomen and escaped.

Doctor Dresses Wound.

Shaw fled north to Lagrange, where he had his wound dressed by a doctor. Then he engaged Carl S. Stewart, a plumber, to drive him to the Walter Devenbaugh farm, four miles north of here, where he had been employed this summer.

When the Kendallville robbery and shooting became known here this morning, the plumber and doctor told about Shaw's head injury. Officers sped to the Devenbaugh farm. In the party were two state policemen, Sherif Irvin Cazier of Noble county and Deputy Sherif Harry Spice of Lagrange county.

Spice knocked on the door of the farm home and ordered Shaw to come out. Shaw did come out—shooting. His first shot fatally wounded Spice. Another bullet struck Cazier in his arm. The state policemen, who had been on the other side of the house, fired at Shaw. He shot back but escaped, apparently unharmed.

Farmers Note Injury.

Members of the Devenbaugh family said Shaw came to the farm late last night and asked to spend the night there. They noted his scalp wound but he said he had been injured in an automobile accident. They became suspicious of him this morning when he refused to leave the house and spent his time looking out the windows.

A general alarm was broadcast throughout the Indiana and Michigan area and posses formed to hunt the killer. Two Michigan state policemen were injured in an automobile accident near Cassopolis, Mich., while participating in the blockade of highways to prevent Shaw's flight in that direction.

Posse Hunts Killer

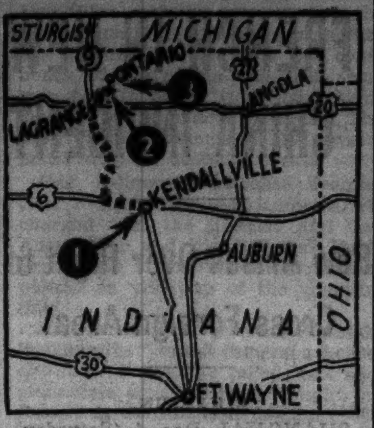
(Story in adjoining column.)



The Indiana territory involved in the search for Robert Shaw, bandit. No. 1—Kendallville, where Shaw shot grocery clerk in robbery. He then fled to Lagrange, 15 miles northwest, and on to the farm of Walter Devenbaugh, where he formerly worked. No. 2 is the Stevenbaugh farm, four miles from Lagrange, where deputy was killed and sherif wounded in attempt to capture Shaw. No. 3—Swamp near Ontario, five miles north of Lagrange, where Shaw is believed surrounded.

2 RACE FLYERS DIE IN CRASHES AT DIZZY SPEED

Family Sees Lemont Pilot, Rival Fall.

er the lack of space in Haines' plane could have had anything to do with his inability to keep control of the ship. Being quite tall for his very compact ship, it was necessary for him to lean forward to close the cockpit. A part of his equipment had to be fitted between his ribs.

The tragedy, which marred the opening day of aviation's annual winter circus, was witnessed by the wife of Kling and their small son. Mrs. Joy Haines, wife of the other victim, learned of her husband's death while listening to a radio news broadcast. His brother Lloyd also witnessed the accident. Kenneth, another brother, also is a pilot.

The ship in which Kling was racing had been bought and paid for by himself and his fellow townsmen, who were convinced that the popular garage owner was a top flight aviator. His prize winnings, including the feature race at Cleveland last year, justified their confidence.

Last year at the finish of the Greve trophy race in Los Angeles, Kling's fourth meet to enter, he suffered his only previous crackup when he smashed into a parked automobile.

Kling, in addition to his widow, Theresa, and the son, 10 years old, is survived by his mother and five brothers and four sisters. Haines is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Haines, and two other brothers.

Woman Flyer Breaks Record.

The New York-Miami speed record fell today when Jacqueline Cochran, wife of Floyd B. Odlum, New York financier, crossed the finish line in 4 hours 12 minutes and 28 seconds on a 1,170 mile flight. The previous record, set by Jimmy Weddell of Louisiana, was 5 hours 1 minute. The north bound record is 4 hours and 23 minutes. Miss Cochran flew a metal Seversky monoplane.

In a ship of his own design, equipped for high altitude, Maj. Alexander de Seversky broke the New York to Havana record by nearly two hours, according to dispatches. His elapsed time was 5 hours 2 minutes 51 seconds.

JAPS CLASH WITH FRENCH IN NEW CHINA INCIDENT

Row Arises Over Right to Cross Foreign Area.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 (Saturday).—(AP)—Japanese demanded today the right to enter any part of Shanghai's international settlement without advance notification.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 [Saturday].—(AP)—The Japanese army ran into difficulties in the international settlement for the second successive day today when it attempted to move supplies through the French concession.

French authorities stationed police at the entrance to the concession to block five beflagged Japanese army trucks, but finally permitted them to go through.

Evacuate Foreign Area.

Later the Japanese also withdrew their troops from an area of some thirty blocks in the heart of the international settlement where the bombing of their parade had occurred.

Today's action by the French came as Japanese troops attempted to transport supplies from Hongkew, at the eastern end of the international settlement, through the settlement and the French concession to Nantao, to the south.

Tanks and a line of soldiers and police were stationed shoulder to shoulder across the entrance to the French bund. The French finally agreed to permit the Japanese to pass after a hurried conference at the French consulate.

Three Japanese Wounded.

The incident followed a day and night of tension. After the bombing of the victory parade the Japanese had surrounded a great section of the international settlement with a ring of bayonets. This was in retaliation for the wounding of three Japanese soldiers, a Japanese policeman, and a British police inspector in the bombing. The bomb thrower, identified as a Chinese student, was shot to death by a Chinese constable of the settlement police as he turned to flee.

When Col. Charles F. B. Price, commanding the 4th marine regiment, learned that the Japanese cordon had penetrated three blocks into the American sector he hurried to the scene. His vigorous oral demands that the Japanese evacuate that sector brought early compliance.

The Japanese had kept several hundred Americans and other foreigners virtual prisoners in the foreign Y. M. C. A., Park hotel, and other buildings. After Col. Price's protest the Japanese withdrew far enough to free most of these.

American in Fight.

During the near panic, which followed the bombing incident, a 75 year old American, Vaughan Read, had a fist fight with several Japanese soldiers who, he said, molested him. Read said that eight Japanese took part in the scuffle, that he knocked one officer unconscious, and that he was beaten, although not seriously hurt.

Dr. William G. F. Schmidt.

A Circuit court jury last night returned a verdict awarding Miss Margaret Moore, 28 years old, 1621 Columbia avenue, damages of $7,000 from Dr. William G. F. Schmidt, a dentist with offices in the Pittsfield building. Miss Moore sued for $25,000, alleging the dentist raped her two years ago when she was employed by him.

By agreement the verdict was opened and read in the absence of Judge John T. Cummings of Kewanee, who had presided at the trial.

Miss Moore testified that Dr. Schmidt overpowered her when they were alone in the office. Her widowed mother, Mrs. John Moore, said Dr. Schmidt begged her not to expose him and promised to pay $5,000 for her daughter's education. Dr. Schmidt denied the attack but said he and Miss Moore had an affair for several months.

SHEAF OF LOVE NOTES FILED IN $900,000 SUIT

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The $900,000 suit of thrice-married Mrs. Marion G. Allgeyer came to a close in Supreme court today after a sheaf of love letters was put in evidence. Mrs. Allgeyer is seeking the fortune from Howard E. Spaulding, Greenwich, Conn., advertising man. He admits marrying her in 1925 when he already had a wife.

In one of the missives Spaulding recommended that she take liver extract for anemia. Others were more romantic.

Mrs. Allgeyer asserts Spaulding had promised her a million dollars, but paid her only $100,000 and now she wants the balance. And he wants the $100,000 back.

Lawrence S. Critchell, banker, a witness yesterday for Spaulding, said that he, too, had married Mrs. Allgeyer when he already had a wife, in Waukegan, Ill., in 1922.

Mrs. Allgeyer now is the wife of a New Orleans physician.

EDITOR SPEAKS ON JAPAN'S SIDE OF CHINA WAR

Shingoro Takaishi, editor and publisher of the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokyo Nichi-Nichi, Japan, spoke before the council on foreign relations on "The Case for Japan" yesterday noon at the Palmer house. He declared that the Japanese invasion of China was necessary because of China's growing hostility toward her island neighbor, and listed 11 Japanese who were, he said, slain by the Chinese in the two years preceding the opening of present hostilities. He asserted that nothing in the nine power treaty forbids Japan from defending herself on Chinese territory.

REBEL ARTILLERY SHELLS CENTRAL PART OF MADRID

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgents opened a heavy artillery bombardment of Madrid today, advices reaching the frontier said.

Spanish government infantrymen were reported to have driven rebel forces from several elevated positions in the Ebro river sector south of Saragossa on the Aragon front of northeast Spain.

The death of Ricardo Corral, a Spanish composer, was announced today.

SPIRITUAL RULER OF TIBET, AN EXILE 13 YEARS, IS DEAD

Panchen Lama Revered as Reincarnated Buddha.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

The panchen lama.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The panchen lama of Tibet—spiritual ruler of that mysterious mountain country of central Asia—died last Tuesday in exile, dispatches to London said today. His death occurred in Jyekundo, a town of western China, reports from India indicated. He was 54 years old.

The panchen lama was exiled from Tibet in 1924 after differences with the dalai lama over introducing reforms in education and administration. The dalai lama, who was the recognized temporal leader of Lamaism, a form of Buddhism, died in December, 1933. Since then orthodox Tibetans who resented his reformist tendencies blocked the panchen lama's attempts to return to Lhasa, Tibetan capital.

Based on Reincarnation.

Lamaism is based on belief in reincarnation, and when either the panchen lama or the dalai lama dies the other decides upon his successor.

Lamaists believe that the spirit of a grand lama passes, at the moment of his death, into a child born at that same instant. It is necessary then, to search out this child and name him the successor to the deceased lama.

Last July reports said a child to succeed the dalai lama had been found, but this was not confirmed.

Liked Up-to-Date Autos.

A serious problem of choosing successors for both grand lamas now is likely to arise, since the panchen lama apparently did not specify a new dalai lama.

During his 13 years of exile the panchen lama went about in modern automobiles and became a handshaker in approved occidental fashion. The panchen lama is considered by his followers to be the reincarnation of Buddha. About 20 per cent of Tibet's population is made up of priests.

HITLER'S ENVOY HAS SECRET PARLEY WITH CHINESE DICTATOR

NANKING, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Oskar Trautmann, German ambassador to China, today ended a brief visit to Nanking during which it was understood he talked with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese dictator, possibly to suggest terms for peace between China and Japan.

Dr. Trautmann arrived unannounced from Hankow yesterday and left just as secretly on a Chinese customs cruiser for Hankow, whither the German and other foreign embassies followed the Chinese foreign office last week.

When Dr. Trautmann left Hankow it was reported that he was to present to Gen. Chiang an outline of possible peace terms, including Chinese adherence to the Japanese-German-Italian pact against communism, withdrawal of Japanese troops from China, and assurances that Japan did not seek territory in North China but only economic coöperation. Gen. Chiang was believed to have agreed to listen to the German suggestions.

TAKE FIVE MAIL BAGS FROM RIVER; MYSTERY THEFT

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The recovery tonight of five bags of mail and registered packages from the East river disclosed the disappearance of several such bags from a guarded postal truck en route from the New York general postoffice to Hoboken, N. J.

The contents and value of the missing bags were not revealed, but postoffice inspectors said they didn't believe "they were worth the trouble it took to take them."

Peter Scheid, 34, fishing at Corlear Point, hooked one in the East river. Police recovered the other four. One letter in a bag was said to have borne the date "Nov. 21, 1937." The inspectors said they had not gone through the bags completely and could not say what they contained.

SEIZED ON STOLEN CAR CHARGE.

Horace Alverson, 56 years old, sought for the interstate transportation of an automobile stolen here Oct. 12, 1933, was arrested yesterday at Fort Wayne, Ind., by agents of the federal bureau of investigation, according to an announcement from Washington, D. C.

BRITAIN'S ARMY TO BE REBUILT WITH FIGHTERS

Sees Social Nonsense and Snobbery Ended.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Further drastic changes in War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha's shake-up of the British army, which took place yesterday, will include immediate reinforcement of the garrisons at Hongkong, Singapore, Egypt, and Cyprus, and the reorganization of staf colleges with younger men to bring them into line with modern requirements.

In the offing, in addition to the changes made, is a campaign for conscription or democratization of the military service, as forecast in these dispatches three weeks ago. Also, it is expected that the whole of the commissioned ranks will be thrown open to talent from below, sweeping away what now is said to be snobbery and social nonsense in the appointments of officers.

Gort Named Full General.

The revolutionary changes in the army, and the modification of military politics which they entail were the talk of military and political clubs and circles today as the young war minister went on with his plans by naming Major General Viscount John Standish Gort, 51 years old, his new chief of staf, a full general today.

Hore-Belisha, it is reported also, has in mind a clear definition of the British army's responsibilities on the continent of Europe and the extent to which it would go as an expeditionary force in case Britain is involved in a future war. He considers that the army must have a policy in this respect in order to direct its training properly.

War office information today is that recruiting is to be stimulated immediately by pay increases to the ranks, while officers will have to work harder and there will be less regimental entertaining and luxury.

Offers Bonus for Recruits.

In an effort to fill some of the vacancies in the British army ranks, Hore-Belisha is offering $1 a head for recruits introduced by soldiers on Christmas leaves.

With few exceptions the army reforms and the substitution of younger generals and officers for older are welcomed in the press and among politicians, particularly those proposals to democratize the army and throw it open to intelligent and younger men.

But the changes will not pass into effect without sweeping interrogations in parliament next week, and Hore-Belisha is expected to make a full statement then. He probably also will make a statement in a speech tomorrow night.

FOUND DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE.

Norris H. Murray, a vending machine collector, 54 years old, of 445 East 87th street, was found dead in his automobile yesterday in the garage behind his home. The ignition was on and the gas tank was empty.

A Real Meal Again

ROY ROGERS.

San Jose, Cal., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—After living 85 days in a highway culvert, Roy Rogers, 32 years old, was out looking for a job today. He was given a new outlook on life by a bath, clean clothes, and his first real meal in three months, supplied by police. Rogers said he had lived a nightmare since he discovered a year ago that his wife was having an affair with his best friend. He shot the man who broke up his Corpus Christi, Tex., home and was committed to a hospital for the insane. Following his release, he wandered aimlessly. Finally deciding he wanted to die, he crawled into the culvert, hoping he would contract pneumonia.

KING BARS KIN FROM SPECIAL TRAFIC RIGHTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3.—King George VI. of Great Britain ordered members of the British royal family not to seek special trafic privileges except when performing official duties, sources close to the court stated today.

The order includes car parking and is a sequel to a recent go slow protest drive by 100 taximen in Piccadilly. They charged that the duchess of Kent, sister-in-law of the king and formerly Princess Marina of Greece, left her automobile outside the Café de Paris when dining there with friends, while taxicabs were hustled off by the police.

Under the king's orders the royal automobiles in the future will be parked in garages in the same way as the cars of other persons when members of the royal family visit congested areas.

Objects to Trade Methods; Mexico Deporting Jews

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—Agents of the special service branch of the department of the interior charged with deporting undesirable aliens today said 22 per cent of the persons deported from Mexico this year had been Jews. It was said their form of business often conflicts with that of nationals and that many of them therefore are being sent out of Mexico quietly.

FRENCH CHAMBER BOOSTS ARMY'S FUND 47 MILLION

Plan to Cut Conscription Term Rejected.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The French chamber of deputies voted unanimously today for an increased army budget in 1938 and urged the government to strengthen frontier defenses.

The chamber approved army credits of 7,932,878,285 francs [about $269,700,000], an increase of 1,381,505,231 francs [about $46,900,000] over this year's appropriations. Up for the chamber's approval is an extraordinary army budget of more than 5,550,000,000 francs [about $188,700,000], an increase of 1,136,500,000 francs [about $38,600,000].

Rejects Communist Plan.

In today's debate Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense, rejected as "impossible" a communist proposal to reduce the two year conscription term. He told the chamber that 387,000 French soldiers face 1,000,000 men on the German frontier and 300,000 on the Italian border.

During discussion of strengthening the Swiss border Daladier said France had spent some $1,650,000 on authorized defenses in the Juru mountains of Alsace.

The Versailles treaty demilitarized the French-Swiss frontier, but Daladier assured parliament the government had adequate troops and equipment in the sector.

He declared, however, that France would take no action alone to fortify illegally the Jura mountains on the Swiss border despite the temptation "after so many violations of treaties."

[Germany refortified the Rhineland on France's northeastern frontier after scrapping the Versailles and Locarno treaties.]

Hit at Nationalization.

Rightists charged that nationalization of French armament factories on Aug. 11, 1936, had slowed up production of war materials. Daladier countered with the statement that nationalization permitted the war ministry to increase production and efficiency. He said the production of anti-aircraft guns was far ahead of that before nationalization.

EXPERT ON AFRICA WILL TRY TO BRING PEACE IN PALESTINE

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Sir Harold Alfred MacMichael, veteran African administrator, tonight was appointed high commissioner and commander in chief for troubled Palestine and high commissioner for Trans-Jordan.

He will succeed Gen. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, whose resignation because of poor health was made known Oct. 28. The colonial office announced the new appointment would become effective on March 1.

MacMichael, who has been governor and commander in chief of Tanganyika Territory, East Africa, since 1934, will succeed to the task of restoring peace to the Holy Land, where the long conflict of Arab and Jew has produced nearly two years of violence and bloodshed. He has been in British government service in Africa thirty-two years.

OFFICER JICHA COMBINES WORK WITH PLEASURE

For nine days last month Policeman Otto Jicha of the Warren avenue station tramped the woods of Quebec hunting moose. For nine days it rained and Policeman Jicha neither saw nor heard a moose.

In the evening dusk yesterday as he was driving home he saw a gray shape in the prairie at 95th street and Cicero avenue. He stopped hurriedly, unlimbered his service pistol, stalked out on the prairie and fired two shots. The gray shape slumped to the ground dead. It was a timber wolf.

Lloyd George, 75, Has Cold; Advised to Remain Indoors

LONDON, Dec. 3. — (AP) — David Lloyd George was ill today from a cold. The war time prime minister and present member of the house of commons, now 75, was advised to remain indoors for a day or two.

FRANCE ASKS AID OF POLAND TO BAR NAZI EXPANSION

Delbos Begins Parleys with Warsaw Chiefs.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Dec. 3.—How far will Poland go to support France in opposing any readjustment of the European frontiers, as is desired by Nazi Germany? This question came up for discussion tonight when Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, conferred with Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister. Upon Poland's reply, and upon the replies Delbos receives from the statesmen of the little entente in his forthcoming European tour, will depend France's future attitude towards Germany.

Poland favors direct negotiations between France and Germany. Polish officials expressed pleasure that Count Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, went to the railway station in Berlin today for a twenty minute chat with his French colleague aboard the latter's train.

Receives Warm Welcome.

Delbos and his party received a warm welcome when they arrived here. Foreign Minister Beck and other high officials met the Frenchmen at the railway station and escorted them to the new $2,000,000 French embassy, the bombproof cellars of which are large enough to accommodate the entire French colony in Warsaw. There Beck and Delbos had a talk which lasted more than an hour.

Delbos dined privately with Leon Noel, the French ambassador. Tomorrow, after paying a visit to President Ignace Moscicki and placing a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, he will have another meeting with Beck at the foreign office.

Says People Lose Confidence.

An outward show of unity established between warring factions in the government camp on the eve of Delbos' visit showed signs of exploding today when a number of prominent members of parliament attacked the government and Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, "strong man" of Poland.

Gen. Lucjan Zeligowski, hero of the Vilna putsch, was one of the government's critics. He charged that the government had lost the confidence of the nation and that some men now in power were using their political offices to acquire wealth. The job-grabbing elements of the government must be ousted, he said.

Gen. Zeligowski attacked Premier Gen. Felician Slawoj-Skladowski. He charged that the premier and Col. Adam Koc and his National Unity party have introduced the army into politics in violation of the constitution.

He warned that "genuine Pilsudski legionnaires" would demand a housecleaning of what he called "ultra-legionnaires who had never fought for Poland in the Pilsudski Legion." He said the government must again be made up of men "who put the national welfare above their pocketbooks."

Bonds of $180,000 Fixed for Two Young Robbers

Bonds totaling $180,000 were fixed yesterday for two youths held to the grand jury on nine robbery charges by Judge Francis Borrelli in the Automobile court. The defendants are George Johnson, 18 years old, whose confession of murdering a south side poultry dealer is being investigated, and Warren Pinkston, 19 years old, both colored. Police said they doubted the truth of Johnson's story of the murder.

YEARS OF WEAR IN A WEEK

By CALEB

"Dear Sirs:

"In 1876 my wife's folks bought a Brussels carpet to celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary. On the fourth day of March in 1885 my wife and I were married on that carpet.

"That same carpet is on the floor yet without a break or hole in it. It has been in constant use ever since 1876. The colors are just as bright as when it was bought.

"We are going to buy a couple of new rugs. Can you sell us two or three rugs that will give as good satisfaction as the carpet has? . . . . A carpet in use over sixty years is some record for a carpet. . . . . .If I come to the stock show in Chicago, I will visit your store as I always do.

"Hoping to hear from you, I remain

"Your friend and customer

"E—— O. F——"

A carpet sixty-one years old has a distinguished record behind it. And oddly enough, this letter is written to us at a time when large figured Victorian-type patterns are coming once more into their own. It is merchandise of rare quality that can span a generation or two of wear—and still be in use when the cycle of fashion brings a recurrence of popularity such as it enjoyed when it was created.

We believe this friendly letter presents one shred of evidence that our store has been successful in putting first things first. In floor coverings for homes of modest means, nothing is so much required as enduring quality.

In buying quality we could never base decisions on snap judgments and hasty opinions. But nowadays, we have mechanical helpers in selecting quality.

When we add new floor coverings to our extremely wide lines today and they are of a type which customers will buy for enduring service, we actually test samples on rubbing machines which definitely gauge the relative worth of all the samples being tested.

The carpet of our good friend E—— O. F—— has proved one of our points through sixty years of service on one floor. Today in our own testing laboratory we can take another piece of carpet and in a few days give it the equivalent of many years of wear in a busy household.

TRUCK HITS TWO BOYS ON BICYCLE; 1 KILLED, 1 INJURED

Pedestrian Dies in Second Accident; Rain Blamed.

A blinding winter rain was blamed for two automobile accidents at dusk yesterday in which a pedestrian was killed and two brothers on a bicycle were struck by a truck, one of them being fatally injured.

Leo Ziolo.

Leo B. Pambrun, 50 years old, of Aurora, a department manager of the General Electric X-Ray corporation, 2012 Jackson boulevard, was killed as he was crossing the street in front of the plant after work. The driver of the car, Christopher James, 30 years old, colored, 6503 Eberhardt avenue, said his course was obscured by the rain.

Two Thrown from Bicycle.

Run down by a truck in front of 2308 Elston avenue and thrown from their bicycle, Leo Ziolo, 16 years old, was fatally injured, and his brother, Daniel, 12 years old, suffered a skull fracture. The younger boy was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital.

The brothers were riding home to dinner from St. Wenceslaus parochial school when their wheel was struck from the rear by the truck. Arthur Pauling, 3528 North Normandy avenue, the driver, said he failed to see them because of the darkness and rain.

Mrs. Mary Dober, 45 years old, 1615 Jefferson street, was fatally injured last evening when she was run down by an automobile at Jefferson street and Roosevelt road. The driver, Fred W. Weston, 54 years old, took her to Mother Cabrini hospital where she died. He is a mechanical engineer.

Ignac Iglewski, 55 years old, was fatally injured yesterday when he was hit by a truck at Wabansia and Ashland avenues. He died in the North Avenue hospital. The driver was Carl Carlson, 30 years old, 3001 Jackson boulevard.

Kerner at Inquest.

Attorney General Otto Kerner took part in the questioning of witnesses yesterday at the inquest into the death of Emil A. LeGros, vice president of the McGrath Engraving company, 160 East Illinois street. LeGros was struck by a coal truck at St. Clair and Hubbard streets on Nov. 20. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

As a friend of the LeGros family, whose home is at 826 William street, River Forest, Mr. Kerner questioned the truck driver, George Kane, 4814 Strong street, and other witnesses. Kane testified the glare of lights from several office buildings made the head lamp beams of his truck less effective, and he could not see the victim.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 996 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 751 were killed in Chicago, where 21,112 were injured in the same period.

Benefit Tonight to Aid Needy of Fifth Ward

County Treasurer Horace G. Lindheimers' fifth annual Christmas benefit show for the needy of his home ward, the Fifth, will be given tonight at the Piccadilly theater. Proceeds from the performance, which will be headlined by Benny Fields, night club star, will be distributed in coöperation with civic organizations of the ward.

Sore Gum Forces Roosevelt to Cut His Vacation Short

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Delayed healing of the gum from which an abscessed tooth was extracted 15 days ago today forced President Roosevelt to change his vacation plans and move up his return to Washington by three days.

The President made it clear, however, that his general health is excellent. He said he considered it advisable to be back in the White House for treatment of the ailing gum.

Under his original plans Mr. Roosevelt was to return to Miami Monday night and board a special train for Warm Springs, Ga., there to dine with patients of the infantile paralysis resort he founded. From Warm Springs he was to have proceeded to Gainesville, Ga., where he was to deliver an impromptu address in connnection with the dedication of a park named for him.

Warm Springs Visit Delayed.

Today he instructed Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre in the temporary White House at the Miami-Biltmore hotel to send his regrets to Warm Springs with the information he was not canceling the engagements, but merely postponing them. At the same time he announced that he will return to Miami at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and board his train for Washington. He will be back in the White House Monday night.

Previous radio messages from the presidential yacht had reported that the gum infection was progressing favorably. The infected tooth was a molar on the lower right hand side. It was draining when Mr. Roosevelt started on the cruise last Saturday. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, meanwhile, has been treating the gum.

It was thought likely that the narrowly averted brush between American marines and Japanese soldiers in the international settlement of Shanghai may have influenced the President in the change of plans.

Messages on Eastern War.

Throughout the day the radio of the destroyer Roper anchored in the Miami harbor buzzed messages to the destroyer Selfridge, convoying the Potomac, relating to the latest and most serious development in the Sino-Japanese conflict as far as this country is concerned. There was no word from the Potomac on the reaction of the President.

The only message from the yacht came in response to a query from the temporary White House demanding to know whether the President was catching fish. Radio messages from Son and Secretary James Roosevelt had merely said the fishing was excellent but did not say whether Mr. Roosevelt was reeling in any prizes.

SQUABBLE TAKES A STRANGLE HOLD ON SAFETY COURT

Judge-Prosecutor War Balks Trials.

Defendants, witnesses, and policemen waited in silence yesterday as the officers of the Safety court, Judge J. M. Blaude, and Assistant State's Attorney John Phillips continued their quarrel with the utmost dignity possible under the circumstances.

There was no "Closed for Repairs" sign on the court doors, although this might have saved time for persons who fruitlessly visited the court building to dispose of cases. In the shortest session in the court's history, all 29 cases on call were either continued or transferred to the Jury court for trial on Dec. 17.

Continuances Stop Borrelli.

Public business was also near a standstill in Judge Francis Borrelli's Jury court across the hall, because Judge Braude had met the state tactics of demanding jury trials for each defendant by setting the cases over two weeks. So Prosecutor Phillips sat in chambers reading newspaper accounts of the serio-comic scenes enacted Wednesday and Thursday in which he was ordered out of Judge Braude's court and then was defended vigorously by First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley.

Judge Braude, in dignified vein, stated:

"It is most unfortunate that where we are engaged in the business of administering justice and endeavoring to save human lives, there should be any misunderstanding or differences between the court and an officer of the court."

Apologizes to Defendants.

He also said that he was not to blame for the uproar, and apologized to defendants, witnesses, and policemen when there cases were continued. Prosecutor Emmett Moynihan, guarding the fort for Phillips, objected sharply to these tactics.

As the star of a daily radio broadcast from the Safety court, Judge Braude refused again to disappoint his audience. He remained at court for an hour waiting to go on the air, and then read fanmail to his listeners, not mentioning the current squabble.

SON OF MINNEAPOLIS BROKER DIES IN FALL FROM HOTEL IN LOOP

Charles Gerhard Wehmann, a Minneapolis broker and economist, plunged from his room on the seventh floor of the Atlantic hotel, 316 South Clark street, yesterday. The body struck a truck in front of the hotel and landed in the street. Wehmann was 43 years old.

The body was taken to O'Regan's undertaking establishment at 425 Plymouth court, where an inquest will be held today, attended by Minneapolis relatives who were on the way to Chicago last night.

Wehmann was the son of Herman Wehmann, a prominent grain broker in Minneapolis. Charles, in addition to his brokerage pursuits, also had been known as a financial analyst and an investment counselor.

Minneapolis advices said Wehmann had been married and had one son who is now living with his divorced wife. There was no known motive for suicide, it was said at his home.

Satino Gaggini, 37 years old, of 1240 Burling street, leaped twenty feet to his death from the north approach to the Ogden avenue viaduct yesterday.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—An icicle clad and snow banked bungalow gleaming with Christmas lights attracted the attention of passersby here tonight. # SENATOR ASSAILS LABOR BOARD IN FREE PRESS CASE

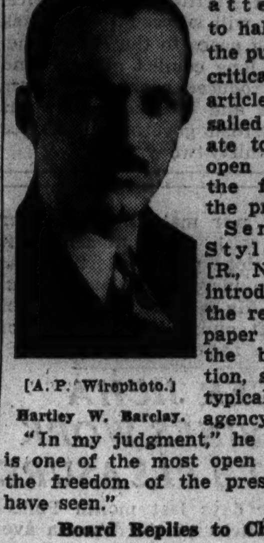
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The action of the so-called national labor relations board in attempting to hale before it the publisher of a critical magazine article was assailed in the senate today as an open attack on the freedom of the press.



[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Hartley W. Barclay.

Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], who introduced into the record newspaper accounts of the board's action, said it was typical of that agency.

"In my judgment," he said, "this is one of the most open attacks on the freedom of the press that we have seen."

Board Replies to Charge.

The labor board today replied to the charge made by Elisha Hanson, counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' association, that its subpena demanding the files and records of a publishing company was unconstitutional because it infringed on the freedom of the press. The board also announced it would seek a federal court order to enforce compliance with its subpena.

Hanson advised his clients, Hartley W. Barclay, editor of Mill and Factory, and the Conover-Mast corporation, publishers of the trade journal, to ignore the subpena and so notified the labor board. The board alleges the article was inspired by the Weirton Steel company, which is on trial for alleged violation of the Wagner act, while Barclay says it represented independent reporting and editorial expression of opinion.

Denies Punitive Intention.

"The board has never at any time attempted to take punitive action against the writing or publishing of material critical of the board," a spokesman for the board said today. "Its present action is not based upon this circumstance.

"When any such material is circulated among employés by an employer as an instrument of coercion against free organization, however, the action falls within the category of unfair labor practices.

"We now have complaints pending against the Weirton Steel company, and hearings are under way before a trial examiner in Steubenville, O. The article in question is a reprint of an October publication and it is our belief that it has been circulated among employés of the Weirton company. In compiling our information in connection with the Weirton case the board feels that the material requested in the subpena is essential."

BORAH WARNS U. S. OF DISASTER IN CROP CONTROL

Calls Farm Rule Step Towards Suicide.

Questions Theory Behind Bill.

"The theory here is that this bill is based upon the interstate commerce clause of the constitution; but if we may say in advance of the production of any wheat or corn how much a farmer may sow, we may say to the shoe manufacturer of Massachusetts in advance of cutting the lether how many shoes he may manufacture; and under this construction of the interstate commerce clause of the constitution the secretary of agriculture or any other secretary having jurisdiction of the subject matter could fix the amount of production of everything that might be considered ultimately likely to move in interstate commerce.

"I know of no authority for that action upon the part of the secretary of agriculture, and yet this is the real crux of the measure."

Commenting that Wallace had suggested controls for industry and labor as the next step, Senator Borah continued:

"It may be that the time will come when the government will say to the shoe manufacturer of Massachusetts—and, I trust, to the farm implement people also, if the government is to adopt such a course—what amount he shall produce and what he shall do with it after it is produced, and will make him sign contracts to the effect that if he does not follow the government's dictation he shall meet with the disfavor of the government.

"It may be that such a thing is coming, but it will not be with my consent."

ROCHELLE SCHOOL CONTRACT.

Rochelle, Ill., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—A general PWA contract for the construction of a new elementary school was awarded to W. C. F. Kuhne, Rantoul, Ill., with a bid of $144,022 and a contract for heating, plumbing, and sewering to Klein & Heckman, Dixon, Ill., with a bid of $26,071 yesterday. Work is to be started Dec. 11.

TEN SENATE LEADERS MEET DOUGLAS FOR SECRET CONFERENCE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Lewis Douglas, former director of the budget, outlined a broad recovery program today to a secret luncheon conference of ten Democratic and Republican senators. The senators gathered at the invitation of Senator Byrd [D., Va.] to hear the views of Douglas, now an officer of the American Cyanamid company.

Byrd refused to discuss the conference. Other senators said only that Douglas had outlined a comprehensive program for restoring confidence to industry. This included early tax revision, balanced budget and expanded foreign trade.

TWO POLL JUDGES PLEAD GUILTY OF FAKING RETURNS

With a state's witness waiting to testify on their election frauds, two Democratic polls judges interrupted the selection of a jury yesterday and pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to make false election returns. They will be sentenced Dec. 9, by Judge Robert Jerome Dunne in criminal court.

The defendants are Anthony Gattone, 28 years old, 2837 Wentworth avenue, and Salvatore Montesano, 33 years old, 7850 Ingleside avenue, who were judges in the 32d precinct of the 1st ward in the primary election of April 14, 1936.

The action of Gattone and Montesano was surprising to the state because they have appealed to the Supreme court sentences of two years for contempt of court imposed in connection with the frauds.

"Evidently they were afraid to face the startling evidence the state was prepared to present," said Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle.

Senator Wishes Congress Were More Statesmanlike

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Senator Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.] surveyed congress' accomplishments at the midpoint of the special session today and commented that "it would be nice if congress were more statesmanlike, but if congress were more statesmanlike congress wouldn't be elected."

MAGNIFICENT FLEECES—MAGNIFICENT VALUES

The story of these coats reads like a geography lesson. They've taken the warm, lustrous fleece of the alpaca from Peru, the fine, silky wool of the guanaco from Bolivia, the strong fibers of the angora from Turkey, and the soft, sturdy wool of sheep from Texas—they've blended these rare fleeces to make the longest wearing, warmest and lightest weight overcoats you've ever worn—in raglans, ulsters, balmacaans, box overcoats

Imported English overcoats

They have the unmistakable air of Mayfair and Piccadilly—and the characteristic beauty of English loomed fleeces. They're straight from London, that's why . . and worthy of $65 and $75 . . but the Rothschild system of value-giving prices them at

MacGregor overcoats

Here's one of the Kuppenheimer triumphs—an overcoat that is just about as widely known as your favorite movie star. It's made in big, burly styles—that weigh very little but keep you warm when the mercury dives into the zero zone

$65

Camel's hair overcoats

This is another member of the Rothschild "all-stars" . . the La Salle camel's hair overcoat. It's rich, deep, fleecy and warm—in ulsters, belted overcoats, raglans. They're better than the price indicates. Tan, blue, oxford, green

Sedan Montagnac overcoats

The Montagnacs at Sedan, France, have been making this world-renowned overcoating for years. Kuppenheimer have been tailoring it into handsome overcoats for years, too. There's nothing like them for soft, deep, silky luxury

$125

British fleece overcoats

These come from the masters of hand-tailoring—Hickey-Freeman. And this is one of the great coats that has made them famous . . imported fleeces, distinguished style . . soft, expert needling . . accurate fit and easy drape—an aristocrat

The smart 2-in-1 coats

Here's a topcoat and overcoat in one. There's a pure, warm, camel's hair lining that zips out for cool days and zips in for cold days. The coat is smart—in tweeds or camel's hair—and in easy raglan styles. It's a very useful and unusual coat for

SHANGHAI, THE HOT SPOT.

The international settlement at Shanghai is an international munitions dump. It is composed of foreign areas and concessions protected by foreign troops. Part of the customs duties are required for the settlement of foreign debts. Free communications are needed for the uses of a commercial city. The United States has troops ashore and warships in the rivers. There are American owned properties which fly the American flag.

Shanghai has been captured. In the international settlement there are not only thousands of Chinese civilians but thousands of Chinese soldiers who found refuge there. The Japanese troops have fought for the city and taken it. With it they take all the international complications. Troops of occupation entering a place after a stubborn fight are seldom lambs even if they are under strict discipline. In the line of duty they are likely to be tough.

Already there has been trouble and more may be expected. An American owned boat was taken and somehow or other the flag got into the river. A bomb was thrown at the Japanese parade and Japanese troops pushed their way into an area guarded by American marines. The American commander had a hot dispute before he forced a withdrawal. Delicate is a good word for this situation.

The United States and Japan have what theory calls friendly relations. If that were the actual fact the United States would be in position to negotiate its way through the difficulties of these problems. Now there is a great deal of truculence. We have threatened indirect war. The American government has called Japan a disease and was jockied into being the alleged sponsor of the Brussels conference, a harmful and pitiful exhibition of weakness which ought not to have been put on display.

The countries which have hostages in Shanghai have done everything they could to make the position critical and the condition of the Chinese desperate. Real statesmen see things coming down the road.

THE HARD ROAD OF ECONOMY.

Much governmental experience emphasizes the truth that the easy way to stop excessive spending is not to begin it. Expansion and not retrenchment is the habit of politics. As soon as Mr. Roosevelt asked for a cut in the federal road aid to states the opposition arose. Federal aid has set up a system upon which states and their politicians have come to rely. The states have assumed they would get the money. They have made plans accordingly and a cut would upset them.

Appropriations become institutionalized. Organizations are built around them. The spenders acquired vested interests. Naturally they want to enlarge their interest and not lose it. Governmental expenditures are counted in the terms of people. New appropriations and new enterprises create new places and new benefits to which the possessors hold tenaciously. The cost sheets of government are filled with persons, most of them politically active.

Economy is best thought of where it does not apply. Whatever it touches will offer proof that it should go somewhere else.

THE AIRPORT TANGLE.

The problem of moving the Chicago and Western Indiana tracks that now cross the Municipal airport to a location that will permit the enlargement of the flying field appears to have as many lives as the proverbial cat. First the Chicago and Western Indiana was presumed to be blocking any effort to move its tracks, but it later developed that its bondholders merely sought assurance of an adequate new location. Next, the Indiana Harbor Belt was reported to have taken exception to the plan of using its right of way along 53d place for the accommodation of the orphaned Chicago and Western Indiana tracks, but the officials of this road also proved to be reasonable, and everything was in order for the enlargement of the airport when a real estate broker named Herman bobbed into the picture.

It appears that the right of way of the Indiana Harbor Belt, which will in future accommodate both that railway and the Chicago and Western Indiana, has been secured through condemnation proceedings, which carried reversionary rights. Now the Indiana Harbor Belt cannot dispose of the necessary strip of its right of way to the Chicago and Western Indiana without cancelation of the reversionary rights granted by the court and now held by Herman. The property involved is a narrow strip of land containing two and a quarter acres.

Now comes the usual jockying for a price fixture. Herman disclaims any effort to block the deal through an unreasonable demand, but considers the council's offer to be inadequate. On the other hand, the council may argue in rebuttal that any consideration given to Herman will be velvet because in case the negotiations fall through, the land is of no value to Herman as long as it is occupied by the Indiana Harbor Belt. That line can hold the property, although it cannot sell it. The city is in reality purchasing reversionary rights and not property.

Whatever may be the merits of the case, it is certain that the continued procrastination in obtaining the enlarged airport is becoming very irritating. There will soon be an aroused state of public indignation very painful to those responsible.

THE OGPU COMES TO AMERICA.

The national labor relations board is no exception to the rule that tyrants are thin-skinned. They have to be if they want to continue in power. They cannot tolerate free criticism because they fear it will destroy them. That explains the extraordinary action of the board in issuing subpenas for the editor and publisher of a magazine which printed an article critical of the board's conduct of its case against the Weirton Steel company.

In the October number of a trade paper, Mill and Factory, an article was published which was favorable to the company. As the facts were there presented, it appeared, among other things, that the company had treated its employés well, that there was little real dissatisfaction among the workmen, that the labor board's inquiry was not calculated to bring out the truth. In this proceeding, as in many others, the board has acted simultaneously as prosecutor, judge, and jury.

The subpenas served upon the editor and publisher call for their appearance and the presentation of all correspondence between them and the Weirton Steel company. The editor and publisher deny there was any collusion between them and the company, but refuse to obey the board's order. They assert that the summons is a denial of the freedom of the press guaranteed in the federal constitution. The labor board is, therefore, wholly without power to require their testimony.

To have obeyed would have been cowardly. More than that, it would have been an invitation to the board and to all similarly constituted agencies of government to harass and intimidate writers who dared to disagree with official opinion and editors able and willing to expose official dereliction.

Assume the worst about the article in question. Assume that it was bought and paid for by the Weirton interests. Assume that the appearance of impartial authorship was a fraud upon the readers. Assume that the article was devoid of truth and that it was published to undermine whatever moral authority the labor board possesses. There is no evidence to show that any of these assumptions is warranted, but even if they were all proved to the hilt the action of the board would still be inexcusable.

The business of the labor board is to find the facts regarding the Weirton company's labor relations. It has only one job: to determine whether the company conducted itself in these matters in accordance with the law. If the board regards the points raised in the article as relevant to the inquiry, witnesses competent to testify on these matters can be summoned and questioned and no doubt will be glad to have an opportunity to tell the board a great many things it is not eager to learn. In contrast, the editor and publisher have no such direct knowledge of what happened at Weirton a year ago.

The board knows that; and the conclusion is therefore inescapable that the board summoned these men not to carry out the work assigned to it by law but rather to harass and punish critics of its sacrosanct self. Stalin, Mussolini, and Hitler feel the same way about persons who question their conduct in office. They maintain secret police and packed, star-chamber courts to discipline any subjects who venture to express disapproval of the régime. Stalin's agency is known as the OGPU. It combines the functions of policeman, prosecutor, judge, jury, and executioner. The labor board has a good start in that direction already and is stepping fast.

The board started as a little tyranny, a payment to John Lewis for services rendered in the election, but as generally happens, its ambition is to become a big tyranny. It cannot easily achieve its aim if the greatest safeguard of liberty, a free press, is permitted to function. That is why the freedom of the press was guaranteed in the constitution and why the labor board is now seeking to break it down.

The issue raised by the subpenas is of tremendous importance for the present and future safety of free government in this country. A dozen agencies like the labor board have been created in recent years. If it is conceded that any of them has the right to interfere with free expression, it seems probable that they all have that right. The labor board is seeking to provide the government at Washington with a means for silencing all opposition. The OGPU has come to America.

Editorial of the Day

NO LACK OF WEATHER HERE.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Everybody talks about the weather, Mark Twain once said, but nobody does anything about it. Every one has reason to talk about Illinois weather, for it is the finest kind of weather. There is lots of it—too much sometimes.

Two thousand years ago Seneca said that often the things we most desire would plague us while many things dreaded were blessings in disguise. Thus we might desire cloudless sunny days at an even temperature the year round, but, on second thought, who would accept this in exchange for the fall, winter, spring, and summer of Illinois?

The poet Vergil expressed much the same thought, though from a different point of view, when he remarked that present tribulations often become in the future a most pleasant memory. Thus the heat of the summer past now appears not so great a burden as we deemed it then.

Now the cold is on us, and winter soon will take possession of its dominions. Let it come! How zestful to hear dry snow crunch under the heels, even though it turns to treacherous ice. The plants are seared black by the frost, but they will be up again in the spring. Meanwhile what sport it is to conjecture when the mercury will hit zero for the first time this season.

It gets cold here in winter. The lowest temperature recorded since 1879 was on Feb. 13, 1905, when the mercury sank to 24 degrees below zero. Jan. 5, 1884, had a low of 22 below. December's lowest record was 14 below in 1924. Records show that November never has sunk below zero, but in 1929 Nov. 30 felt zero temperatures.

Yes, Illinois weather is hard to beat. Go where you never smell coal smoke and you'll have a yearning for a whiff of it. There's always something going on in Illinois weather, a happy variety, and four seasons which are unmatched anywhere.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

MAYOR CARTER HARRISON the elder bopped the council down with 83 words when in 1884 it authorized some gentlemen to erect advertising kiosks at the street corners on the entrepreneurs' promise to install new gas street lights and maintain them forever. Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, has just uncovered the mayor's veto message: "A kiosk is not a well known thing in this western world. To the ordinary denizen of Chicago the word awakens no familiar memories. To a few, whose wanderings have carried them to the far-off land of Osmanjik, it brings visions of turbaned Turks and dark-eyed Circassian beauties, of bubbling fountains and gurgling nargilehs, of bowers of jasmine and roses, and the green rolling Bosphorus. It carries some graybeard back to a day when he looked down upon Damascus; he remembers how he dreamed he was a nine-tailed pasha and had a hundred wives." What the mayor was saying was "No!"

ITALIAN LAKES.

Italian lakes are patches of blue sky
Hemmed in from shore to shore.
And that is why when I beheld their blue
Rosa Zagnoni Marinoni.

BUGS MORAN has bobbed up again, for the first time since the gangs of the prohibition days folded. Big Tim Murphy always got the credit, but it was Bugs who started gangsters saying "Santa Claus!" when asked the routine question of their name in the police station. Big Tim tried to improve upon the idea by telling policemen who arrested him: "George E. Q. Johnson." Bugs, Dingbat Oberta, Sammy Samoots, Nuts Nolan, Paddy-the-Cub, and Paddy-the-Bear! Lovely names, but nothing can ever approach Trouble Tribble.

AN EVANSTON MAN knows that the radio plays if you plug it in. Further afield he ventures not. But when his wife complained of the puddle on the garage floor he said he'd fix the leak. He took his son out to watch him tighten the pipe, that there might some day be two handy men about the house. The gas man who came around eventually said the bill would be so high this month the company thought it ought to see if anything were wrong; $79 seemed a lot. Something was: The lord and master had turned the wrong pipe, the gas pipe.

FOR ONCE the outraged vigilante in the long flannel nightgown has had the last laugh. A driver was parking the other night near Jean McK.'s home on the near north side, when he accidentally tooted the horn and found he couldn't stop the toot. When neighbors began protesting he stepped out and hurried away. Angry as they were, the rest laughed when the man in the nightgown came out, brandishing a club. Finding no one in the car, he gave it a tremendous kick. It broke the connection and stopped the toot.

If humor is the only test of gravity; if brevity is the soul of wit; if wisdom is better than rubies, then be rich with the literary wealth of Ormus and of Ind by spending a dime for the Linebook of 1937. IT WAS BOUND TO HAPPEN, said Earl Reed, and it did. One of those automat drink dispensers forgot to shut itself off after pouring one five cent drink and kept on turning them out. The store people got a supply of paper cups, caught the drinks as they came out, and served them free to the customers.

NEW ART.

The old Fifty-seventh street art colony has welcomed a trailer camp and restaurants. But it has produced a new art, the swing omelet. Cooks on one of the colony's restaurants put their eggs and milk in a skillet and swing it over an open fire until the omelet climbs right over the skillet's top.

PHI BETES UNBEND.

Phi Beta Kappas have voted to toss the classics overboard and pronounce their honorary scholastic fraternity as it looks, Phy Bayta Kappa, although the old guard went down fighting for Phee Bayta Kappa. They can call themselves whatever they want to, says The Gent from Northwestern, but they'll still be Phy Bates to the rest of the world.

THERE'S NO MORE DELICATE BUSINESS than selling supplies for the practical joker. Playing tricks on the customers is what keeps them buying, but the salesman must know his psychology; one joke the customer doesn't think funny may ruin everything. And so the salesmen at the joke counters are very carefully selected, now that the practical joke's having such a comeback. Although men enjoy the jokes the more, their wives do most of the buying, getting ready for parties. When they say they won't spend another cent they'll usually let loose of another quarter for a package of cigarets that turn into flowers. And then they'll buy some of the rubber pencils the salesman gives them to write their address for his mailing list.

ABNORMAL DROWSINESS.

MANY people—especially after they have passed middle life—when hardening of the arteries has brought on a rise in high blood pressure—have difficulty in wooing the goddess of sleep. But there is a condition—quite the opposite—which is characterized by recurring attacks of drowsiness, sometimes in conjunction with complete loss of power of the muscles. This malady—known as narcolepsy—either is increasing or physicians are recognizing it more frequently. Reports of its occurrence are numerous.

With some, the symptoms appear periodically. The outstanding sign—an irresistible desire to sleep—is more pronounced if the victim is carrying out some task that requires little fixed attention. Thus patients may observe that while knitting or writing they will become unconscious for a little while. As a rule the slumber is of short duration. It may terminate suddenly, the sufferer sitting upright with a jerk and opening the eyes widely, although a minute or two may be required before he will become aware of his surroundings.

We must not confuse this tendency, however, with that type of drowsiness which is experienced after meals or in a quiet, soothing environment. These incidents have little or nothing to do with our subject which is a definite, specific malady and is attended with such a pronounced lack of control over the muscles as to indicate an abnormal situation.

Recently, Ulrich reported the case of a woman, aged 54, who, despite every effort to remain awake, would fall asleep when engaged in any tedious procedure. Each attack was accompanied by inability to move. Occasionally, excitement or even hearty laughter would precipitate a "weakness" collapse. Treatment with benzedrine sulphate was employed, a small amount three times a day. She has now taken the drug for nearly two years with entire freedom from her difficulties. An attempt to reduce the dosage because of fear of forming a habit brought a partial return of the obvious signs of the ailment.

Another case—a healthy lad of 19—had exhibited the trouble since the age of 10. Every routine type of work led to sleep. Now and then a sudden onset—while walking along the street—would oblige him to grasp some object to keep from falling. Here again benzedrine sulphate was given with complete relief. There was no disturbance of the digestive tract as long as the drug was taken following meals. After using the medicine for fifteen months he complained of palpitation, irritation, and nervousness. It was then stopped, whereupon lethargy appeared in somewhat milder form.

There seems to be a lessening of the effect after prolonged use. For this reason—and because it is toxic to some individuals—it is recommended only with those patients who suffer from true narcolepsy. Furthermore, its administration should be interrupted with periods of rest, that is, it should not be given continuously.

Other authors have called attention to the fact that this valuable chemical is not tolerated well by young persons. The conclusion appears warranted, however, that the compound in question is more helpful in combating this overpowering propensity to slumber than any other chemical so far discovered. While there is no evidence of habit formation, nevertheless it may produce nervous attacks. Loss of appetite, a metallic taste in the mouth, and gasointestinal upsets may ensue. Instances of acute poisoning have been reported.

Certainly benzedrine should not be given to any one whose blood pressure is even moderately high. Caution is needed to the end that no one shall take the substance unless its use is carefully supervised by a skilled physician.

RECEDING GUMS.

R. J. A. writes: What can I do for receding gums? Is there any diet I can employ? I use a soft brush, but brushing my teeth is painful to the neck of the teeth although the gums do not bleed. Is a mouth wash with Dakin's solution beneficial?

REPLY.

The damage to your gums was inflicted years ago by brushing the teeth with a stiff brush. Decay is common in teeth from which the gums have receded. Have your teeth cleaned frequently by your dentist and ask him to prescribe the plan you should follow. Suitable mouth washes will not cure the condition but will aid in stopping its extension.

ON AIDING GROWTH.

H. A. writes: What would you suggest to aid a boy of 17 to grow taller?

REPLY.

Growth may not be complete for a year or two. In the meantime, obtain plenty of exercise out of doors—let muscles stretch. Nutrition is important and foods rich in vitamins are advised. Posture should be corrected if the spine is at all weak.

REMOVING BIRTHMARKS.

M. C. D. writes: Is there any way that birthmarks can be removed without pain or scarring?

REPLY.

Plastic surgery can remove birthmarks, but not without some slight scarring. X-ray or radium is most helpful in some cases. The earlier such blemishes are attacked, the better are the chances for removal.

CLEAR TITLE.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you be so kind as to explain the Torrens system to me? For instance, if I wanted to buy a home which is under the Torrens system, [1] what agreement would I get?

2. Would I have to pay according to the Torrens system?

3. Could I make my own agreements as to how many years I have to pay, according to the amount I'd pay monthly?

4. What difference is there in the Torrens system and the guaranty policy?

A. J. H.

1. Agreements are a matter of negotiations between you and the seller. Under the Torrens system the title is evidenced by a certificate executed by the county recorder as distinguished from an abstract or guaranty policy.

2. We do not understand the question.

3. The terms of payment would be agreed upon between the vendor and purchaser.

4. A guaranty policy is like a fire insurance policy except that the risk is defects in the title rather than fire damage.

A LESSON IN PROPAGANDA.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—On Nov. 30 evening newspaper headlines screamed "Japs Insult American Flag." The alleged insult consisted of Japanese sailors throwing an American flag into the Whangpoo river.

On Dec. 1 the morning newspapers carried the story that Japanese assertions that Japanese sailors had not thrown the United States flag into the Whangpoo river were confirmed by the United States consulate officials.

Moral: [1] Reserve judgment on reported outrages until the facts are ascertained; [2] it is to be regretted that newspapers adopt unverified sensational reports in order to increase circulation.

YAP THE JAP.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Why is the Illinois old age pension law carried out in such an unequal manner? It's a puzzle to the old people as many of them who were allowed the pension under the same circumstances and conditions are not treated alike. Some get $23 a month and some up to $30, and none of them knows why they get more or less than others.

FOR THE CLASS IN LOGIC.

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 1.—It is universally recognized by all civilized people that the people of all nations are incapable of governing themselves; and in recognition of that principle the people of all nations, including America, have delegated the business of governing to a government established for that express purpose. In the United States "We the people" have delegated this business of governing to the respective state and national governments. Ours is a republican form of government, a government by our chosen agents.

Governments once established have only one way of maintaining and perpetuating themselves and that way is by force. Force comes from the power behind the army and navy. War is a misnomer. The government is always using force in some manner, but unless this force becomes aggravated the people fail to detect it. When the people see and feel the government's force at work in maintaining the government then they call it war. To take from the government its only power of perpetuating itself and give that power into the hands of a people who have in the first instance recognized their inability to govern certainly seems silly.

ERNEST E. CUMMINGS.

ON THE TOBOGGAN.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 1.—Michelson smeared Hoover; events have smeared Roosevelt.

The 1937 Roosevelt depression has lowered investment and commodity values and increased unemployment to a greater extent in months than our former depression did in years. The country was involved with other nations in a worldwide landslide in the period following 1929; in 1937 Uncle Sam slides alone on Mr. Roosevelt's personal toboggan.

We gave one man more power than any President has ever held; we gave him more money to spend than any human being in this world has ever spent; we threw in good will, prestige, and a thumping congressional majority for good measure. All this the record shows.

In return he has given us the Roosevelt depression.

History may well bracket the names of Hoover and Roosevelt, saying of the latter: "Given an infinitly better chance he merely made a much worse mess of things."

EMERSON T. ANTHONY.

INTERESTING IF TRUE.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—I still think, and many thousands think, Leo High school the best high school football team in Chicago. When 16 and 17 year old boys play men that should be in college, that 26 to 0 defeat should be considered a win.

Make the boys on both teams produce birth certificates before the game. Eighteen years old should be the limit for high school boys when you consider they play football the beginning of the school year. Square deal for all or stop the charity game.

A STORY that escaped the papers—and probably Miss Jepson moaned about that—was of the famous singer's arrival in Dallas, Tex., for a concert engagement, seated in a swivel chair in the baggage coach. When Miss Jepson's manager made her traveling arrangements to get her from Fort Smith, Ark., to Dallas he scheduled her over a route that took from 7 in the morning until 9:30 at night, with two changes, because she could go Pullman all the way. Then it was discovered that she could make the trip in five and a half hours less time with only one change of train if she would forgo a Pullman part of the way. Miss Jepson chose that route.

The first part of the trip was passed comfortably enough, and the singer had a pleasant time reminiscing about Mary Garden and other singers with a waiter who operated a sort of a snack bar on the train and who formerly had been a waiter on the diner of the Chicago Civic tour train. After the change of trains Miss Jepson found herself in a coach with a wood burner that gave out so much heat she forsook the coach for the baggage car and the baggage man's swivel chair, where she remained the rest of the trip.

WINDY CITY note: Mr. and Mrs. Peter Funk are in town from Two Dot, Mont., for the stock show. The other night Mrs. Funk got ready for bed in their room on the thirty-second floor of the Morrison hotel and put her undergarments, a pair of pale pink panties and an undervest, on a chair in her room. The chair stood between two windows. Being Montana folks they like fresh air, so both windows were opened. In the morning the underclothing was gone. Had blown out of the window during the night.

A FAMILY in Libertyville had the pleasure of the youngest son's company for Thanksgiving turkey because of a goose. The young man, who is a scholarship student at Beloit college, is working his way through a liberal arts course. His restricted budget did not cover railroad fare home for Thanksgiving. The day before Thanksgiving while he was wielding a mop in one of the dormitory halls he thought of the annual intrafraternity cross-country run to be held that afternoon, with a valuable prize to the winner. As he had just been initiated into Sigma Chi, and liked to run anyhow, he decided to try for the honor of the house. He dropped his mop, donned a pair of long sweat pants, and showed up at the starting line just as the gun barked. He won easily, to the discomfiture of the contestants who had been training diligently.

The prize turned out to be a live goose. The young track champion dashed back to the dormitory with it under his arm, haggled with a housemaid for the cash equivalent of the goose, and got enough to take him as far as Crystal lake by train. From that point he got a ride into Libertyville in time for supper Wednesday evening.

107 TIMBERMEN SEIZE ISLAND IN SITDOWN STRIKE

Face Starvation; Demand Back Pay.

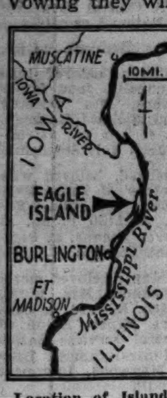
Burlington, Ia., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Vowing they will starve rather than give in, 107 timbermen held possession of Eagle Island, ten miles north of here, tonight, despite a shortage of food. They began a sitdown strike Saturday, refusing to leave the island until paid back wages they assert are due them.



Location of Island.

The strikers sent an air mail letter to President Roosevelt this afternoon appealing for aid in obtaining the pay, which amounts to several thousand dollars. Arrearages range from one to six weeks.

Last night the timbermen's supper consisted of twelve carp caught in the Mississippi river and today they ate lard and cornmeal. They have had no tobacco since Thursday.

Strikers Seize Boat.

The men live in quarters on the work boat which they seized when they went on strike. It contains a dining hall and fifty-four beds, and many of the men sleep on the floor. Half hour boat trips are made between the island and the shore to keep the channel from freezing.

"We haven't had a full meal since Sunday," said L. S. Lloyd, spokesman for the strikers, "but we intend to keep on no matter how hungry we get. We won't go back to work until we get our money if it takes all winter."

The strikers, who are not organized or affiliated with any trade union, started work with 100 other men late in September. Half the men refused to join the strike and went back to shore.

Hired to Clear Timber.

The timbermen were clearing trees from four islands which will be covered by water on completion of a project to construct a nine-foot channel above Burlington. The trees were being removed so they will not become uprooted, float downstream, and cause trouble at a new dam and locks near here.

Contract for the job was let to the Foundation Waterproofing company and Joseph P. Casey, both of 53 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago. Their bid was $65,520, which was $180 less than the government estimate.

Sureties for the contract are Lawrence O'Connell of Chicago, a securities examiner for the Illinois industrial commission, and his father, John O'Connell. Government regulations do not require bonding companies for such projects.

Crews Forced to Leave.

Lloyd, the strikers' spokesman, said the sureties plan to take over the timber clearing, with which Casey and the Foundation company apparently have been unsuccessful. Lloyd declared some crews were sent to the islands Wednesday, but strikers refused to permit them to remain.

A Burlington attorney representing the strikers expressed hope tonight that a conference will be arranged with the O'Connells before Monday.

SENATORS WILL QUIZ HENRY W. EDGERTON, APPOINTED TO BENCH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—An inquiry presaging another controversy over President Roosevelt's intentions regarding the federal courts will begin tomorrow when Henry W. Edgerton, Cornell university law professor, takes the witness stand before a senate judiciary subcommittee.

Henry W. Edgerton. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Edgerton, a radical who recently was appointed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals by Mr. Roosevelt, will be questioned regarding his theories of judicial review. In an article prepared for the Cornell law quarterly, he not only denounced a long list of Supreme court decisions, but challenged the court's right to pass upon acts of congress.

Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.], chairman of the subcommittee, who was a leader of the opposition to President Roosevelt's scheme to pack the Supreme court, says that regardless of the committee's action, he will carry the fight against Edgerton's confirmation to the senate floor.

He was the second official to be attacked here within three weeks.

BLOCK EVIDENCE OF COUNTERPLOT IN BOMBING TRIAL

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Government prosecutors won an important point today in the trial of thirty-six defendants charged with a railroad bombing conspiracy—an outgrowth of union warfare in the Illinois coal fields from 1932 to 1935—when Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle ruled that the defense could not present evidence of a counterplot. Two defendants, both of whom are members of the Progressive Miners of America, took the stand during the day and denied any part in the bombings.

Defense attorneys, headed by Arthur M. Fitzgerald, attempted to introduce testimony of violence committed by the United Mine Workers of America, the union from which the Progressives bolted in 1932. Fitzgerald contended that the United Mine Workers were the aggressors in the conflict and, through a counter-conspiracy, gave provocation to the Progressives for the train bombings.

Defense Blames Lewis.

The defense also asserts that the present prosecution was instigated by John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, who also is chief of the United Mine Workers.

The Progressive union is a member of the American Federation of Labor, while the powerful U. M. W. A. formed the nucleus of the C. I. O. when it withdrew from the A. F. of L.

Among the defendants who testified were Anton Victor Gent and Anthony J. Chunes, both of Springfield. The government charged that Gent was involved in the bombing of an Illinois Central freight train the night of Dec. 22, 1934, south of Springfield, and also asserted that he shot and wounded George Shannon, a railroad guard, on Jan. 6, 1935.

Denies Wounding Train Guard.

Gent's defense to the bombing charge was an alibi. He said that he was at home asleep at the time, as previously testified by members of his family. He said that he was shot Jan. 13, 1935, while entering the Progressive union headquarters in Springfield and denied that he had wounded Shannon a week before.

Chunes testified he was employed as a bartender in his father-in-law's saloon on June 4, 1935, the date on which the government alleged he was seen near the Illinois Central tracks, south of Springfield. An unexploded bomb had been found at that location two days before. Chunes said he was working in the saloon on both occasions.

GREEN AND LEWIS END PARLEYS ON A DOUBTFUL NOTE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—John L. Lewis and William Green ended their face to face peace conference tonight, announcing they had reached no conclusion or recommendation for a united labor movement.

Emerging alone from the conference room the American Federation of Labor president said he and Lewis and their two aids, comprising a special subcommittee, would report the results of their two day negotiations to the full committees Dec. 21. Green and George M. Harrison, chief of the A. F. of L. negotiating committee, then hurried away.

C. I. O. Leader Lewis and Phillip Murray, his chief strategist, stopped long enough to discuss briefly the windup of the conference. Asked whether the peace negotiations were left in status quo, Lewis replied: "That is a fair assumption."

A wage-hour bill with formidable teeth in it will be urged upon congress by the A. F. of L., Green disclosed before his conference with Lewis tonight. The measure would provide a flat minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and a flat maximum work week of 40 hours, for workers in interstate businesses.

PROFESSOR HIRED TO HELP DIRECT RADIO PROGRAMS

Given Power to Reject Unsuitable Material.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

While educators and broadcasters were indulging in considerable name calling here earlier in the week, the Ruthrauff & Ryan Advertising agency took a step that may prove significant in the future of education and entertainment by radio. This agency, which has produced several of radio's more successful programs, has engaged Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, dean of the university college and professor of psychology at Northwestern university as well as chairman of the institution's radio committee, as psychological adviser. In this capacity he will examine all radio program material passing through the Chicago office, with power to reject it if he does not believe it sound in its social and educational impacts.

By appointing a nationally known educator with experience in the radio field the agency hopes to check the rising tide of criticism against certain types of programs, particularly those directed at children. [Much of this, the agency believes, comes from groups in no position to know whether a program has any social value or not.] Like business in general, advertising agencies have been much on the defensive in recent years. This one has decided on a positive, effective, offensive program in reply to its detractors. It believes that a program can have sound social merit and be commercially profitable at the same time.

A few years ago a major network announced that it had appointed a Columbia university psychology expert as consultant on programs. There was a great fanfare of publicity and that was about all. If the professor was consulted, his advice apparently was not followed. At any rate the chain still airs many unacceptable programs. One reason for that is the fact that advertising agencies produce so many of the network programs.

There are agencies that don't like to submit to blue penciling by a network's program acceptance department. Thus broadcasters often find themselves airing programs of which they do not approve.

It will be interesting to watch the results of the action of this agency. If others follow along and choose men of broad vision and experience and give them carte blanche, unquestionably radio programs may be improved.

Byron O. Jones, for many years chairman of the Sunshine committee of the Chicago Rotary club, will speak at 12:35 p. m. today on the W-G-N Midday service on "Sunshine Good Fellows." The Rotary club is active each year in the Good Fellow movement.

A between acts broadcast during the Junior league's presentation of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at the Grand Opera house will be aired at 11:15 a. m. today on WIND. Jimmy Dudley is to interview Junior league leaders.

Brooks Connally pulled himself out of a tough spot at WIND. He is the man at the mike in an interview program titled the Man at the Mill. He interviews steel workers as they check out of plants. On a near zero morning he knew few workers could be lured to an outdoors microphone without bait. So he brought along a five gallon can of steaming coffee. It worked. He is thinking of renaming his program The Coffee Jug!

Jack Denny has been engaged to follow Paul Whiteman at the Drake hotel and on W-G-N-Mutual, effective Friday, Dec. 17.

CENSUS FIGURES PUT POPULATION AT 129,257,000

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The population of the United States was 129,257,000 last July 1, according to estimates made public today by the federal bureau of census. This represents an increase of 828,000 over the previous year.

The population of Illinois was estimated as 7,878,000, an increase of 33,000 over the preceding year and of 147,346 over two years ago.

The bureau reported Kansas was the only state to lose population, the total number of residents there declining 22,000 to 1,864,000. All other states, except Nebraska, South Dakota, Rhode Island, and New Mexico, whose population remained stationary, showed gains.

Inhalator Squad Works to Save Life of 2 Pound Baby

An inhalator squad early today was apparently winning an overnight fight to save the life of a girl baby weighing two pounds and one ounce, who was born yesterday afternoon in the Burnside hospital. The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smets, 10747 Michigan avenue, was born prematurely and placed in an incubator. Last night when her breathing seemed impaired Dr. Morris Yampolsky, 11250 Indianapolis boulevard, the attending physician, called for aid and inhalator squad No. 3, under Lieut. Frank Watson, responded and administered oxygen to the baby.

Young Lawyer to Give His Blood to Aid Secretary

In an effort to save the life of his and his father's secretary Thomas Hodges, 740 Fillmore street, Gary, Ind., a young lawyer, will give blood to her in a transfusion at the Methodist hospital, Gary, at 10 o'clock this morning. The secretary is Mrs. Ethel Holmes, 34 years old, 701 Van Buren street, Gary. She has served Hodges and his father, former Mayor William F. Hodges, as secretary for six years. Mrs. Holmes is near death from leukemia, a rare disease in which the blood contains an excess of white corpuscles.

FRED R. BABCOCK, EX-CHICAGOAN, IS DEAD IN PARIS

Frederick Reynolds Babcock, 72 years old, for many years a resident of Chicago, died in a Paris hospital Thursday evening after a long illness. His only surviving relative is a nephew, Robert S. Babcock of Winnetka, manager of the Mather tower. Mr. Babcock's wife, the former Abby Kettelle, died at Nice, France, in 1934. He was born in Milwaukee and came to Chicago to study law following graduation from the University of Michigan. He retired from law practice in 1906 to enter the brokerage firm of Finley Barrell & Co. He moved to New York in 1910 and to Nice about ten years ago. Mr. Babcock's body will be returned in the spring for burial at Wheaton.

DAUGHTER LEFT BULK OF ESTATE BY MRS. DEXTER

The will of Mrs. Josephine Moore Dexter, filed yesterday in Boston, Mass., leaves the bulk of her $300,000 estate to her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick, of Chicago. Mrs. Dexter, widow of Wirt Dexter, former Chicago lawyer, died in Boston Nov. 16.

Mrs. Dexter remembered three faithful household employés, Cassie Maloney, Nora Holmes, and Frances Farley, with bequests of $15,000 each. Another, Ellen Carey, is given $10,000. To her sister, Mrs. Ella P. Brown, Mrs. Dexter gives $5,000 and a residence at Elk Rapids, Mich.

REPORT ESTATE OF M'KINSEY MAY TOTAL $825,000

Probate Court Names Widow Administratrix.

Letters of administration estimating the estate of James O. McKinsey, chairman and senior executive of Marshall Field & Co., at $275,000, were issued yesterday in the Lake county Probate court in Waukegan several hours before funeral services were held in the Fourth Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Delaware place.

The estate is to be divided equally among the widow, Mrs. Alice Louise McKinsey, and twin sons, Richard and Robert, 16 years old. Attorney John Bishop, representing the family, said the estimated value was tentative. He indicated that the final inventory of real estate and stock holdings will be three times as much, or about $875,000.

Furnishes Surety Bond.

Mrs. McKinsey, as administratrix of the estate, furnished a $350,000 surety bond, pending final approval by Probate Judge Martin C. Decker of the letters.

Mr. McKinsey, who died Tuesday at the age of 48, was given $313,929 by the company last September in lieu of his exercise of an option to purchase 20,000 shares of company stock at $10 a share. He had bought 10,000 shares at a profit of $105,000 in February and at the time of his death retained an option on an additional 20,000 shares.

The petition for the letters of administration placed his real estate holdings at $10,000 and his personal property at $265,000. The McKinseys maintained homes at 1570 North Waukegan road, Lake Forest, and at 1500 Lake Shore drive in Chicago.

Civic Leaders Attend Services.

At the funeral services, State street executives and civic leaders mingled with store employés. Mayor Edward J. Kelly headed a group of honorary pallbearers, including Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Fred W. Sargent, John T. Pirie, Oscar Mayer, and Sterling Morton.

The Rev. Harrison Ray Anderson officiated. After the service the body was shipped to Middletown, Mo., where burial will take place tomorrow.

COURT UPSETS NEW DODGE TO AVOID ALIMONY

Sidney Galler, owner of a liquor store at 74 West Madison street, declared yesterday he did not intend to spend a dime for support of his wife, Myrtle, or their child, Floyd, 3 years old. His attorney, Reuben Liffschin, challenged the right of any court to award temporary maintenance while a cross-bill is pending.

"A quirk in the new law has opened the way for another racket," retorted Mrs. Galler's attorney, Norman Becker. "In order to avoid paying alimony many husbands file cross-bills, and then the hearing is delayed indefinitly."

Judge Philip J. Finnegan ruled that Galler must pay $20 a week pending a full hearing Dec. 20. Mrs. Galler is suing for separate maintenance, and her husband for divorce. Both charge desertion.

WELTER LEARNS YOU CAN'T FOOL A GYPSY WOMAN

N. J. Welter was in fine fettle yesterday when he left his home at 516 Spring street, Aurora. As he was strolling along, whistling, a gypsy woman asked him for a direction. Then she slapped Welter on the hip and said: "Mister, you're sick."

"Never felt better in my life," Welter retorted.

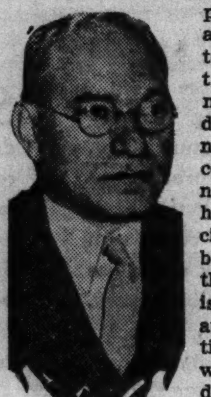
GOOD FELLOWS QUOTA DOUBLED BY NEWS AGENTS

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Joseph Epstein, for twenty-one years president of the Chicago Newspaper Carriers' association, will tell you proudly that the 154 members have done a nice business delivering copies of seven newspapers to homes in this city and neighboring suburbs this year. But he is prouder that at this Christmas time these men will donate and deliver 100 baskets full of food, candy, and toys to the homes of needy families, double their previous contribution.



Joseph Epstein.

Byron O. Jones, chairman of the Chicago Rotary Club Sunshine committee, which will supervise the delivery of nearly 200 Good Fellow baskets, will speak on "Sunshine Good Fellows" over W-G-N between 12:35 and 1 o'clock.

There are hundreds of Good Fellow families awaiting your generosity. Their names are on file at THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Good Fellow bureau, 1 South Dearborn street.

A big ulster of luxurious Scotch Fleece, whose depth of nap and unusual softness is due to the curl of wools sheared from sheep raised in certain sections of Scotland. Although soft and resilient to the touch, the curl of the fabric provides the coat with resistance to wear that seems in strange contrast to the richness of its appearance. And its big ulster style with roomy slash pockets, protective high collar, and its snug warmth provide welcome protection on the blustery, zero days of winter.

LEGAL BOOKIES HELD BEST BET TO AID BUDGET

City Weighs Means for Meeting Deficit.

Mayor Kelly, whose bill to legalize handbooks was passed by the state legislature in 1935 but vetoed by Gov. Horner, disclosed two plans yesterday for obtaining revenue for the city treasury from local bookies who now operate illegally and without regulation.

The proposals were discussed at a conference of the mayor with four members of the council finance committee as the city's best chance of overcoming an anticipated deficit of $2,739,000 in the 1938 budget.

Omaha Ordinance Studied.

One of the plans, the mayor said, is patterned on an Omaha, Neb., ordinance adopted there last April. Without mentioning gambling, the Omaha law levies a $500 annual fee on a handbook which is described as a place where the public congregates to receive race horse information and where the owner of the place obtains remuneration therefrom.

The second plan, which the mayor said he preferred if it can be legally adopted, would enable the city to license accredited agents of race tracks, who would operate in the nature of a handbook in accepting bets but would place the bets at the track by wire. Such a plan is in operation in London, England, he said.

"It appears that licensing of handbooks would be a good way to find the needed revenue," Mayor Kelly declared. He added that Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes has been instructed to determine the legality of such measures.

Public Hearing Monday.

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee, said the first public hearing on next year's budget will be held Monday. The proposed 1938 budget calls for expenditures of approximately $58,085,008. This includes $3,300,000 needed to restore pre-depression salaries of city employés.

The license committee yesterday recommended that the council renew an ordinance dropped in 1933 which imposed a tax of 3 per cent on the gross receipts of professional bicycle races, hocky games, and professional ice skating events. It was estimated this would bring $50,000 annual revenue.

STRANDED CIRCUS ACTORS TO GIVE BENEFIT TONIGHT

The educated cow, the intellectual chimpanzees, the elephant who walks a four inch plank and turns around in the middle of it, and nearly all of the trapeze artists, aerialists, jugglers, clowns, and others who found themselves unpaid after a benefit circus closed here Wednesday, were hopeful last night.

They decided late yesterday to give three benefit performances of their circus in the Coliseum at 8:15 o'clock tonight, 2:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night. The unpaid performers and property men will benefit entirely from the proceeds.

Parolee Found with Gun in Shirt Is Sent to Jail

A paroled convict, Walter McGrath, 25 years old, 7208 South Morgan street, was sent to the county jail yesterday when he was unable to pay a $100 fine imposed by Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky in Cicero on a charge of disorderly conduct. Police found a revolver inside his shirt.

Quits Under Fire

ALBERT I. MARINELLI.

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Albert I. Marinelli, Tammany district leader, resigned today as New York county clerk in the face of charges by Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey that he was unfit for office and was the political ally of criminals and racketeers.

The resignation, sent to Gov. Lehman at Albany and made public there by the governor, is effective immediately. In an accompanying letter Marinelli declared he resigned to spare others from the suffering and humiliation that would result from a public hearing on Mr. Dewey's charges.

Dewey declared Marinelli had been an associate of Charles [Lucky] Luciano, imprisoned vice racketeer, and had received notorious underworld characters in the private office of his clubhouse during the six years of his political leadership.

WOMAN ACCUSER FACES LOTHARIO IN FELONY COURT

No wrinkle of worry creased the handsome brow of George L. Trier, 36 years old, the Lothario with prematurely gray hair who admitted swindling three romantic women out of $12,000, when he appeared in Felony court yesterday. A charge of operating a confidence game was continued to Dec. 16 by Judge Joseph A. Graber to give defense attorneys time to prepare their case.

Trier paid no attention to the reproachful glance cast at him by Miss Elizabeth Ettlinger, 30 years old, of the Piccadilly hotel, 5107 Blackstone avenue. She refused to discuss her charge that Trier got $7,050 from her after he promised to marry her.

Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin said Trier admitted receiving $2,000 from one Maxine whom he is—or was—scheduled to marry on Christmas eve, and $3,000 from a married woman. Trier would not reveal their identities because, he said, to do so might break their hearts.

Observe 263d Anniversary of Landing of Marquette

In memory of the day, 263 years ago, when Pere Jacques Marquette beached his canoe on the banks of the Chicago river and became the region's first white settler, students and public officials met yesterday at the Michigan avenue bridge for the city's annual ceremonial. Judge Joseph Burke, Vice Consul Francois Alabrune of the French consulate, Horatio Tocco, attorney for the Italian consul, and Daniel J. McGrath, Irish Free State consul, spoke briefly. Students from Mundelein, Rosary, Loyola, and Xavier colleges placed wreaths at the foot of the Marquette pylon at the north end of the bridge.

Unhappy Young Owners Sell Pet Calves at Show.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Children from the country and city—27,000 of them—met at the International emphitheater at Union stockyards yesterday and took over the International Live Stock exposition. It was children's day—a sad day for the farm boys and girls who bid farewell to their pet baby beeves but a happy day for wide-eyed youngsters from Chicagoland schools who were admitted free to the wonders and thrills of the show.

After a glorious week of showing their animals and sight seeing in the city, the 270 young exhibitors in the junior feeding contest were forced to face that sad moment when they tell their calves good-by and wish them good luck on their trip across the bridge of sighs in Packingtown. The 274 junior baby beeves were led to the auctioneer's block and sold to the highest bidder, bringing $41,996. They averaged 995 pounds and sold for an average of $15.40 a hundred pounds, or $1.68 more than last year.

Dollars and Tears.

But money apparently means little to a young man or woman who is giving up a docile friend of the barnyard. Calf dollars jingling in their pockets were not enough to stem the tears. Some lowered their heads behind an animal's body or a bail of straw to hide their emotions, but all the time they were squeezing the soft ear of a calf or twiddling their fingers in the bush of a tail they have combed and brushed a thousand times.

Even Homer Graber had difficulty parting with his calf. And he is the boy from Mineral Point, Wis., whose pocket was bulging with $1,320 paid him for Jerry, his Hereford calf that won the championship, the highest award in the junior feeding contest. His calf brought $1.10 a pound and weighed 1,200 pounds.

Jack Mahlstedt of Geneseo, Ill., exhibitor of the reserve champion steer in the contest, was paid $576.30 for his calf. It brought 51 cents a pound and weighed 1,130 pounds.

Charles Francis of New Lenox, Ill., 12 years old, boasted to reporters that he did not cry when he told his white-faced Hereford, Edwood Repeater, good-by when the calf was turned over to its new owner at $14.50 a hundred. "Sure I felt sad," he admitted, "but I didn't cry. I never cry."

He got an idea from a fellow exhibitor, Gerald Harper, 17 years old, of Morris, Ill., that he would try fattening an Angus calf for next year's show. Harper got $17 a hundred for one of his Angus calves and $15.75 for the other.

More Farmers Attend.

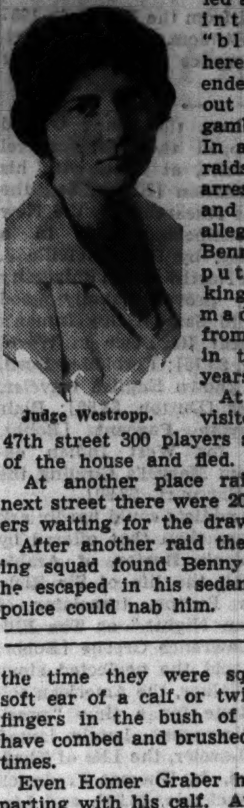
Officials of the show said last night that fully a third more farmers attended the International this year. Farmers dominated the day crowds and packed the judging rings in the various departments during the week. City spectators showed up in greatest numbers at night programs. The show management found them displaying an unusual interest in the live stock, crop, and educational exhibits that help to tell the story of the farmers' present day problems.

City farm owners were represented around the auction rings where breeding animals were sold.

Late reports from the sales rings show that the grand champion barrow, Champ, a Poland China, exhibited by Arnold Moore, a 4-H club boy from Union City, Okla., brought $1.26 2-3 a pound. Illini Repeater, the pure bred Southdown that won the grand championship wether award for the University of Illinois, sold for $1.05 a pound.

WOMAN JUDGE LEADS CLEVELAND POLICE IN POLICY SHOP RAIDS

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Municipal Judge Lillian M. Westropp led a police drive into Cleveland's "black belt" here today in an endeavor to clean out the policy gambling racket. In a series of raids the police arrested two men and two women, alleged agents of Benny Mason, reputed policy king, said to have made $1,000,000 from that game in the last five years.



Judge Westropp.

At one place visited on East 47th street 300 players swarmed out of the house and fled.

At another place raided on the next street there were 200 more players waiting for the drawing.

IERC CHAIRMAN SAYS LYONS WILL KEEP HIS 2 $5,000 RELIEF JOBS

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, will keep his other job as executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission despite demands of township supervisors from northern Illinois counties that he be dismissed by the IERC. This statement was made last night by John C. Martin, state treasurer and chairman of the IERC.

"The commission is getting $25,000 worth of ability from Mr. Lyons for $5,000 a year," Martin said. "He is entirely capable of handling several more jobs in addition to the two he has."

Lyons gets $5,000 a year as Chicago relief administrator. At a meeting in Rockford on Thursday the township supervisors complained that he has two lucrative jobs.

2d Jury Frees Pastor of Slaying His Wife

Beckley, W. Va., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Rev. Monta H. Ball was acquitted today by the second jury to try him on a charge of slaying his second wife, 29 years old. A previous jury was released after it had failed to reach a verdict. The defense insisted Mrs. Ball died after a shotgun accidentally discharged as her husband pulled it from beneath a bed at their Rock Creek home.

British Flying Boat Starts Survey Trip to Australia

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The flying boat Centaurus, a type of craft designed to carry mails to Australia next summer, hopped off for New Zealand today on a 30,000 mile survey flight. Its commander, Capt. J. W. Burgess, expects to reach Sydney, Australia, Dec. 24.

Entertainment Values Linger in Retrospect

BY RUSSELL MAC FALL.

A backward glance over the year's reading reveals some books still standing out strong and clear in memory, like peaks along a mountain range, while others have been lost in the mists of mediocrity.

Three come to mind as a group because they have substance, individuality, and humor. They are: The Education of Hyman Kaplan, by Leonard Q. Ross [Harcourt-Brace, $2], the adventures of an immigrant in the wonderland of English grammar; 400 Million Customers, by Carl Crow [Harpers, $3], which is crowded with refreshing observations on Chinese character and business methods by an American who has had his own advertising agency in Shanghai for a quarter of a century; and the comic opera orientalism of Ernest Bramah's The Return of Kai Lung [Sheridan House, $2.50], which unrolls, with all the ceremony of a mandarin taking tea, a witty satire on the modern detective story.

Agnes Rothery has written another of her superb accounts of the Scandinavian countries in Denmark: Kingdom of Reason [Viking, $3]. Denmark has taken the advice of Voltaire's philosopher and tends her garden while the rest of the world struggles, so Miss Rothery's story is a peaceful pastoral.

It is quite a step to Brazil, but even in Rio [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50] former Ambassador Hugh Gibson finds tropical gardens to admire, old furniture to collect, and strange birds and beasts to delight him. The Paris of the New World is a pleasant place to visit in his company.

⁂

Several notable American poets have published collections within the year. Robinson Jeffers has lost none of his prophetic fire or strength in Such Counsels You Gave to Me [Random, $2.50], nor has he made any concessions to those who prefer sweetness and light.

Prof. Robert Hillyer writes with untroubled ease in his masterly A Letter to Robert Frost and Others [Knopf, $2]. His sedate measures come as a relief from the turgid nervousness of most present day poets. For those who prefer poetry which must be wooed and won, Wallace Stevens' The Man with the Blue Guitar [Knopf, $2] will be the year's favorite.

⁂

Russia's greatest poet, Alexander Pushkin, is the subject of a notable biography by Prof. Ernest J. Simmons [Harvard, $4], written to coincide with the centenary of Pushkin's death in a duel.

In an allied field, one of the most favorably received books of the year is Inside Out: An Introduction to Autobiography, by E. Stuart Bates [Sheridan House, $5], which garners precious bits from hundreds of books in which writers have revealed themselves.

A second volume of his fine biography of Richard Wagner [Knopf, $5] brings Ernest Newman's life of the music master through the stormy years of political and musical revolution before 1860. Carlos Chavez, the Mexican composer and conductor, is another revolutionary in Toward a New Music [Norton, $2], in which he strikes out boldly for a socialized music of the future through the use of modern mechanical devices.

Highlights of a Year's Reading

BY PERCY WOOD.

The one hundred or more books which made up one man's reading during the year now closing were chosen more or less at random and in accordance with rather vague tastes. It was not balanced reading. Fiction predominated; biography and memoirs ran a close second, and travel was third. The field of essays was represented only by Thomas Mann's Freud, Goethe, and Wagner [Knopf, $2], and all the poetry read was Edna St. Vincent Millay's Conversation at Midnight [Harpers, $2]. The stand is fearlessly taken, however, that these two books stood at the top of their respective lists.

High among the novels were Europa in Limbo [Scribners, $2.75], Robert Briffault's worthy sequel to "Europa"; the Harper prize novel, The Seven Who Fled, by Frederic Prokosch [Harpers, $2.50]; Ernest Hemingway's To Have and Have Not [Scribners, $2.50]; the South African epic, The Turning Wheels, by Stuart Cloete [Houghton, $2.50]; Paul Horgan's A Lamp on the Plains [Harpers, $2.50], and John Steinbeck's pitiless Of Mice and Men [Covici, $2].

Novels of the sea published this year reached a high with the H. M. Tomlinson offering, Pipe All Hands [Harpers, $2.50], for its broad picture of freighter life, but hardly less competent, although more restricted, was Roger Vercel's Salvage [Harpers, $2.50], an absorbing tale of marine rescue. Another of Vercel's works to be translated from the French in 1937 was Lena [Random, $2.50], a heartbreaking romance of war in the Balkans.

Tom Harrison, the young Oxford biologist, topped the year's travel writing, for one, at least, with his Savage Civilization [Knopf, $4], the stories of his researches in the New Hebrides archipelago. Life in a Haitian Valley, by Prof. Melville J. Herskovits of Northwestern university [Knopf, $4], proved equally good reading as did Samuel Guy Inman's Latin America: Its Place in World Life [Willett, $3.75]; Forbidden Road, by the well known English traveler, Rosita Forbes [Dutton, $3.50]; Blair Niles' Peruvian Pageant [Bobbs, $3.50], and, for West Indian enthusiasts, Tom Marvel's Circling the Caribbean [Harcourt, $2.50].

Biography addicts could hardly ask for better fare than that offered by Seton Dearden's Burton of Arabia [McBride, $3], the life of Sir Richard Francis Burton, translator of "The Arabian Nights," or The Filibuster, by Lawrence Greene [Bobbs, $3.50], who told the neglected story of William Walker, the American soldier of fortune for a time "president" of Nicaragua. Lately issued were Great Leveler, the Life of Thaddeus Stevens, by Thomas Frederick Woodley [Stackpole, $3.50], and Lincoln's Rise to Power, by William E. Baringer [Little Brown, $4], which will interest students of American politics.

Unusual and Intriguing Selections Included in This Reader's Choices

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

One of the most unusual books of the year was a slim little volume by Herbert C. Lewis called Gentleman Overboard [Viking, $1.50]. It is the story of one man's life, viewed in dramatic retrospect as he struggles against drowning.

For a discriminating reader is Louis Adamic's gentle, sensitive, artistic word-portrait of an old, old house in Guatemala, called The House in Antigua [Harpers, $2.50].

Grim but intriguing to any one interested in psychology or in criminal law is The Trial of Lizzie Borden, with a History of the Case, edited by Edmund Pearson [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50]. It is as exciting and hair-raising a thriller as any mystery story. Mr. Pearson's analysis of the case is simple, direct, and graphic. Then follows the record of the trial itself.

From horror to howls of mirth. James Thurber ribs modern psychiatry and the self-help authors in his Let Your Mind Alone [Harpers, $2.50]. His essay, "Memories of D. H. Lawrence," whom he never met, is alone worth the price of admission.

⁂

Two very good books were written by Evelyn Scott this year. One is a novel, Bread and a Sword [Scribners, $2.75]. The other is the story of Tennessee and her own childhood there, Background in Tennessee [McBride, $2.75].

A most poignant love story is These Foolish Things, by Michael Sadleir [Putnam, $2.50]. It is an intensely human book, written in the first person.

Recommended List on Travel and Adventure

BY AL CHASE.

This season's crop of travel and adventure books has been slightly smaller than in former years but the standard of readability has been higher and the format more attractive in most cases. Publishers gradually are learning that a map adds immensely to the pleasure of armchair adventuring and most of the fall volumes on exploration are well charted.

Following are a few of the outstanding additions that can be recommended for the travel and adventure shelf:

South by Thunderbird, by Hudson Strode [Random House, $3], one of the best written and most entertaining books on South America in many a year.

Tombs, Travel and Trouble, by Lawrence Griswold [Hillman-Curl, $3], briskly picturing sixteen years of highly exciting adventure on three continents; one of the best books of its kind in years.

Take Her Down, by T. B. Thompson [Sheridan House, $2.50], a hilariously funny account of life in a Yankee submarine during the world war; fantastic, fast moving, and thrilling.

Petticoat Vagabond, by Neill James [Scribner, $2.75], the vivacious autobiography of a young woman who worked her way twice around the world.

One Man Caravan, by Robert Edison Fulton Jr. [Harcourt Brace, $3], a fast moving account of a lone trip around the world on a motorcycle.

Beam Ends, by Errol Flynn [Longmans Green, $2], a rollicking small boat voyage in the antipodes by the cinema star and three companions.

Free Lance, by E. Alexander Powell [Harcourt Brace, $3.50]; Blood on the Moon, by Linton Wells [Houghton Mifflin, $3], and Living Again, by Felix Riesenberg [Doubleday-Doran, $3], are among the season's best autobiographies of adventure-seeking Americans.

SLOGUM HOUSE
By Mari Sandoz
Author of "Old Jules"

"Sweep and power as strong as a tornado and as devastating . . . essentially the story of Gulla Slogum and her ambition to show her husband's family that a river rat can break the spirit of a highly bred creature . . . Many may find it shocking, but . . . 'Slogum House' is an unforgettable book and Gulla Slogum an unforgettable character."—Rose C. Feld in the N. Y. Herald Tribune "Books."

"Introduces to the ranks of contemporary novelists a new and original and arresting personality. There are dozens of scenes which will stick in the reader's mind like burrs in a saddle blanket."—Margaret Wallace in the N. Y. Times Book Review.

"Brutal, full of blood and bitterness, but it has in it prairie power. You say to yourself that no woman could invent such a female as Gulla . . . who set up Slogum House, a tavern for teamsters, a bawdy house for womanless men, a hideout for outlaws, a spider web in which she held her children and her husband enmeshed, whence she hoped to snare a whole county so that she could go back to Ohio and set up a Slogum home higher on the hill than any of the sisters who had scorned her."—Lewis Gannett in the N. Y. Herald Tribune.

"There are readers whom it will gratify beyond any American novel of its time, and there are others whom it will merely appall. The only reader impossible to imagine is the one who can turn its pages unswayed by some extreme of emotion almost as violent as the actions and passions it records."—Wilson Follett in the Atlantic Monthly.

CHRISTMAS BOOK SECTION

Year's Literary Parade Passes in Mass Review

[Save the following story and list of books to aid in your Christmas shopping.]

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Public interest in books is definitly on the up and up. In 1935 the total number of books published in the United States was 8,766. In 1936 it was 10,436. This year the total unquestionably will be greater, for already the number of books received for review exceeds last year's. The official count will be published the middle of January.

Only about one quarter of any year's output pass through the hands of the literary editor of a great metropolitan newspaper—technical books, text books, books destined for highly specialized publics, and reprints rarely come for review.

Thus far this year 2,631 books have been received for comment. It is not an easy matter to choose from that number the hundred odd which are most significant. The following survey of the year's outstanding books may omit some favorites of yours, but it includes those books judged best by the authors' best friend and severest critic, the public; those recommended by the booksellers, and those relished as works of art by the literary critic.

Historical Novels.

Northwest Passage, by Kenneth Roberts [Doubleday-Doran, $2.75], is an epic record of the French and Indian wars and of one man's dream of a northwest passage to the orient.

The Turning Wheels, by Stuart Cloete [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50], and They Seek a Country, by Francis Brett Young [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75], are both unforgettable panoramas of the Boer trek of 1836, Stuart Cloete's more concerned with the physical, Francis Brett Young's with the political hazards. "The Turning Wheels" the lustier, crueler, more vivid.

And So—Victoria, by Vaughan Wilkins [Macmillan, $2.50], is a tale, like "Gone With the Wind," which has everything in it, every emotion of every class of society in the generation preceding Victoria's accession.

Young Henry of Navarre, by Heinrich Mann [Knopf, $3], is a brilliant fictional revaluation of a figure already better known fictionally than factually.

So Great a Man, by David Pilgrim [Harpers, $3], has as hero Napoleon in the days when he was master of his ambition and before it became master of him.

No Hearts to Break, by Susan Ertz [Appleton-Century, $2.50], tells of the overweening ambition of Betsy Patterson, who was married to Napoleon's youngest brother but never spoke to the emperor.

The First Rebel, by Neil Swanson [Farrar & Rinehart, $3], is a thrilling rewriting of actual historical material of the American colonies.

American Novels.

To Have and Have Not, by Ernest Hemingway [Scribners, $2.50], is a somewhat brutal tale of a man completely without physical fear, not Mr. Hemingway's masterpiece, but done with such power as to make it memorable for sheer writing.

Rumbin Galleries, by Booth Tarkington [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50], is a, at times, hilarious tale of the picture selling racket, with a hero who would make a good comic strip character.

The Enemy Gods, by Oliver La Farge [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50], tells movingly of a young Indian who tragically tries to be white and then to be Indian again.

Some for the Glory, by Louis Zara

The Inquiring Reporter

The Inquiring Reporter visited six Chicago bookshops as the most likely places to find people interested in books and questioned the shoppers.

THE QUESTION.

THE ANSWERS.

Ed Gordon, a commercial artist, was immersed in a technical art book when the Inquiring Reporter approached him. Of the unusually large number of art books published this year Mr. Gordon chose "An Artist in America," by Thomas Benton, and "The Arts," by Hendrik Willem van Loon. His first choice, however, was an established authority on the subject, "The Art Spirit," an artist's talks about painting, by Robert Henri.

Miss Eleanor Tomlin, 1228 North State street, secretary, must attract inquiring reporters, as we discovered that another CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter taking pictures of the hats women are wearing this winter, also interviewed her. Miss Tomlin wanted "Tortilla Flat," which established John Steinbeck's reputation, rather than his popular "Of Mice and Men," published early this year. Her other two selections were "The Seven Who Fled," by Frederic Prokosch, and "The Wind from the Mountains," by Trygve Gulbranssen.

Louis Greenzeit of 1337 South Central Park avenue, an operating engineer, was looking over the latest nonfiction books. He immediately named the very recently published "Military History of the World War," by Girard Lindsley McEntee, as his first choice. Robert McElroy's also very new two volume biography of Jefferson Davis was a quick second, and Eleanor Roosevelt's autobiography, "This Is My Story," was his third choice.

Miss Derelle Childs, 197 Craig place, Lombard, a secretary, was browsing in a book department. She was most interested in music, and wanted a copy of "A Book of the Symphony," by B. H. Haggin, which analyzes for the layman the great symphonies that have been recorded for the phonograph. Kenneth Roberts' "Northwest Passage" and Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came" Miss Childs would also like to have.

Harold Nelson, 7735 Haskins avenue, stockroom clerk, was engrossed in "The Trailer for Pleasure and Business," by Kimball and Larned, which, out of many books published about trailers this year, he would most like to have. Mr. Nelson's taste for travel is also represented by "One Man Caravan," Robert E. Fulton Jr.'s story of his 'round the world trip on a motorcycle. His third choice was "The Arts," by Hendrik Willem van Loon.

George L. Simmonds, industrialist, 435 South Western avenue, was one of a great number of people window shopping when the Inquiring Reporter happened along. He named his choices rapidly—"Imperial City," by Elmer Rice, the playwright's first novel; "Turning Wheels," Stuart Cloete's epic adventure story of the Boers' trek across Africa, and "Woollcott's Second Reader."

Mrs. W. F. Scholz, 4892 North Ashland avenue, a school teacher, was looking at a copy of the popular juvenile, "Ezekiel." Dr. A. J. Cronin's No. 1 fiction best seller, "The Citadel," was her first choice. "They Seek a Country," by Francis Brett Young, which recreates the Boers' trek across Africa, as does "Turning Wheels," was Mrs. Scholz's next selection, with "Northwest Passage," by Kenneth Roberts, third.

Miss Grace McIntire, 312 North East avenue, Oak Park, a school teacher, had read most of the late books, but found it very easy to name three books she would like very much to have for Christmas: In fiction, "The Trojan Horse," by Christopher Morley, and "Katrina," by Sally Salminen. In nonfiction, "Journalist's Wife," by Lilian T. Mowrer, appealed to Miss McIntire because of the many places the author had visited.

Robert Clare, 4070 Sheridan road, clerk, was stopped on his way from a rental library with a mystery book. Herbert Samuel's recently published philosophy of life, "Belief and Action," was a book he would like very much to own, along with "Beloved Friend," by Catherine Drinker Bowen, and Barbara von Meck's biography of Tschaikowsky and A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel."

Miss Betty O'Shea of 6423 North Artesian avenue, secretary, was poring avidly over the biography counter. She admitted this was her favorite field of literature. However, only one biography is included in her selections—"Last Flight," by Amelia Earhart. For Christmas this year she would also like "The Short Stories of Katherine Mansfield," recently collected in one volume, and the ever popular "The Citadel," by A. J. Cronin.

Jack Mendelsohn, 175 West Jackson boulevard, an insurance broker, had just bought three copies of Max Siegal's "Portrait of Barbara" to give away and still wanted a copy for himself for Christmas. He also wanted A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel" and Sholem Asch's "The War Goes On," which he preferred to the author's later novel, "The Mother," published in October.

Miss Gertrude Maloney, 3541 Reta avenue, teacher, was looking over speech books. The field of self-help books appealed to her with "How to Win Friends and Influence People," by Dale Carnegie, and "The Art of Conversation," by Milton Wright. In her own field "Outline of English Phonetics," by Daniel Jones, was the book she would like best to receive for Christmas.

Key to Science Lies in Record of Its Progress

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"The Advancing Front of Science," by George W. Gray. [Whittlesey House, $3].

"A Story Outline of Evolution," by Charles W. Grimes. [Hoagland, $2].

"An Intellectual and Cultural History of the Western World," by Harry Elmer Barnes. [Random, $5.]

In these days of concentration in science, with rapid advance being made in the laboratories of the world into the essential nature of all things animate and inanimate, their orderliness and yet their changeability, we must go to books not only for the particular record but for the synthesis of thought that is demanded by the very rapidity and complexity of the subject.

If the day ever comes when scientific discoveries and views become of sufficient public interest to demand something more than a few grudging paragraphs, when the world of atoms becomes of greater interest than crime and sex and gold, the present day trinity of news values, then we will be on the way to good society.

In the meantime our scientists must become philosophers and take what audience they can find. It is only by the popular demand for scientific knowledge and methods that we can progress. Grecian thinkers made a wonderful start in an intuitive appreciation of the nature of the world and man, but they bogged down in metaphysics.

During the last one hundred years, beginning where they left off and dealing experimentally with every problem of nature, science has opened a new horizon to mankind. The banquet table, the true table of the Lord, is spread.

"Now, they say, let the people come and partake." If food fails they will make it out of wood. If oil fails they will make it out of coal. If the lights go out they will take new power from the sun or the tides.

They build with molecules as surely as primitive man built with stones and mud. They are approaching a knowledge of the underlying laws which apply to all life and which must be obeyed by all. This is the true republic, the true government of the world. It touches the mind and the clod alike.

The compilation of essays on major scientific divisions, from the nebulæ to man, edited by Dr. Forest Ray Moulton, is without doubt the best presentation of the year in the whole field of science. The contributors are department heads at the University of Chicago and at Harvard, and the book supersedes in a way "The Nature of the World and Man," written ten years ago as a text book. The public may enter into this new education at the university in this way. There is no better answer at present to the question of the origin, evolution, and destiny of the universe and man than may be found here.

George W. Gray, one of the best of the lay writers on science, has spent years in the laboratories preparing his material for this new compilation of what is going on in the stars and in the atom, how chemistry is related to thinking, where life begins, the intimations of the quantum theory of light. His collaborators are the best men in science today.

Charles W. Grimes, another lay writer, gives a simple account of the principle of evolution, which now is accepted by all science. Prof. Ritchie gives a charming picture of the cycles of activity in nature, the forces generated in the sun, how birds, flowers, and animals develop and change.

Harry Elmer Barnes, who wrote "The History of Western Civilization," presents in his latest book a history of the development of thought. His earlier work emphasized institutions, while this one emphasizes philosophy, religion, science, the arts, and literature. When one takes the work of the scientists and applies this method and viewpoint to the cultural history of man, something of the same great rhythms that are found in evolving nature are found in social life. When it is all considered together, the individual and social problems of today take on a new meaning. Everything must be read in the light of its past.

These Volumes Provide Helpful Tips to Writers

There have been several helpful books about writing this year. In Breaking Into Print [Simon & Schuster, $2.50] twenty noted and successful authors tell about their first experiences trying to get published. The chapters are reprints from the series which ran in the Colophon, a distinguished magazine about book collecting. It is as fascinating a book about writing as many a year has produced.

Bartlett's Familiar Quotations newly edited by Christopher Morley [Little Brown, $5], brings up to date one of the books that no writer can live without.

The Protection and Marketing of Literary Property, by Philip Wittenberg [Messner, $3.75], is the result of years of experience by the author as a lawyer specializing in literary property. It is almost a must book for any professional writer. It is interesting, too, for the nonwriter.

Short Story Writing for Profit, by Elliott Blackiston [Writer, Inc., $2], is a beginner's course in technique, a good one.

How to Write for a Living, by Trentwell Mason White [Reyal & Hitchcock, $2], is another good course in technique for beginners.

Write and Speak Better, by William G. Hoffman and Roy Davis [Whittlesey House, $3], and Writing and Rewriting, by Harry Shaw Jr. [Harpers, $1.75], are handbooks of good English which many a successful author might well consult.

Library Association Gives Guide to Influential Books

The American Library association has published a guide entitled "Books That Have Shaped the World," by Dr. Fred Eastman [$1]. His brief essays on drama, biography, and "The Classics" [poetry, fiction, the essay] each introduce a short list of books Dr. Eastman recommends as the most enjoyable in that field. Among the 200 books suggested are not only time-honored names but "'best selling" contemporaries.

The Season's Longest Title Won't Make the Headline

The longest title of the season is "The Natakalaksanaratnakosa of Sagaranandin," edited by Myles Dillon and published by Oxford University Press. It is a medieval Sanskrit treatise on the Indian drama, discovered in Nepal in 1922.

Books on South as a Southerner Looks at Them

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

In assigning books to several staf members for review the literary editor of a large newspaper tries to place the volumes where they will receive the most intelligent treatment. The former tap dancer, for example, gets the books on tap dancing. The retired oyster shucker draws those that deal with the pearling industry and kindred subjects.

Though not every staf member has a specialty, most of them come from somewhere. Those who feel they can safely name the region of their origin, generally get for review the books that use it as locale. This reviewer is from the south.

The year's fiction includes two southern historical novels that are remarkable. The first, Three Headed Angel, by Roark Bradford [Harpers, $2.50], roars with life. It is the story of the settlement of western Tennessee by the hard drinking, boisterous veterans of the revolutionary war and by the quality folk of Virginia.

The second is Deep Summer, by Gwen Bristow [Crowell, $2.50]. It deals with much the same period, except that Miss Bristow's people are the English who settled northern Louisiana before the revolution. Here is a book that is beautifully written, colorful, and absorbing.

That Was a Time, by Harriet Gift Castlen [Dutton, $2.50], is a work of wistful beauty. It is the story of a long and eventful life told in the words of the venerable slave woman, whose autobiography it is.

Of the year's two best share cropper books only one is fictional in pattern. I Was a Share Cropper, by Harry Harrison Kroll [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.75], is the story of the author. He was born to the filth and ignorance of the share cropper cabin and determined to hoist himself from the po' white class. The book will shock profoundly, but you will know that it is true.

The nonfiction treatment of the share cropper is remarkable. You Have Seen Their Faces [Viking, $5] is by Erskine Caldwell, author of "Tobacco Road," and Margaret Bourke-White, the famous woman photographer. They have combined pen and lens to portray vividly and movingly the tenant farmer's lot in the south.

Among the southern nonfiction one work is outstanding. Jefferson Davis, in two volumes, by Robert McElroy [Harpers, $8], deserves a place with the best that has been written on the life of the confederacy's president. It records a great man, both for his weaknesses and his strength.

A kindred volume is a new and interpretive view of the war between the states. The American Civil War, by Carl Russell Fish [Longmans, $3.50], critically analyzes the motives of each faction and presents a nonpartisan view of the conflict's significance far beyond our times.

Audubon, the American Woodsman, by Stanley Clisby Arthur [Harmanson, $5], painstakingly sifts the enigma of Audubon's birth—the claim that he was in reality the lost Dauphin of France.

In addition to these books of the south there are three others that deserve mention. The first, nonfiction, is Zeppelin [Longmans, $3], by the late Capt. Ernst Lehmann, who bombed London from airships during the world war and had a great part in the commercial pioneering done by the Zeppelin company. Capt. Lehmann perished in the Hindenburg disaster last May.

The second, fiction, is Glittering Death, by Joseph Peyre [Random House, $2.50], which won the Goncourt prize for 1935. The death trumpet of the bull ring echoes throughout it, though it is not until the final chapter that Ricardo Garcia fights his epochal battle.

Bromfield Uses Remarque Story to Preface Novel

Louis Bromfield was so impressed with a story that Erich Maria Remarque, author of "Three Comrades," told him that he used it to preface his recent novel, "The Rains Came." This is the story:

Two men sat at a bar. One said to the other, "Do you like Americans?" and the second man answered vigorously, "No." "Do you like Frenchmen?" queried the first again. "No," came the answer with equal vigor. "Englishmen?" "No." "Russians?" "No." "Germans?" No." "Well, who do you like?" Without hesitation the second man answered, "I like my friends."

BOOKS

One fascinating feature of the book profession is the study of bindings. If you have never owned a finely bound book you may have thought in terms of very nice looking, possibly colored, leather. However, a closer inspection reveals a miracle of perfection in exacting workmanship . . . in exquisite hand-tooling and coloring . . . and in the amazing strength to make books endure through centuries, even with frequent use. Famous bookbinders such as Riviere, Sangorski, Bayntun and others, have given their lives to perfecting this one art. They have left behind many gems which collectors cherish. When you are in the store again, ask Miss Brand to tell you more about fine bindings. In her inimitable style she makes the subject doubly interesting and will unlock her cabinets and show you some of her pedigreed charges. Fine bindings for gifts or collectors' treasures are available from $5 to $1,000.

CHRISTMAS BOOK SECTION

The Rains Came, by Louis Bromfield [Harpers, $2.75], his best novel, is the exciting record of a major disaster in India peopled by native, English, and American men and women. Mr. Bromfield cleverly takes apart the major characters and shows how they tick.

The Seven Who Fled, by Frederic Prokosch [Harpers, $2.50], is an interesting first novel about the fate of the members of a strange cosmopolitan group who fled a native uprising in China.

The Trojan Horse, by Christopher Morley [Lippincott, $2.50], is a rapid-fire, up-to-the-minute retelling in American slanguage of the story of Croilus and Cressida as a modern satire.

English Novels.

Brynhild, by H. G. Wells [Scribners, $2.50], is a satire on the business of being an author. First half brilliant, last half less so.

John Cornelius, by Hugh Walpole [Doubleday-Doran, $3], also is a satire on the writing business, but also a full length portrait of a novelist.

Europa in Limbo, by Robert Briffault [Scribners, $2.75], is a bitter but powerful satirical novel about Europe during the world war, a sequel to "Europa."

The Citadel, by A. J. Cronin [Little-Brown, $2.50], is a memorable novel about a doctor, also pretty well disillusioned.

The Square Peg, by John Masefield [Macmillan, $2.50], is a good story about modern England with a cleverly concealed plea for better human interrelationships.

Oleander River, by G. B. Stern [Macmillan, $2.50], is one of her most delightful and best light novels—about love.

Victoria 4:30, by Cecil Roberts [Macmillan, $2.50], is a light tale about the passengers on a trans-Europe train.

Enchanter's Nightshade, by Ann Bridge [Little-Brown, $2.50], is lavenderish and pleasant about prewar Italy seen by a Victorian governess.

The Years, by Virginia Woolf [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50], published in the spring but still popular, depicts the passage of time leaving no footprints.

Theatre, by W. Somerset Maugham [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50], also is an early spring book whose joys are unfaded. A brilliant picture of a great actress.

Other Foreign Novels.

The Depths and the Heights, by Jules Romains [Knopf, $3], is the sixth volume to be published in New York of this apparently endless and matchless panorama of modern French life, one of the really great literary designs of our generation.

Katrina, by Sally Salminen [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50], is a Swedish prize novel rich in courage and in Aland Island lore. Written by a Swedish kitchen maid in New York.

Anthology Omnibus.

Novelettes.

Remembering Laughter, by Wallace Stenger [Little-Brown, $1.25], winner of the $2,500 Little-Brown novelette contest, is an Iowa version of the "Ethan Frome" theme.

Of Mice and Men, by John Steinbeck [Covici-Friede, $2], is a most memorable characterization of a giant with a child's mind.

On Borrowed Time, by Lawrence E. Watkin [Knopf, $2], is a long novelette, a truly delightful whimsey about death.

Biography.

Pepita, by V. Sackville West [Doubleday-Doran, $3], published yesterday, is delicious, exuberant family scandal from the days of the author's Spanish gypsy grandmother.

Madame Curie, by Eve Curie [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50], is the life story of one of the most courageous of women, co-discoverer of radium, memorably chronicled by her daughter.

Great Contemporaries, by Winston S. Churchill [Putnam, $4], is a gallery of clever, penetrating sketches of great men of Europe. There also will be remembered this year volume five of Winston Churchill's monumental life of Marlborough [Scribners, $4.50], published in March.

Andrew Jackson, by Marquis James [Bobbs-Merrill, $5], vividly continues a brilliant biography in this portrait of a President. One of the year's best.

Cleopatra, by Emil Ludwig [Viking, $3.50], published yesterday, is the first biography of a woman attempted by this famous and lush biographer. Cleopatra is perfect material for his talent.

Augustus, by John Buchan [Houghton-Mifflin, $4.50], is a fine biography of a great political figure of 2,000 years ago and a history of his times.

Arthur James Balfour, by Blanche E. C. Dugdale [Putnams, 2 vols., $10], records at length the life of one of Winston Churchill's "Great Contemporaries." Written by Balfour's niece.

Beloved Friend, by Catherine Drinker Bowen and Mme. Barbara Von Meck [Random, $3], a spring publication which is still eagerly read, tells the strange tale of the great romance of Tschaikowsky's life.

Pedlar's Progress, by Odell Shepard [Little-Brown, $3.75], winner of the Little-Brown $5,000 centenary prize in May, gave us our first real biography of Bronson Alcott.

Autobiography.

Everybody's Autobiography, by Gertrude Stein [Random, $3], published Thursday, brings the story of her life up to date and includes the famous trip to America. Slightly more "Steinish" than "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas." A find for the intelligentsia.

My New World, by Ernest Dimnet [Simon & Schuster, $2.50], published Monday, is the second volume of the reminiscences of the author of "The Art of Thinking." In it are recorded the war years and the genial abbe's discovery of America.

This Is My Story, by Eleanor Roosevelt [Harpers, $3], tells simply and engagingly the life story of an "ugly duckling" who became the wife of a President.

The Memoirs of Sir Ronald Storrs [Putnams, $5] is a book in which the man whom Lawrence of Arabia called the most brilliant Englishman in the near east lives up to that high praise.

Present Indicative, by Noel Coward [Doubleday-Doran, $3], published in the spring, remains amusingly and deliciously alive.

Encore, by Daniel Frohman [Furman, $3.50], surveys the theatrical scene of two generations.

An Artist in America, by Thomas Benton [McBride, $3.75], tells not only about a famous American artist but about the America which his trained eyes saw.

History.

Why Was Lincoln Murdered? by Otto Eisenschiml [Little-Brown, $3.50], is as good as a detective story as it pieces together the evidence which points to Lincoln's murder as a great political plot, with John Wilkes Booth a mere tool.

Bulwark of the Republic, by Burton J. Hendrick [Little-Brown, $3.50], is an able and illuminating "biography" of the United States constitution.

The Miracle of England, by Andre Maurois [Harpers, $3.75], published in the spring and still popular, is a brilliant Frenchman's "short history of England."

The Hundred Years, by Philip Guedalla [Doubleday-Doran, $3], published last January but still the year's most brilliantly written history, is a book in which epochal periods during England's last century are incisively and sparklingly revivified.

Military History of the World War, by Girard Lindsley McEntree [Scribners, $7.50], is an essentially nontechnical account of the campaigns on all fronts, but it is so complete and so graphic that it has been recommended as a textbook for West Point.

Far Places and People.

400 Million Customers, by Carl Crow [Harpers, $3], startlingly and delightfully analyzes the Chinese.

Island of Bali, by Miguel Covarrubias [Knopf, $5], is a popular artist's description of the "last paradise" and an interpretation of the Balinese culture.

The Dark Islands, by John W. Vandercook [Harpers, $3.50], is a record of the author's journey to the Melanesian Islands, written so well as to be literature.

The Life and Death of a Spanish Town, by Elliot Paul [Random, $2.50], dramatically contrasts the gentle prewar days and the ravages of civil war in a little Spanish island town.

Nonfiction.

The Arts, by Hendrik Willem Van Loon [Simon & Schuster, $3.95], is a stimulating history of the arts frankly and philosophically viewed by one man. It is also an outline history of man written delightfully and philosophically.

Birds of America, by John James Audubon [Macmillan, $12.50], makes available for the first time to the general public the beautiful Audubon "Birds" in 500 colored plates.

Mathematics for the Million, by Lancelot Hogben [Norton, $3.75], is one of the year's phenomena. Published in March, it is still a best seller.

An Intellectual and Cultural History of the Western World, by Harry Elmer Barnes [Random, $5], is a great and scholarly survey of man's intellectual progress.

The Importance of Living, by Lin Yutang [Reynal & Hitchcock, $3], is a wise and witty book about Chinese culture, American foibles, and the simple joys that may be had in life.

Ends and Means, by Aldous Huxley [Harpers, $3.50], offers a great English novelist's suggestions for unscrambling the world's present chaos.

Eight Decades, by Agnes Repplier [Houghton-Mifflin, $3], is a collection of her favorite essays, with a delightful short autobiography.

Last Flight, by Amelia Earhart [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50], was to have been called "World Flight." Amelia Earhart wrote the story of her epic flight as it took place. "Last Flight" describes it up to the moment of her last tragic take-off.

The Enemy Within, by Capt. Henry Landau [Putnams, $3], tells of Germany's espionage and sabotage in America during the world war. The story of the tracking down of proof is more exciting than any manufactured mystery.

Humorous.

Life with Mother, by Clarence Day [Knopf, $2], is a companion piece to his famous "Life with Father."

The Education of Hyman Kaplan, by Leonard Q. Ross [Harcourt-Brace, $2], records the hilarious grammatical mistakes of an adult New York night school pupil.

Let Your Mind Alone, by James Thurber [Harper, $2.50], could kill off with a laugh all books of "inspiration."

Poetry.

Conversation at Midnight, by Edna St. Vincent Millay [Harpers, $2], sets down in dramatic poetry the talk of a group of intelligent men in most part concerned with the state of the world. The year's outstanding volume of poetry.

3 Million Word Life of Christ Arrives in U. S.

A three million word manuscript of the life of Christ, insured in the United States for $300,000 was brought by the liner Queen Mary from Southampton, England, to New York, where it will be published by Doubleday-Doran. The late Sir Thomas Hall Caine spent 30 years preparing the manuscript, for which a record price has been paid, it is reported.

"So You Think It's New?" Well, Then Read This

Did you know:

That Nero invented the champagne cooler?

That nudists were a problem with the old Romans?

That permanent waves could be had 2,000 years ago?

That smallpox inoculation was practiced by the ancient Egyptians?

"So You Think It's New," by Wilfred J. Funk [Funk & Wagnalls, $2], may shake your faith in the "progress" of the 20th century.

Audubon Plates Top Illustrated Books of 1937

If this year's beautifully illustrated books are not collectively or individually as impressive as during the hoop-la period, when $10 books were as common as $10 tips, 1937 will be remembered as the year that Audubon's marvelous plates of The Birds of America [Macmillan, $12.50] were printed for the first time in one volume. Five hundred full page color plates reproduce the folio, whose original subscription price was $1,000, and which has appreciated in value until now a full folio brings around $1,500 at auction.

Harper's Encyclopoedia of Art, edited by Louis Hourticq and Tancred Borenius [2 vols., $30], is handsome in every respect, in scope, in authoritativeness, in illustrations, in format.

The Adventures of Hajji Baba, by James Morier [Random, $3.50], a classic since 1824, has been beautifully illustrated in color and in black and white by Cyrus Le Roy Baldridge, who made the sketches in Persia, where he retraced Hajji Baba's fantastic journey.

The New Yorker Album [Random, $2.50] reprints some of the funniest quips and drawings of the last two years.

Miss Elizabeth Merrill Coit Will Be Bride

BY JUDITH CASS.

INTERESTING romantic news this morning comes from Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham Chandler, who are announcing the engagement of Mrs. Chandler's eldest daughter, Miss Elizabeth Merrill Coit, to Dr. Paul Scott Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hansen of 223 East Delaware place.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler are entertaining at the cocktail hour tomorrow afternoon in their home in Indian Hill road, Winnetka, for Miss Coit and Dr. Hansen, who hope to be married early next summer, after Miss Coit has finished her studies at the University of Chicago. She is specializing in bacteriology, so she and her doctor-fiancé have that as a mutual interest.

Miss Coit inherits an interest in medicine, for the celebrated blind heart specialist, Dr. Robert H. Babcock, was her grandfather. Her father was the late A. Merrill Coit.

It was just a year ago that Mr. and Mrs. Chandler gave a similar party to celebrate the engagement of Mrs. Chandler's second daughter, Eleanor, to George Lill II. Mr. and Mrs. Lill, who have moved into an apartment at 2341 Commonwealth avenue, will be at the party tomorrow, but Mrs. Chandler's youngest daughter, Miss Celia Coit, is not returning from Vassar for the occasion.

The two older girls were introduced to society at a tea at the Fortnightly in the autumn of 1933 after they had returned from several years' study abroad. Dr. Hansen attended Harvard and Northwestern university medical school and now is interning at St. Luke's hospital.

Kendall I. Lingles Parents of Son.

A son, Bowman Charles Lingle II., was born at St. Luke's hospital yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Kendall I. Lingle. The baby, who is a fifth generation Chicagoan, was named for his paternal grandfather. Young Mrs. Lingle is the former Mary Bruce of Charleston, W. Va.

So many parties are being given for Mrs. Hughes Dulany during her visit that she practically eats only breakfast at the apartment of her hosts. Yesterday Mrs. James Ward Thorne gave a small luncheon at the Arts clubs and tonight Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps are giving a dinner at their home in Lake Forest. Tomorrow the Byron Harveys are entertaining at luncheon in their new Lake Shore drive apartment for Mrs. Dulany and Mrs. Leon Liebes of California, who is at the Drake hotel for a brief stay.

Monday night the Laird Bells are giving a small dinner and opera party for Mrs. Dulany and Tuesday night the Howard Linns will entertain for her at dinner at the Casino. Mrs. Sterling Morton, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. John C. Murphy, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and Mrs. Frank Hibbard are others who have planned parties for Mrs. Dulany.

Mrs. Dulany plans to remain in Chicago until after the Assembly next Friday and then she will go to New York for a visit. After the holidays she will go west to spend the rest of the winter in Pasadena, returning to Chicago in the early spring.

Give Party Tomorrow for Sidney S. Dates.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Holloway are giving a cocktail party tomorrow at their apartment in Evanston for Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Date. Mrs. Holloway was matron of honor for the former Miss Virginia Rich at her wedding to Mr. Date on Nov. 29. Miss Rich was one of Mrs. Holloway's attendants at her wedding last spring.

Mrs. Rollin D. Wood and Miss Mary Gordon Wood, who made her debut last year, are planning to give a luncheon for Miss Janet Gregory and Miss Marion Hall at home at 181 De Windt road, Winnetka, on Dec. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Willis Strong of 1362 Astor street have cards out for a cocktail party Tuesday from 5 until 7 o'clock.

Beneke-Ditmars Nuptials Tonight.

Most of the relatives of the Henry Beneke family will be in Covington, Ky., for the wedding at 8:30 o'clock tonight of Henry Beneke Jr. and Miss Margaret Ditmars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ditmars of Cincinnati. The ceremony is taking place at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Rothier.

Edward U. Beneke will be his brother's best man and Miss Claire Beneke will be the maid of honor. Mrs. William Anderson of Cambridge, Mass., is to be her sister's matron of honor and Frank Ditmars and Philip B. Hosmer Jr. will usher.

After a wedding trip to Florida Mr. Beneke and his bride will be at home in an attractive apartment above the garage of the Beneke home in Highland Park.

Pynchons to Take Motor Trip East.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon are leaving tomorrow to motor to Washington, D. C., where Mr. Pynchon will attend the Gridiron club dinner next Saturday and Mrs. Pynchon will go to the White House that night for a dinner Mrs. Roosevelt will give for the wives of the men who go to the Gridiron dinner.

Before returning home the Pynchons will go to New York to see their daughter, Edith Atwater, who is playing in the success, "Susan and God," with Gertrude Lawrence, and to visit an ex-Evanstonian, Emmett Naylor. Mrs. Pynchon will give a humorous reading entitled "Why People Sell Pictures" today at a luncheon of the American speech committee of the Chicago Woman's

Entertain for Two Debutantes

Miss Kay Goodman, debutante of Mrs. James M. Hopkins, shared with Miss Betty Armour the distinction of being the especial guests at a dinner-dance given last night at the Casino by the Laurance H. Armours. Miss Goodman will make her debut at a dinner-dance on Dec. 29 at the Palmer house.

Hutchins Party for Debutantes to Be Tonight

Practically the same young people who dined and danced at the Casino last night as the guests of the Laurance Armours will be at the club tonight for a dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins are giving for debutantes Mary Gardner and Mary Seymour Adams.

The club was decorated with silver palm trees last night, but tonight the only decorations will be flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Armour had about 200 guests and they invited some friends of their own age. The Hutchinses limited their invitation list to young people, so there will be only 140 at their party.

An out of town guest at both parties is the Hutchinses' future daughter-in-law, Miss Polly Wardwell of Brookline, Mass., who is spending ten days in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins gave a cocktail party for her last night, and tonight Gardiner B. Van Ness Jr. and his brother Radford are entertaining similarly for the pretty easterner.

Miss Barbara Stanley, who went to St. Timothy's with Miss Wardwell, is giving a dinner party next Tuesday. Young Mr. Hutchins' sister, Mrs. John J. Borland II., who went to St. Timothy's with the Misses Wardwell and Stanley, will entertain for Miss Wardwell while she is here.

Another out of town guest at both parties is debutante Nancy Wiman of New York, who arrived late Friday afternoon to spend the week-end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman. Mr. and Mrs. Wiman are entertaining at luncheon tomorrow at the Onwentsia for their niece. They are having about sixty young people and a few of their own contemporaries.

The badminton courts at the club will be available for those who want some exercise after luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Wiman returned on Friday from three weeks in the east.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Drayer, 1034 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to A. Paul Leisner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Leisner, 716 Ashbury avenue, Evanston, to take place on Dec. 23 at 4:30 o'clock at St. Mark's Episcopal church in Evanston. A reception for the immediate families will follow at the Georgian hotel. Miss Florence Leisner, sister of the bridegroom, will be the bride's only attendant. William Leisner will be his brother's best man and the ushers will be Edward C. Truner, William Prizer, Leonard P. Hoskins, and Henry P. C. W. Barber.

Women Voters Hold Forum Today on Foreign Policy

An all-day forum on American foreign policy will be held today under the auspices of the Cook County League of Women Voters in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. The morning session will be devoted to "The War in Spain." "The War in the Far East" will be the subject of the afternoon program. Louise Leonard Wright, chairman of the department of government and international relations of the National League of Women Voters will be a speaker.

Conductor, Henry Weber.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago City Opera company's Friday subscribers had their first taste of Wagner last night when the gods and heroes of "Die Walküre," the second drama of "The Ring of the Nibelungs," filled the stage of the Civic Opera house with their epic carryings-on. As remarkable for the windy excitement of its subject and settings as for the sweet, pitying music which Wagner has lavished on his beloved Sieglinde and Siegmund, this magnificent work enjoyed at last evening's performance the additional advantage of a cast which included most of the reigning favorites of present day German opera, and with all this the fact that Henry Weber is hitting a high stride in his conducting of Wagner.

Wettergren, List and Melchior were present to repeat their now familiar Fricka, Hunding and Siegmund. Kirsten Flagstad sang her first Chicago Brünnhilde and Ludwig Hofmann came on from New York's Metropolitan to enact the rôle of Wotan and to offer this city the first sample of his wares.

Mr. Hofmann's Wotan is an uncertain god who retains considerable dignity of a static sort and whose work is of sufficient musical beauty to take good rating in a performance which was far less exciting artistically than the opulence of the cast would indicate.

Helen Traubel, an unknown quantity hereabouts as far as any standard rôles are concerned, sang the part of the wistful, kidnaped spouse of Hunding and imparted to those matchless phrases which open the first act a remarkable eloquence and beauty. She had considerable trouble in the more sustained passages of the work, encountering difficulties of diction and of melodic line.

Mr. Melchior's work last evening was so choppy and disconnected, so rich in sudden accents and startling variations between loud and soft that his legion of admirers must have had a difficult time enjoying to the full the round, hornlike quality of his voice. The opening of the Spring Song was especially disappointing, with a causeless break in the vocal line before half of the first phrase had been delivered.

Musical honors of the evening belong to Kirsten Flagstad, Gertrud Wettergren, and Henry Weber. The first managed, even in the midst of her enactment of a violent and exciting Brünnhilde, to keep the sheer quality of her phrasing beautiful in high degree. Wettergren's work as Fricka succeeds in making that unappetizing lady one of the most attractive persons of the drama—attractive physically and musically both.

Mr. Weber kept the vehement music within well regulated artistic bounds and molded the searching phrases of the drama's more lyrical episodes into shapes of uncommon loveliness. It should be remarked also that Mr. Weber's repertoire this season has been rounded out in the tops of operatic scores, leaving him few more fields to conquer.

Museum to Give Lecture on "Ancestral Skeletons"

A lecture tour on "Digging Up Our Ancestral Skeletons" will be conducted at the Field Museum of Natural History at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. P. G. Dallwig will give the lecture in the Stone Age hall, which contains an elaborate series of dioramas of prehistoric types of men amid scenes typical of their lives.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Frank Lloyd directs successes.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 3.—If you were to be asked who starred in "The Sea Hawk" you'd answer, "Milton Sills." If you were asked who ran away with "Oliver Twist" Jackie Coogan's name would come readily to mind. But if you were to cudgel your mind for the DIRECTOR of those pictures it would be no go. Even if I told you that it was the same director who was responsible for "Cavalcade," or "Mutiny on the Bounty," or, currently, "Wells Fargo," it is to be doubted that you'd come up with the name of Frank Lloyd.

Because, in the majority of cases, directors are familiar names only to their own profession. Now that I've mentioned his name you immediately remember seeing it on hundreds of pictures. Lloyd has been directing pictures out here from 1913 to 1937 and "Wells Fargo" is his current directorial triumph.

"In 1913," the 49 year old Scotsman recalled, "I was making 1,000 foot pictures at $1 a foot. In 1921 we got headlines for putting $123,000 into 'Oliver Twist,' just as in 1916 they were staggered at a $62,000 outlay for my 'Tale of Two Cities,' in eight reels. After we completed 'Mutiny on the Bounty' for $1,650,000, I went back through the old clippings and pondered what the old timers would have said at THAT kind of money for a picture."

I asked him about the filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty" and he chuckled. "The greatest story in that picture to me was that Charles Laughton, who played Capt. Bligh, came into the office and said: 'Frank, I can't do it. I don't look like a sea captain and I don't feel like one. The ocean makes me deathly sick—I even get seasick in a rowboat. It's impossible—I can't do it.' He sat right there where you're sitting, Ed, shaking his head in protest.

"I convinced him that I had a sure cure for seasickness and the first day we went out Charlie went green. So I made him stretch out flat on his back and it cured him. A great actor, that Laughton. Each night before we shot a scene he'd rehearse his lines into sort of a dictograph and then play them back, searching for his own mistakes in reading each word. I've never found an actor so thorough in his preparations for a rôle as Laughton."

What problems confront a director assigned to a $1,500,000 picture? "Your first problem is box office," he said. "With that kind of money invested you want strong box office names to recoup the fortune involved. Secondly, if it's a famous book, you have the problem of condensing the story without losing its value. Third, you are mindful of the fact that each day's shooting costs about $10,000 a day, so the time element is vital, and everything that affects time—particularly weather.

"In 'Mutiny' we sailed for days hunting for ocean storms to get the shots we needed. Off Catalina Island, later, the fog cut down our shooting sometimes to two hours a day.

"In 'Wells Fargo' the scene where you see the six stage coaches trying to escape we had to wet down the entire plain, because in the first shot the dust obliterated the action completely. To save time I had men working all night with sprinklers, and they had to bring the water from a river five miles away. Those are the unexpected emergencies that put gray in a director's hair."

It was different, of course, in the old days? "I should say it was," Lloyd chuckled. "Back around 1913, at Universal, I'd be shooting a living room scene in the morning. Perhaps a grand piano would be in the foreground. At noon we'd go to lunch. When we'd come back the piano would be gone and some of the drapes. So we'd go from one company to another which was shooting until we'd find the piano.

"The prop man of our company would then, likely as not, have to fight it out in a rough and tumble with the prop man who swiped our props, and while they were battling we'd grab the piano and wheel it back. Those were the days. This land here was sheep grazing country and the only restaurant in Hollywood was a little tea shop. Al Levey's tavern was the big place downtown, and if we wanted to act devilish, we'd go to Baron Long's place at Vernon."

And now it was all changed? "While we were shooting 'Wells Fargo,' Ed, one day we had 2,000 extras. They started working at 5 a. m., when they reported, and at 10 a. m. I unloaded 1,000 of them. Every hour from that point on I kept releasing 100 of them at a time, so that the day's bill wouldn't be so high. At 5 o'clock that afternoon 750 more appeared and they worked until midnight. In the old days we worried about a PIANO."

"Tell you something that might be interesting for the column, Ed," suggested the big Scotchman. "That morning when 2,000 extras were reporting at the set, about thirty miles from the studio, you know what gave us more trouble than anything else? Wrist watches. In any picture of olden days you've got to be careful that extras and actors don't wear wrist watches. Five checkers examined the extras as they passed a certain point and collected 940 wrist watches.

"On other locations we had to be careful that we didn't have electric wires or telephone wires showing in the backgrounds. It really keeps you on your toes."

Does a director make many mistakes? "Plenty. I made 'Maid of Salem,' and while it turned out all right, I pulled a boner on it. The public didn't want Claudette Colbert in that type of rôle.

"I pulled another one. I went to London to buy 'Captains Courageous'; the asking price was $25,000. On my way there they cabled me on the boat and said another company was after it. I thought naturally that it was a stunt to force me into a quick purchase and, after all, I AM Scotch. But when I got to London M.-G.-M. had stepped in and paid $40,000 for it. It only proves that you shouldn't jump to conclusions. But I salved my ego, Ed, a bit. I got 'Mutiny on the Bounty' for $12,000, and if that wasn't a buy, then I'm not a Scotchman from Glasgow."

Swedish Movie 'Intermezzo' Is a Treat for All

"INTERMEZZO."

Produced by A. B. Svensk Filmindustri.
Directed by Gustaf Molander.
Presented at the Julian theater.

THE CAST.

| Brandt, a musician | Gösta Ekman |
| Mrs. Margit Brandt | Inga Tidblad |
| Ake, their son | Hans Ekman |
| Ann-Marie, their daughter | Britt Hagman |
| Charles Möller, an impresario | Erik Berglund |
| Anita Hoffman | Ingrid Bergman |
| Thomas Stenborg | Hugo Björne |
| Greta, his wife | Emma Meissner |

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

If you're in the neighborhood of 918 Belmont, which is where the Julian theater is located, step inside and have a treat for yourselves.

Be you Swedish or American you'll enjoy not only the feature picture, "Intermezzo," but a news reel of lovely, peaceful Stockholm—"The Venice of the North." WHAT a contrast to that other news film—"The Spanish Earth"! Sweden hasn't had a war in 100 years—and if you don't believe that peace pays, well—just have a look at her!

"Intermezzo" has much general appeal. The "triangle" love story told is saved from banality by astute playing and direction.

There is some splendid music and the piece fairly radiates "atmosphere." The finale, like all of the action, is credible.

A temperamental violinist, his beautiful, home keeping wife, and his accompanist, a lovely ardent girl who becomes his mistress are the main characters. They work out tempestuously, quietly, painfully, their destinies against varied and fascinating backgrounds—the warm and quiet home where the musician lights between tours to be both a delight and a torment to his family; the scenic charm of the countries the tours encompass. . . .

So smooth is "Intermezzo" that it really doesn't need English subtitles—which it has.

Field's Choral Society Gives Annual Oratorio Concert

Shoppers on nine floors at Marshall Field's yesterday heard the jubilant music of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," sung by the Marshall Field & Co. choral society of 200 singers. The choir was grouped around the rotunda on the sixth floor of the store and the familiar music filled the air from the first to the ninth floors. It was the eleventh year the concert has been presented by the choral club during the Christmas season. Mark Love, tenor, and Esther Hart, soprano, were soloists. Edgar Nelson conducted.

Baby Bonnets Put Headache Hats on Shelf

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Relief is in sight for those who have tired of head handkerchiefs and headache band hats! Baby bonnets this time, but baby bonnets with all kinds of lure and flattery. They're called "babushkas," Russian for "little old lady," so they say, but these babushkas are anything but old looking. Fetching bonnets are being made of velvet and velveteen for evening wear, and the gay young set is wild about them. These bonnets are becoming and practical and help keep the curls in place.

The soft jersey bonnets in all colors and white and black are ideal toppers for winter sports clothes. Vivid color prints and striped affairs are being packed in all southbound baggage to wear with slacks and beach or spectator sports outfits.

Babushkas are cut snug and smooth to fit the head lines and have neat little pointed tabs to fasten under the chin. The brim is turned back in a point, adding a bit of telling sophistication.

The materials are soft and feminine, with the velvets and striped crêpes the most popular and jersey third choice.

Another Russian refugee is the double neck scarf, called the "balalaika," shaped, of course, like the well known version of the Russian guitar, only a duet is used. This tricky new scarf can be worn in six different twists, with some grand results.

The crisp silk comes in precise stripes like men's tie silk or in the blazing combines of wider stripes.

Both the Russian "immigrants" are priced around $2, and will work magic with a dull colored dated dress or evening coat.

Meetings and Lectures

At 11 a. m. today in the children's book section of Mandel Brothers, Bernadine Bailey, author of "Puckered Moccasins," will speak and autograph her books. Gaye Woodring Coons, who illustrated the book, will draw pictures of Indians, and Ma towakan [Medicine Bear] will present the fire and medicine bear dances of the Cherokee Indians.

Lady Hay Drummond-Hay, England's leading woman journalist, will speak at Thorne hall at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday on "Dictators I Have Met."

Mary Ellen Chase will speak on "Books and the Larger Life" at the Palmer house at 2 p. m. Friday for the Friends of American Writers' annual scholarship benefit.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer, James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house. James cannot believe the tale. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At a party at his cousin Daphne's James meets the girl. She is Sally West, the sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother and herself. Sally is terror stricken when Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, and his wife, Hildegarde, arrive. Next morning the clerk at his office tells James that a man had called up to inquire who had driven their car the night of the fog. Jackson, a rival salesman, took the credit and went off to meet the man.

INSTALMENT XII.

FOUND DEAD.

Next day there was still no Jackson. James had to go down to Chislehurst again. The Misses Palmer wished to see a smaller car. They had both rung up about it, one at 9 o'clock and the other at five minutes past. Each hoped separately that it would be Mr. Elliott who would bring the car down—such a good driver and so reliable.

Miss Callender, rather paler than usual, attempted a rallying smile.

"Looks as if you'd get off, too, Mr. Elliot, doesn't it?"

James made a face.

"Too?" he inquired.

"Mr. Jackson," said Miss Callender, and the smile faded out. "You don't think anything's happened to him, do you?"

"Rubbish! What is there to happen?" said James, and went to pick a mild, well mannered car for the Misses Palmer.

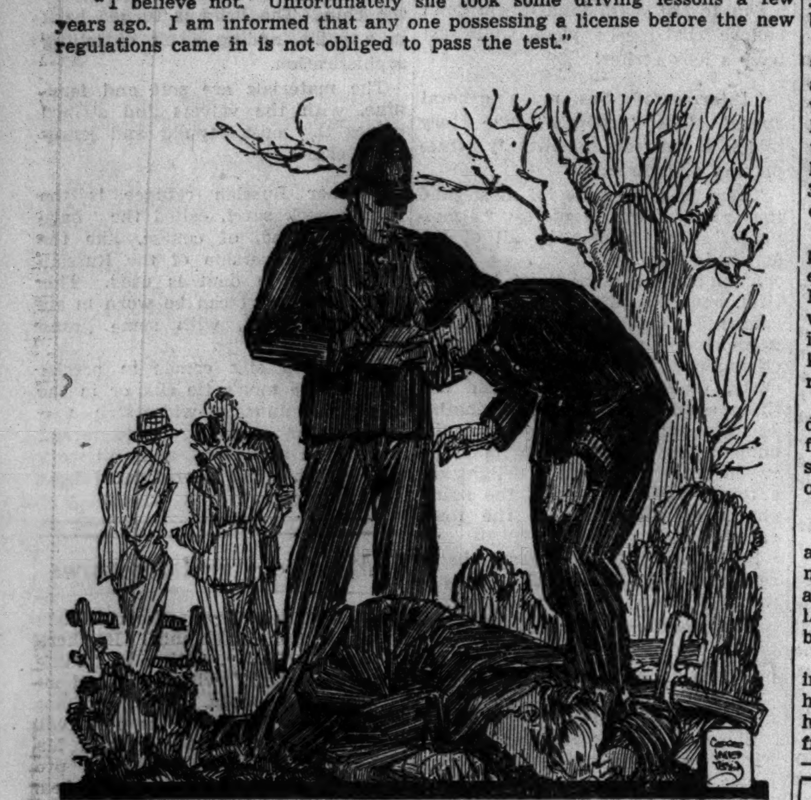
He found the large Miss Palmer waiting for him at the corner of their road. When he drew up she came up to the window and told him in a brisk, domineering manner that he was to discourage her sister from attempting to drive.

"She is very highly strung, Mr. Elliot, and not at all fitted to handle machinery. I shall be obliged if you will tell her so. It will be more acceptable from a stranger and an expert. I do not wish to have to tell her that nothing will induce me to enter the car if she insists upon driving it."

James felt a certain amount of sympathy for the large Miss Palmer.

"Well," he said, "she would have to pass a driving test."

"I believe not. Unfortunately she took some driving lessons a few years ago. I am informed that any one possessing a license before the new regulations came in is not obliged to pass the test."



Jackson's absence was explained . . found dead in a Surrey lane—run over.

James said "I see." And then, "Well, I'll do my best, Miss Palmer. I don't think she would be very safe on the road."

She shook her head gloomily.

"I shall refuse to enter the car. Drive on to the house, Mr. Elliot. I do not wish her to know that I have spoken to you."

James drew up at the rustic gate. Halfway down the pergola which led to the front door he encountered the little Miss Palmer in a state of considerable agitation.

"O, Mr. Elliot—good morning! You haven't seen my sister? I did want, if possible, to have a word with you, but I shouldn't like her to think—I don't know if you are a gardener, but perhaps I might be showing you the new rockery."

She took him round the house and down another pergola.

"We are devoted to rock gardening," said the little Miss Palmer in a twittering whisper. "O, Mr. Elliot, I do implore you to use all your influence with my sister to dissuade her from attempting to drive the car. It is quite useless for me to say anything, but the idea terrifies me. She is so abrupt in her movements, and she does not like to be thwarted. I do hope you will do your best. My nerves are still upset after yesterday."

"Why don't you have a driver?" said James.

The little Miss Palmer drew herself up.

"Thank you, Mr. Elliot, that will not be necessary. I have driven for some years. I may be a little out of practice, but I feel sure——"

"Will Miss Palmer have to pass the driving test?" said James.

"Miss Ethel Palmer. I am Miss Palmer, though every one takes my sister for the elder. O, no—she has had a license for years, because we used occasionally to drive our brother's car. Hush! There's my sister! Yes, we intend to continue the crazy paving as far as it will go. It should look very well, I think. Ethel, here is Mr. Elliot. So kind of him—I'm sure all these cars are so delightful that it is very difficult to decide—but we must not take up too much of his time—we had better start at once."

"Mr. Elliot will drive," said the large Miss Palmer.

"Mr. Elliot first—O, yes—or, of course. And then I thought I would take the wheel——"

"No, Emily!"

The large Miss Palmer snorted.

"Emily, if you insist on driving that car you drive it alone!"

"Ready, Ethel!"

"Mr. Elliot, I beg of you——"

James looked from the large, flushed Miss Palmer to the little, pale one, who seemed to be on the verge of tears.

"I think you had better let me drive. There's such a lot on the road now, and you haven't had much practice, have you? I should really advise you to think about having a driver, for a time at any rate."

"He could give Emily lessons," said Miss Ethel, breathing heavily.

"You needn't decide about it now," said James hastily. "See how you like the car first. It's really awfully good value for the money."

It was hard work, but he got them into the car and through half an hour of driving without an open outbreak of hostilities. The large Miss Palmer sat beside him on the way out, and the little Miss Palmer on the way home. They talked a good deal to James and at one another, and when he set them down at their garden gate they told him that they would ring up in the morning.

He drove away feeling rather sorry for them. Horrible to handle anything as badly as they handled a car. They ought to get a driver—they seemed quite comfortably off.

He came back to tragedy and a tearful Miss Callender. The police had called up. Mr. Jackson's absence was explained. He had been found dead in a Surrey lane—run over.

"They found him yesterday, but they didn't know who he was, not at first. Mr. Parkinson's been sent for to identify him. They traced him by the laundry marks on his clothes, poor fellow, and his landlady told them he worked here. It's only a form, Mr. Parkinson going. Poor Mr. Jackson—it's him, all right. I wish I hadn't said the things I did about him. Mr. Elliot, you won't say anything, will you? I don't want to get drawn into any inquests or things like that. You won't say anything—will you?"

James had an odd feeling of shock. He hadn't liked Jackson very much. That seemed to make it worse. He said:

"I don't know, Daisy. I won't say anything, but I think perhaps you ought to."

"Well, I'm not going to," said Miss Callender with decision. "It won't bring him back, will it? And what's it going to look like, me standing up in court and saying I listened in like that? And my picture in the Mail, and Lenny going off the deep end as likely as not! He's always had a sort of jealous feeling about Mr. Jackson and you—as if a girl couldn't be friendly without its meaning anything! And as sure as I got into a court they'd have it out of me that what Mr. Jackson was waiting about for was the chances of taking me to the pictures. No, thank you, Mr. Elliot!"

The odd feeling of shock persisted. Mr. Parkinson came back a good deal upset in a pompous sort of way. The dead man was poor Jackson, all right. He had been found yesterday morning as Miss Callender had said, but he had been dead some hours then—eight or nine, at least, the police surgeon opined. There had been a heavy shower round about 11 that night, but the ground beneath the body was dry.

GASOLINE ALLEY—PEACE AT LAST

I'M GLAD YOU AREN'T JEALOUS OF JESSICA ANY MORE, NINA
JEALOUS OF JESSICA? HUH!
SHE'S CRAZY ABOUT ME AN' I HAD AN AWFUL TIME GETTIN' AWAY.
JUST THE SAME YOU TURNED ME DOWN FOR HER.
THAT WAS HER IDEA. BESIDES, YOU'VE BEEN RIDIN' WITH PACKER, TOO.
THAT WAS HIS IDEA.
AND IT WAS MY LAST RIDE WITH HIM.
I DON'T THINK HE'S INTERESTING, EITHER.

Mothers Wail Over Friction with Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Again the letters come in from mothers who live at continual odds with their small fry; those 2 and 3 year olds who aren't ready as yet to be on their own.

I have written again and again about these very little boys and girls and their mothers, but evidently the writers of today's letters missed the last series on this subject. Also from the dates I see that they also must have missed a Sunday article [Oct. 31] which was devoted to the subject of sharing.

This article was meant to paint a picture of the relationship that should exist between mother and child. Mothers of very little boys and girls who are in the difficulties described in today's letters would be helped, I know, by looking up that article and reading it.

Here are extracts from letters which describe the troubles that inevitably follow when a mother doesn't understand the emotional and other needs of her runabout child:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have a daughter of 3. She's an adorable child but she cries too much. How can I stop her? If you ask her to do anything that displeases her she cries. I have a lot of patience but I am slowly losing it."

"I have tried all ways of punishing my little girl. I have spanked her. Made her sit on a chair for an hour. Haven taken her books away from her. She is very fond of books and it almost broke her heart, but none of these punishments helped.

"The next thing is, she doesn't like to play by herself. She has a lot of toys, books, blocks, and other things, but she won't play with them. If I sit down for a minute, she has to be climbing all over me and annoying me continually."

Next, of course, punishment isn't the answer.

And of course pushing the child aside because one puts housework first or is tired or irritable isn't the answer.

The small child needs, instead, patience. She needs interest taken in her accomplishments. She needs affection. She needs the companionship of her mother. She needs a sense of importance and a real place in her mother's life and in her home. If she doesn't get these she may do naughty, wild, annoying things to get attention of some sort, any sort, as long as its attention.

Today's Quilt

Vines at the Window.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Even the title of this block denotes the daintiness of the design, and the color arrangement is obvious. One of the most refreshing combinations is soft leaf green and pale or citron yellow, against a white ground. "Vines at the Window," is not a new design, although it almost was lost to quilt posterity. It was popular in Pennsylvania and traveled southward, but rarely was seen in the middle west. It is not a difficult pattern to set together, and the blocks are large, measuring 14 inches square. Pieced blocks, set together to form an all-over design, have a white border 10 inches deep. This is quilted in a running feather design, with a feather crown in each of the four corners.

Rich Exhibition Is Opened by Two Krawiecs

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A brilliant exhibit of flower paintings by Harriet Krawiec and drawings by Walter Krawiec is on view in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Krawiec paints in a fluent and rich manner and her work glows with vitality.

The paintings are decorative and make an instant appeal to those looking for beauty and distinction in a subject [still life] that only too often wears a hackneyed mien.

Walter Krawiec shows two or three paintings, which, as is customary with him, are based upon circus characters and circumstances. His "Circus Lady on Horse" is a stunning equestrian portrait.

The drawings in colored pencil, however, are really in this exhibit Mr. Krawiec's pièce de résistance. They are of horses and cattle, some of them circus animals and others prize beasts from the 1936 International Stock show. Any one who likes horses and cattle should see these sketches; they are extremely fine.

Sculpture by Archipenko is the December exhibition at the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana Court building. Archipenko is achieving the acme of simplicity. His sculptured lines barely enfold suggestions. The artist is working with concave as well as convex surfaces and this makes his muted groups the more difficult to grasp.

Where one might expect curves there are hollows, and where, as in a throat, one might look for slender long lines, one finds that suddenly at just this point a passion for rotundity and strength has overtaken Archipenko and his model is made to look like a sufferer from an enlarged thyroid.

Still and all, for those who yearn toward the modern this show is a nice clean pasture in which to walk. Archipenko moves in a rare atmosphere, his bloodless figures make an exquisite and anemic paradise.

Interference of In-Laws Rears Its Ugly Head Again

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of the appalling phases of today's attitude toward marriage is revealed in parental interference after the ceremony has been performed.

We can't tell you how many times in the course of a year this attitude of meddling parents is revealed. Nor can we tell of any solution for such a problem, since the meddling parents have no respect for the sanctity of marriage, therefore remain deaf to pleas to leave the young married pair alone to work out their own salvation. We are heartily in favor of a law punishing parents for trying to separate a couple after the legal knot has been tied, unless, of course, it is to release a daughter from the clutches of a criminal or other moral outcast.

As we meet this problem the criminal feature does not enter. Invariably, the plaints upon which the allenation is constructed are matters of not enough finances, difference in social status, or some trumped-up worldly grievance which looms infinitely larger in the eyes of parents than in those of the young couple. Left to work out their own career, the chances are they could and would make a go of it. We wonder if bitter pangs of conscience must not eventually assail such parents when they see their separation wish accomplished, only to bring on more devastating pangs later. It is a notorious fact that when this type of interference exists the party rescued from the marriage already accomplished proceeds to more foolish exploits.

Leave the young pair alone. Give them a chance at marriage alone and without interference from you, parents. If time proves that your guess was right, then, and not until then, begin your rescue work.

A mother tells in today's communication that he daughter married six months ago. The girl is 22, and genuinely in love with her young husband as he, to all intents and purposes, returns her love. But his mother never liked the girl. She was not good enough for her boy. Right before the girl she made her pronouncement and swore that she would break up the marriage if it was the last thing she ever did. Her son that day, at least, was equally resolved to make a go of his marriage. But his mother began her diabolical work by getting her husband to give the son a job with a $60 a week salary attached, on condition he would send his young wife back to her mother. He was to give her $20 a week out of his salary.

At first, son gave his wife forty and he kept twenty. Gradually his mother's evil influence resulted in reducing the weekly allowance to thirty, to twenty and finally to zero. He stopped coming to see his young wife. And she remains madly in love with the boy, her mother reports. His mother crows over the fact that her son is back with her again. The girl-bride is a sick girl over all the trouble.

There's the plot. And if the evil genie doesn't operate to the boy's mother's bitter chagrin eventually, she will be unusual in escaping a punishment that is due her.

Blouse Is Flattering Gift

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSES.

One of the most flattering gifts of which we can think is a blouse, made especially by the donor for the recipient. Such a present reflects a great deal of personal interest and affection and, therefore, has twice the value of an ordinary gift.

You will, of course, know the dress sizes of your intimate friends and relatives, so it should be easy for you to select one or the other of these blouses, both of which are made with one pattern. The blouse illustrated at the left is a dressy one which makes up well in metal cloth, richly surfaced silks, satin and metal-shot woolen. It has a high and collarless neckline from which descends a slide fastener. The skirt of the blouse is in the tunic style. The sleeves are three-quarter length, really smart this season.

The more tailored version of the pattern has a high V neckline, also unadorned with a collar. Buttons instead of a zipper accent the front. The sleeves are full length, puffed at the top and gradually fitted toward the wrist. Soft shirring at the shoulders and waistline make this blouse flatteringly draped, while the waistline sector itself is impeccably fitted.

Style No. 3238 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the tunic version.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Hints to husbands and beaux:

The compact field is one in which you should wander. Remember that women nowdays think of their vanity as a piece of jewelry as well as armor against wilting. Demand style in the compact you buy, and with your own masculine appreciation of mechanical things take a good look at screws and hinges. If they strike you as shoddy don't buy. Here are some that will please the most exacting woman:

1. The watch compacts, ranging in price from $9 to $25. These are smart, slender, well made, in either gold, platinum, or silver plate—some in stunning combinations. Litte watches are set in the case, visible through the compact lid. They're good, sturdy little watches too—we had an expert look them over for us.

They are NOT gadgety compacts. Incidentally the gadgety is to be avoided. If you're one to fall indiscriminately for sequins and such restrain yourself. The smartest compacts are restrained, even those with jewel ornamentation.

2. The "portmanteau" ranging in price from $10 to $50. Portmanteau, which you couldn't be expected to know, are flat long compacts, in two sections. The upper section is for cigarets or a flimsy handkerchief. In the lower section there are compartments for powder, rouge, and lipstick, plus a comb and a change space.

These cosmetic compartments are all spill proof, and the whole thing is well made so that no powder mingles with tobacco or vice versa. These are different. They're extremely popular in New York and in Europe and are just catching on here.

The finishes vary. We especially like the plain enamel ones with heavy jewel ornamentation. Many women carry a portmanteau, provided it's dressy enough, instead of an evening bag.

3. Do, do look at the "snuff boxes," priced around $15. These, to us, are the standouts of the season. The really discriminating women, who adore small, exquisite things, and things that are not what every other woman is carrying will appreciate these.

They're deepish oval boxes for carrying powder, complete with a swansdown puff. In gold or platinum plate, or combinations of both, they are exquisite. The lids are delicately etched in varying designs, all of them in perfect taste. If there is someone on your list who loves a bibelot, this is the vanity for her.

Most of the cooking department's mail these days has a ring of Christmas about it. Thanksgiving day dinners must have brought up new perplexities concerning the holiday turkey, for turkey problems predominate. Here are a few of the requests, with their answers.

What size turkey shall I buy to serve 12 persons? A pound of turkey per person, market weight, is sufficient. However, of you want plenty of left-over turkey it will be wiser to purchase more than that amount. I like to cook a 16 to 18 pound turkey for that many, so that there won't be any difficulties in carving, and so that there will be enough turkey meat left for one or two more meals.

How much stuffing will I need for a 12 pound turkey? Ten cups of stuffing should fill a fowl of that weight.

Where can I buy a half turkey to roast for Christmas? You may be able to persuade your butcher to split a turkey for you if you know some one who will take the other half. I think that half turkeys aren't sold very generally in the markets. It might be better for you to buy a small turkey and roast it whole, since you may encounter some difficulty in preparing half a bird. If you decide to use the half turkey, which is split down the center back, cover the stuffed half on the cut side with parchment paper and truss to hold in the stuffing.

Is it possible to keep a turkey from now until Christmas in my refrigerator if I keep it very cold? The only way to keep a turkey that long is to take it to a butcher whose shop has freezing facilities, and ask him to freeze it for you until the day before Christmas. An undrawn bird will keep better than a drawn one, as a rule.

Tomorrow's column will answer requests for Christmas dinner menus. And the weeks from now until Dec. 25 will allow for plenty of published holiday recipes. So we might turn to requests of another type.

How are those delicious biscuits made which may be pulled apart in thin sections? asks a reader. She refers, I believe, to the buttercup biscuits, which may be made from any standard biscuit dough. The dough is rolled thinly and cut with a biscuit cutter. Half a dozen or so of these rounds are spread with butter and piled one on top of another to make one biscuit. The group of rounds then is turned on edge and tucked into a muffin pan for final rising and baking. These biscuits really are good, and I've found nice ones wrapped in transparent paper on many a grocery bread rack.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

Yesterday's question, the last one of the examination, was:

Question 58: Both sides vulnerable. You are South and hold:

♠A K Q 9 4 ♥K Q 9 6 ♦A 3 ♣Q J

The bidding has gone:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | Pass | 2 spades | Pass |
| 3 spades | Pass | 4 no trump | Pass |
| 5 no trump | Pass | ? | |

What call do you make now? [I will help the nonusers of the Four-Five No Trump Convention by whispering to them that North's five no trump bid revealed two aces as part of his opening bid.]

Answer: You should now jump to seven hearts, not seven spades. This is an application of the sound theory that, particularly in high contracts, it is better to select for trumps a suit of which each partner holds four rather than another suit which may be longer and equally solid. The combined hands are apt to be as follows:

North:

♠J 10 8 5 ♥A J 10 8 ♦K 6 2 ♣A 4

South:

♠A K Q 9 4 ♥K Q 9 6 ♦A 3 ♣Q J

At hearts, the grand slam is virtually a laydown without a finesse. At spades it will be necessary to take the club finesse, which is only a 50-50 chance. [One point reward for jumping to seven hearts; two points demerit for bidding only a small slam or for jumping to seven spades or seven no trump.]

This marks the end of the National Bridge Examination. Readers who have rated themselves now know just where they stand. Readers who have sent answers to me for rating will have to be a little patient while my staf and I complete marking the hundred thousand letters sent in. I feel that the examination was a huge success. Also, judging by hundreds of comments I have heard or read, it was lots of fun. I expect to make an announcement of great interest to readers in the near future.

TODAY'S HAND.

North, dealer.

NORTH
♥A Q 5 4
♦A J 7

WEST
♠Q 7 5 2
♥K 10 6
♦K 10 3 2
♣K 5

EAST
♠A K J 9 4 3
♥9 8 3 2
♦8 5
♣6

SOUTH
♠10
♥J 7
♦Q 9 6 4
♣A Q 9 8 7 2

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | 1 spade | 2 clubs | 2 spades |
| 3 clubs | Pass | 4 clubs | Pass |
| 5 clubs | Pass | Pass | Double |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Obviously the final contract was highly optimistic. West opened the spade deuce, East won and continued spades. Declarer ruffed and took the heart finesse, then cashed the heart ace and ruffed a third round. A diamond was led to the jack, which held, and now the club finesse was taken. It lost and West returned a club. With the K-10 of diamonds still in West's hand a diamond trick, and defeat, had to be conceded.

Due to the excellent lay of cards the contract could have been made by expert play. With West doubling it was highly unlikely that the club finesse would succeed. If, after successfully finessing the diamond jack, declarer had played back to his ace of clubs and thrown West on lead with another club West either would have had to lead away from his diamond king to the North-South combined tenace or, by returning a spade, permit a ruff and a discard.

Adamowski Asserts Relief System Leads to Refusal to Work

"Let George do it" is the philosophy that the present relief system is developing in the people it cares for, Benjamin S. Adamowski, majority leader of the Illinois house of representatives, told members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at their third annual civic institute yesterday at the Hotel Sherman.

"With about 235 millions voted for relief in Illinois alone during the last five years, and another special session to vote more relief funds in prospect, no wonder there is a growing belief that it isn't necessary to work for a living," Mr. Adamowski said.

"I'd like to vote against these relief appropriations, but I wouldn't dare to, not with several police posted outside my house to keep off the crowds that besiege my house every time I go to Springfield," Mr. Adamowski added.

"It is you women and your husbands who are footing the bill, and it is you who should arouse public opinion so that every able bodied man would have to prove his willingness to provide for himself and his family."

Dress Fashions Set Tempo for Dance Styles

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Feminine fashions are the barometer for popular music, according to B. A. Rolfe, veteran showman.

"A glance at the portraits of the ladies of the ages, a résumé of the dance music of the past, and a comparison of the two clearly indicate that musical trends follow costume fashions, particularly skirt lengths," claims the maestro.

"For instance, a review of the music and styles of the 18th century instantly suggests stately ladies dressed in silks and satins. Those costumes could not adapt themselves to dances other than the courtly minuets and picturesque curtsies which governed the general musical tempo.

"The transition from the graceful minuet to the livelier polka," continued Rolfe, "was gradual, but was instigated by the change from colonial costumes to frocks dominated by high bustles and mutton-leg sleeves. With the outbreak of the civil war women had to take a more active part in the life of the country. As their lives became more active their costumes became less cumbersome and soon they were dancing the polka. A demure dance, and a far cry from the present 'Big Apple,' but nevertheless a sprightly hop, skip, and jump to the tune of tum, tum, ta-da-da, tum, tum, ta-da-da.

"Fashion then dictated the billowy hoop skirts which called for a graceful gliding motion and the whole world was dancing to Strauss' 'Blue Danube.'

"Then, without warning," said Rolfe, "the Spanish-American war broke out and soon the whole country was marching. Women caught the quickened tempo, dropped their bustles over night, and turned into Gibson Girls with an early twentieth century efficiency, pompadour, shirtwaist, and all. And what dance appealed to these first emancipated women? The two-step. And so, through the early part of the twentieth century the nation two-stepped to the peppy martial music of the day.

"The next major event dramatically to change the lives and costumes of women was the world war. Feverishly women rushed into this activity and that. Skirts began to creep up. A new woman who had legs, not limbs, was born. Skirts became shorter and shorter, which marked the birth of modern music by Irving Berlin. With skirts to the knees, and above, jaz orchestras blossomed and the 'Bunny Hug' and the 'Poodle Dog Walk' became the rage.

"Gradually the post-war unrest subsided," said Rolfe, "and women longed for the flowing grace of longer skirts, at least for evening wear. Down went dancing skirts, down to the floor, and in came a whole new world of music, keyed to a slow, languid romantic tempo, and for the first time Rudy Vallee thrilled the world with his softly crooned ballads.

"For several seasons the country drifted, lulled by a languorous mood, but now a new pulse beat is felt. Fashion dictates form-fitting frocks, slit skirts with the evening hemline showing more and more of twinkling ankles, and now, as milady swirls through the rhumba, the shag, and variations of the 'Big Apple,'" said Rolfe, "bandmasters of today interpret the new fashion moods in a quickened tempo such as 'She's Tall, She's Tan, She's Terrific,' from this season's 'Cotton Club Review.'"

Will Durant Names Ten Great Thinkers in Address to Club

Dr. Will Durant, author and philosopher, spoke yesterday before the Executives' club on "The Ten Greatest Thinkers." His list included Confucius, Plato, Aristotle, Copernicus, Francis Bacon, Newton, Spinoza, Voltaire, Kant, and Charles Darwin. A number of coaches and officials of the Big Ten conference were guests, and Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, was toastmaster.

Dr. Durant defined a thinker as "a man to whom thinking is the primary aim of life, and who thinks in order to understand the world and man." Influence, he said, was the touchstone of greatness.

He told his listeners "You know in your hearts you are more interested in philosophy than you are in business," and urged them to study Plato and Spinoza.

OUSTED MAYOR BANGS CLEARED; RETURNS TO JOB

Judge Holds Malfeasance Charge Unfounded.

Marion, Ind., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—C. W. H. Bangs, crusading mayor of Huntington, Ind., who served several months behind the bars in 1935 and 1936, was found not guilty today in Grant county Circuit court of charges on which his council had impeached him. A courtroom audience cheered the decision.

Mayor Bangs.

Judge O. D. Clawson held there had been no malfeasance or misfeasance in Bangs' office, as his councilmen had charged. The ruling had the effect of upholding Bangs' right to continue as mayor for the balance of his term, which expires Jan. 1, 1939.

The case grew out of the mayor's losing fight to sell electric power from the municipally owned street lighting plant in Huntington in competition with the Northern Indiana Power company, which services that area.

Impeached by 5 to 2 Vote.

After a council trial lasting eight months, Bangs was impeached by a vote of 5 to 2. The council convicted him on fourteen of nineteen counts, most of which concerned his unsuccessful attempts to establish the municipal utility. One allegation said, "he further disgraced the city by publishing his picture posed behind prison bars."

Bangs appealed to the Circuit court of Grant county rather than have his case heard in Huntington county.

In giving his ruling Judge Clawson explained that he first had believed Bangs was defying court orders. He said he learned later that the mayor was guilty only of civil contempt and that no one except Bangs and the Northern Indiana Power company had been damaged.

Court Sees Simpler Way.

The judge pointed out, however, that Bangs could have attained his ends—supposedly to establish a test case on the matter—by connecting only one consumer to the municipal plant in defiance of court orders instead of 680, as he did.

Bangs returned to Huntington soon after the ruling. He promised he would give his townsmen a good administration for the rest of his term. He regretted, he said, that he would be able to do nothing more on the utility issue.

"I am blocked by the council," he explained, "but the issue will come up in the next election."

PREDICTS 200,000 NOW ROAMING U.S. WILL SLAY 300,000

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—G-Man J. Edgar Hoover discussed the law of probability today with men most interested in that subject—life insurance company officials. He forecast the probability that some 200,000 potential murderers now roaming the United States will slay more than 300,000 persons before the actuarial books are closed with the deaths of the 200,000 criminals.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, the director of the federal bureau of investigation declared that records show that about 50 per cent of all prisoners are now being released on parole. "The criminal army of America is composed of 4,300,000 persons," Hoover said. "It is estimated there are more than 13,000 cases of murder and manslaughter every year."

Dr. Alexis Carrel, noted Rockefeller institute scientist, also spoke before the convention. He declared the problem of longevity is now entering a new period of history. This is necessarily so, he said, because hygiene and medicine, the means by which the greatest increase in the duration of life has been brought about, have nearly completed their work in prolonging lives and future work must be on biological factors.

Northwestern's basketball team opened its season with a 53 to 23 victory over Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., before a crowd of four thousand at Patten gymnasium last night. The Wildcats rolled up a 25 to 9 lead at the half and maintained this margin during the second period.

The Wildcats exhibited a smooth functioning offense that enabled them to work the ball down the floor for frequent close-in shots. At the same time the Purple clamped a tight defense on the Minnesota five. Seven minutes elapsed before Oscar Olson scored Carleton's first field goal.

Olson Tops Scoring.

Olson, who played all but a few minutes of the game, was the high scorer with six field goals and a free throw for 13 points. Capt. Fred Trenkle led Northwestern's attack with five field goals and a free throw for 12 points.

The new rule eliminating the center jump after field goals speeded up the game and resulted in higher scoring. Following a goal the ball is placed in play out of bounds under the basket of the team scored upon, requiring the defensive team to fall back quickly to cover its territory. The fast pace forced both teams to make frequent substitutions. Northwestern used sixteen players. Score:

CHICAGO FACES DE PAUL

The University of Chicago tonight will unveil a basketball team for which high hopes are held. The unveiling will be undertaken by De Paul university's Blue Demons in the Midway fieldhouse.

High hopes at the Midway do not include hope of a Big Ten championship, but just hope that the Maroon team will win a fair share of victories. Chicago has gone through its last two seasons without a conference victory, and is now planning to end the drouth with a rain of baskets.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

FEW realized that Noble Kizer, 1,500 miles away from the battle scene, played an important part in Purdue's football victory over Indiana, Nov. 20. . . . A telephone with amplifying attachments was set up in the Boilermakers' dressing room and five minutes before the players left their quarters Kizer gave them a pep talk that was said to rival Rockne's best. . . . Kizer, who was in Albuquerque, N. M., at the time, has moved to Tucson, Ariz., where he will spend the winter. . . . He expects to be back in Lafayette April 1 to direct spring practice. . . . Bill Fleckenstein's suit against Benny Friedman and a national magazine for libel has been placed on the January calendar of a New Jersey court. . . . Fleckenstein, former Iowa football player and later a linesman in the National Professional league, objected to references in Friedman's article about his unsportsmanlike conduct and has sued both Friedman and the magazine for $250,000 each. . . . Asked at a sports celebrity program in Ottawa, Ill., the other night what was his greatest thrill in football, Gaynell Tinsley, All-American from Louisiana State now playing with the Chicago Cardinals, said: "That's easy. It was the pass I caught from Sammy Baugh which resulted in the touchdown that won for the All-Stars over the Green Bay Packers at Soldiers' field." . . .

Previous performances of the White Sox's new players, Gerald Walker and Marvin Owen, against the Cubs should stir no alarm on the north side about the 1938 city series, if any. . . . Owen hit safely only once in twenty times in the 1935 world series. . . . Walker failed to hit in two appearances as a pinch hitter in the third and fifth games, but he got a single in two times at bat in the final game for an average of .250. . . . Oze Simmons, former Iowa half back, has been the outstanding player on the Paterson, N. J., Panther eleven this fall. . . . Boston fans have started a campaign to change the name of the Bees back to Braves on the theory that the present nickname is meaningless. . . . Chicago, which dropped Purdue a year ago because it wanted to lighten its schedule, has carded the Boilermakers for 1940. . . .

Ross to Wed Miss Siegel Tomorrow

Barney Ross, world's welterweight boxing champion, and Miss Pearl Siegel, daughter of the owner of a chain of department stores in New Jersey, will be married tomorrow at the champion's home, 1307 Independence boulevard, it was reported last night.

After the ceremony Ross, whose right name is Barnet David Rasofsky, and his bride will make their home in New York. Barney met Miss Siegel while preparing for his successful title defense against Ceferino Garcia last September. Ross will be 28 years old on Dec. 23. Miss Siegel is 23.

A family dinner party was given by Barney's mother, Mrs. Sarah Rasofsky, at the family home last night. Among those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. A. Robert Siegel, parents of the bride-to-be.

When their engagement was announced it was reported that Ross, who has earned more than a quarter million dollars with his fists since he won a Chicago Golden Gloves title in 1929, would retire from the ring after his marriage. On Thursday, however, it was said that the champion had changed his mind and will resume his campaign next year.

Capt. Davis Named to Head National A. A. U. Board

Capt. Roy E. Davis, head of the Central A. A. U. boxing committee, last night was notified of his appointment by Judge Samuel E. Hoyt, recently elected president of the National A. A. U., as chairman of the national organization's boxing board. The notification came from Secretary Daniel J. Ferris.

A COLLECTOR'S ITEM IN MAJORS' MART? MUNGO!

4 National Clubs Seeking Dodger.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The big shots of baseball, most of them weary as the result of three days of futile dickering during the minor league convention at Milwaukee, moved into Chicago last night. They brought with them most of their original trading plans, and for the next five days will continue their efforts to outfox one another.

The actual annual business sessions of the two big leagues aren't scheduled to take place until Monday, but in the interval the playing managers may be able to arrange changing the places of employment for at least a few diamond performers.

Mungo Is No. 1 Item.

Chief among these possible transactions is the shipment to a new port of Van Lingle Mungo, the Brooklyn club's right handed mound expert, who has broadcast that he'll never put on a Dodger uniform as long as Burleigh Grimes is the manager.

Grimes, just as determined to be rid of Mungo as the latter is to get off the Brooklyn pay roll, played his cards expertly at Milwaukee. He knows four clubs—the Giants, the Cubs, the Pirates, and the Cardinals—want his wayward boy, but he is not going to appear over anxious about concluding the matter.

Terry Leads Bidders.

The present leader in the maneuvering to capture Mungo is said to be Bill Terry, manager of the Giants. Terry won't admit it and neither will Grimes, but rumors have it that the New York club has made an offer that the other Mungo seekers aren't in a position to equal. All that is known about this is that Pitcher Hal Schumacher is one of several present Giants the latter club is willing to include in the swap.

Still another angle in the Mungo-to-New York rumor is that Buddy Hassett, Brooklyn first baseman, also will figure. The Giants need a first sacker and if they can land Hassett they'll send McCarthy to the Dodgers. Terry even is interested in Rip Collins of the Cubs for that position. To get the Ripper the Giants would have to surrender an outfielder such as Hank Lieber.

Grimm Is Stymied.

Charley Grimm, the boss of the Cubs, was a slightly dejected individual when he returned from Milwaukee last night. Herr Charley went up there with his hopes high. He was sure he would be able to make some headway in his trading plans, but was stymied because everybody he talked to asked for what he can't afford to surrender.

According to Grimm he couldn't even get into a health conversation with the Brooklyn leader. Whenever the Cub manager button holed Grimes with the idea of getting onto the Mungo subject the latter would say, "I'll see you in Chicago." Grimm intends to keep the appointment, but doesn't expect to accomplish his purpose.

Dykes, Cochrane Return.

When James Dykes, the White Sox manager, returned last evening he had with him none other than Mike Cochrane, the Detroit boss. They are the pair that put across the one big deal of the Milwaukee convention. Cochrane now dreads going back to Detroit, because he included Gerald Walker in the deal. Jerry was Detroit's most popular performer, despite his inclination to run wild on the bases and occasionally drop a fly ball. Dykes already has a plan to satisfy Cochrane's enraged constituents. He'll give Walker back to the Tigers for Rudy York, but Cochrane won't listen.

Dykes' job for the next few days is to see what can be done about the much talked of swap involving Infielder Buddy Myer of the Washington club. He admitted yesterday that he had made Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, a definite proposition. Dykes is willing to give First Baseman Zeke Bonura and Utility Fielder Lou Berger for Myer and First Baseman Joe Kuhel. Griffith is holding out for a better bid.

Illinois College Conference Is Born Officially

The Illinois College conference, a new athletic league of ten state colleges, came officially into being yesterday.

Resignations of the ten schools which will affiliate in the new conference were accepted unanimously by the Little Nineteen conference. Illinois Wesleyan, Bradley, James Millikin, Illinois college, Augustana, North Central, Wheaton, Lake Forest, Monmouth, and Knox comprise the new conference.

Secession of these colleges left St. Viator, Carthage, Elmhurst, Eureka, Shurtleff, McKendree, and the five normal schools in the Little Nineteen.

Monmouth and Knox submitted formal resignations as Little Nineteen representatives opened a conference meeting at the Sherman hotel. Little Nineteen by-laws, requiring such withdrawals to be filed six months in advance, were waived in the cases of Monmouth and Knox.

Freshman Rule Brought Conflict.

The freshman eligibility rule was the main point of conflict within the old conference,

The Illinois conference decided to require—until next fall—only one semester's residence for varsity competition, the period to be extended to one year at the opening of the 1938-'39 school term.

Faculty advisers, athletic directors, and coaches agreed upon dates for conference meets in four spring sports and decided to permit invitational affairs in which championships would not be recognized in two other sports, wrestling and indoor track. It was decided to continue athletic relations with members of the Little Nineteen and other outside schools.

The Little Nineteen placed in the hands of a dual committee the advisability of scheduling conference meets in spring sports.

Moore Heads New Conference.

The new conference elected H. M. Moore of Lake Forest president; J. A. Campbell of Knox vice president, and C. L. Miller of Millikin, secretary treasurer.

The Little Nineteen elected Frank Phillips of De Kalb president; C. V. Money of Shurtleff, vice president; H. L. Wagner of Carthage, secretary, and C. P. Lantz of Charleston, treasurer.

The Illinois conference awarded spring meets as follows: Invitational indoor track meet to North Central, March 12; swimming championship to North Central, March 19; outdoor track, golf, and tennis championships to Knox, May 28; invitational wrestling meet to Wheaton, date not set. Three district tennis meets will be held at Bradley, North Central, and Monmouth two weeks prior to the championship.

ALABAMA SQUAD BEGINS TRAINING ALL OVER AGAIN

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Alabama's Rose Bowl-bound squad returned to practice today to begin preparations for the New Year's day game with California at Pasadena.

Calisthenics and "loosening up" exercises comprised Alabama's first post-season drill. Regular practice will not begin until Monday.

Three injured regulars, Capt. Leroy Monsky and Lew Bostick, guards, and Charley Holm, full back, hurt in the Vanderbilt game, were in uniform with the rest of the squad today. Coach Frank Thomas said he expected them to be in good shape by Jan. 1.

Army Names William Wood Football Coach

William Wood.

Capt. Wood will assume his duties next summer, when he will report for duty at the academy after an absence of a year, during which he attended the command and general staf school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas. With only a few intervals, he has been a member of the Army coaching staf since his graduation in 1925.

Entered in 1921.

Wood entered West Point in 1921, after attending Johns Hopkins university for two years. Making the varsity that year, he became well known as a hard plunging full back, whose kicking and defensive ability stood out against all opponents. He played this position for four years, and only once was he outkicked during that period.

An all-round athlete, he also played basketball and baseball, winning four letters in each of those sports, being captain of the basketball team in his first class year. He won twelve letters during his cadet career, possible at that time because a plebe was allowed to play varsity sports.

Was Basketball Coach.

Returning to West Point in 1925, he was placed on temporary duty as plebe back field coach. The next year he again returned, this time as a varsity back field coach, which position he held during 1926, 1927, and 1928; and 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, and 1936. Thoroughly familiar with the Army system which he has helped build up, it will not be necessary for him to start at the bottom, as he will be able to take over where his predecessors left off without losing a step.

NAVY SCHEDULE COMPLETE.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The United States Naval academy's football team will play two games each in Baltimore and Philadelphia next season, according to the 1938 schedule, released today. The Middies will meet Princeton and Notre Dame in Baltimore on Oct. 22 and Nov. 5, respectively, while Philadelphia will see them battle Pennsylvania on Oct. 29 and Army on Nov. 25. Other Navy games are: Sept. 24, William and Mary, here; Oct. 1, Virginia Military institute, here; Oct. 8, University of Virginia, here; Oct. 15, Yale at New Haven, Conn., and Nov. 12, Columbia at New York.

COACHES WANT TO BRING BACK TRAINING TABLE

Ask Faculty Heads to Back Move.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[SCHEDULES ON NEXT PAGE.]

Western conference athletic directors, meeting with the faculty committee in their annual business meeting at the University club last night, recommended the reinstatement of the United States Military academy as a qualified opponent of Big Ten teams and proposed lifting of the ban on training tables.

Action on these proposals and also on a suggestion by the directors that the limit on traveling football squads be raised from 40 to 45 men will be taken today at the executive meeting of the faculty committee.

The Army was removed from the list of qualified opponents in 1932 because its eligibility rules differ from those of the Big Ten. Students are permitted to play three years at West Point regardless of previous varsity competition. The Big Ten limits an athlete's combined competition to three years.

May Get Favorable Action.

Illinois, which completed a series with the Army in 1934, was the leader in the attempt to reinstate the military academy. Directors said last night they believed the faculty committee would act favorably on their suggestion.

The training table proposal provides for the universities to furnish athletes evening meals four days a week. Football coaches were the leaders in reviving the issue, which was voted down by the faculty committee five years ago. It was pointed out that in the case of football the institutions feed athletes two days a week now. Coaches contend that a boy is in as much need of diet regulation after practice as he is on the day before and the day of the contest.

Attention was centered on the training table last season when it was revealed in some universities that football players often were not receiving proper food. Late practices, necessitated by class schedules, prevented them from arriving at fraternity and boarding houses at the dinner hour.

Want New Officials.

Football coaches, meeting for a round table discussion at the Sherman hotel yesterday while coaches of minor sports drew up winter and spring schedules, took up the matter of officiating, which has led to unconcealed dissatisfaction in the last few seasons. The coaches went on record as favoring asking the conference commissioner, Maj. John L. Griffith, to supply them with a complete list of Big Ten officials, detailing their age and period of service, and petitioning the commissioner to employ more new men in Big Ten games.

Methods employed in the south, where young officials are scouted and schooled, were advanced as a possible solution to the Big Ten problem. Several of the coaches deplored the difficulties high school referees have in breaking into the select circle. High school games were held to be the best training ground for officials. Everything that can possibly happen in football usually takes place in prep games, it was pointed out.

Satisfied with Rules.

After considerable discussion of limitations on defense and the professional forward pass rule, which permits throwing the ball from any point behind the line of scrimmage, the coaches went on record as opposing changes in the football rules. Their recommendation will be forwarded to the national football rules committee.

It also was decided to recommend to the directors that all games be officially timed by electric clocks placed on the scoreboard and operated from the sidelines. It also was recommended that all officials wear shirts or jerseys vertically striped in black and white.

Maj. Griffith was instructed to call a meeting of football coaches and officials for an interpretation of rules on the morning of THE TRIBUNE's an-

Judge Bramham Re-Elected Minor League President

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Judge W. G. Bramham was reëlected president of the National Association of Minor Leagues for five years with a salary increase from $12,500 to $20,000 annually as the minor league meeting came to a close today. The offices of president and secretary were combined and J. H. Farrell, treasurer since 1901, will draw salary through 1938 and then receive an annuity.

No action was taken on the minor-major pact which expires next February and representatives of both the minor and major leagues will discuss its renewal at Chicago. Also to come up for discussion next week will be regulations on the signing of college players.

WEST SUBURBAN CONFERENCE.

Glenbard at Hinsdale, 7:30 p. m.

Buettner Makes 13 Points.

The heavies' attack was led by Buettner, a forward, who make thirteen points. York led, 7 to 4, at the quarter, 9 to 7 at the half time, and 25 to 16 at the conclusion of the third quarter.

Riverside earned an even break in a double-header with Downers Grove on the latter's floor. The lightweight team won, 19 to 15, and Downers routed Riverside, 36 to 16, in the heavyweight game.

New Trier, Waukegan Divide.

In the opening of the Suburban league, New Trier and Waukegan divided a pair of games on the Waukegan floor. The Waukegan lightweight five won, 32 to 22, and the New Trier heavyweights rallied in the closing minutes to triumph, 45 to 41.

CARDINALS SEEK BALM AGAINST BEARS TOMORROW

Tinsley, Manders to Aim for Records.

The Chicago Cardinals get their last chance to gain some measure of satisfaction from the 1937 football season tomorrow when they play the Bears at Wrigley field. A victory over the western division champs will send the Cardinal players scattering to their various homes tomorrow, knowing they can play football with the best in the league.

Tinsley Seeks Record.

The Bears defeated the Cards, 16-7, on Oct. 17, in a game the Red Birds might have won if a few breaks had gone their way. They fumbled away two touchdowns in the last quarter to give the Bears victory.

Two of the players tomorrow will have personal records to attend to. Gaynell Tinsley, brilliant end of the Cardinals, can set a new league record by gaining thirty-four yards on passes, thus passing Don Hutson of Green Bay, who finished with a grand total of 552.

Manders Out for Mark.

SHAMROCK POLO TEAM TO MAKE SENIOR DEBUT

The Chicago Shamrocks, winners of the junior title for two years in a row, will make their debut as a senior division team tonight in the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league. They will meet the Detroit Gold Hats at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street.

The Shamrocks will present a six goal team, the minimum for senior division contenders, and will receive a three point handicap over their nine goal opponents.

The Red Legs and Senecas, entrants in the junior class, will play in the first game of the doubleheader. Lineup:

| RED LEGS. | | SENECAS. |
| Lt. L. Pachl | No. 1 | Lt. H. Hite |
| Lt. R. Rasmussen | No. 2 | Lt. Col. Rinehart |
| Lt. B. Doherty | Back | Lt. A. Pio |

Elect Woolmington Captain of Wheaton Soccer Squad

The Wheaton college soccer squad yesterday elected Parker Woolmington of Narbeth, Pa., captain for next year. Wheaton concluded its schedule recently, winning three and losing four. Losses were by narrow margins to Army, Princeton, Westchester Teachers, and Oak Park Acorns. Victories were scored over Rockford, St. Johns university, and Oberlin college. Herb Jauchen of Leominster, Mass., was elected manager.

Bowler, Father of Knot Hole Gang, Honored with Trophy

As "father of the knot hole gang," Thomas J. Bowler, clerk of the Criminal court, yesterday was presented with a gold trophy to commemorate his fifteen years' service as commissioner of amateur and semi-pro baseball in Chicago. Mr. Bowler fathered a movement to get boys into major league ball parks for 25 cents admission, and finally succeeded in having them admitted free one day each week.

Rice to Play S. M. U., with Title at Stake

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Down and out where the sun shines bright—and well into the winter—the football season still is a fact rather than a memory. Twenty teams of major rank clash this week end on southern, southwestern and Pacific coast gridirons in disputes of sectional and intersectional importance.

Most important nationally of ten games is the meeting at Dallas between Southern Methodist and Rice. The Owls, staging a fast finish largely on the passing proficiency of Sophomore Ernie Lain, must beat S. M. U. to win the Southwest conference title.

What a Defeat Means.

Defeat for Rice will mean a gift of the championship, and the right to meet all winning Colorado and Whizzer White in the Cotton Bowl, to Texas Christian, which has finished its schedule.

The southwest also will have an entry in the day's intersectional debates, as Texas A. and M. will battle San Francisco on the latter's home grounds. Other intersectional pairings will find Manhattan at Tulsa to meet the Missouri Valley conference champions; Duquesne at Mississippi State, and Oregon at Arizona.

Expect 67,000 at Los Angeles.

The largest crowd of the day, 67,000, is expected at Los Angeles, where the University of Southern California's Trojans will be favored to win the city title from U. C. L. A.

In the old south, there will be Southeastern conference duels between Florida and Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi. A nonconference match brings together Louisiana Tech and Centenary.

Only one game of any rank is scheduled for Sunday. Loyola of Los Angeles will play host to Gonzaga.

GRINNELL QUITS AS MEMBER OF MISSOURI VALLEY

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Prof. E. D. Strong of Grinnell college informed the faculty representatives of the Missouri Valley conference tonight that Grinnell college wished to withdraw from the group, effective June 1, 1939.

After asking Grinnell to reconsider its action, the faculty representatives accepted the Iowa school's resignation when Prof. Strong insisted that the resolution asking Grinnell to reconsider be withdrawn.

Prof. Strong pointed out that Grinnell could not compete athletically with other schools in the conference because of its limited student body and that the city of Grinnell was not large enough to furnish crowds comparable to those attending athletic events in other schools.

The remaining schools in the conference are: Drake university of Des Moines, Oklahoma A. & M. of Stillwater, Creighton of Omaha, St. Louis university and Washington university of St. Louis, Tulsa university and Washburn college of Topeka, Kan.

ALUMNI TO HONOR WISCONSIN HEAD WITH BANQUET

The University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago will hold a welcome dinner in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel tonight for President Clarence Dykstra and the 1937 Badger football squad. The program will open with a reception for President and Mrs. Dykstra, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. Head Coach Harry and Mrs. Stuhldreher will be in the reception line with assistant coaches, members of the team, and Chicago alumni and alumnæ of Wisconsin.

Gordon E. Fox, president of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago, will be toastmaster. George I. Haight, former president of the Wisconsin Alumni association, is chairman of the reception committee. Members of Wisconsin's Haresfoot club will present a number of burlesque skits of student life.

HOPPE CREATES WORLD RECORD IN SCHAEFER MATCH

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Willie Hoppe tonight made a world's record high run of 248 in the tenth block of his match with Jake Schaefer of Chicago in the French game of 71.2 balkline. The previous mark of 223 was set by Rogers Conti of France, the European champion.

Schaefer, having won the afternoon block, 250 to 93, in six innings for the best game until tonight, was in a position to square the match. Now, with Hoppe leading, six blocks to four, Jake must win the remaining two blocks tomorrow in order to tie.

Aurel Joliat, Canadiens to Face Hawks

Games Tonight

New York Americans at Montreal Maroons, Montreal Canadiens at Toronto Maple Leafs.

When the Blackhawks meet the Montreal Canadiens at the Stadium tomorrow night in their first clash in Chicago this season, hocky fans will see a puck chaser who, because of his weight, is looked upon as one of the physical marvels of sport.

With the retirement of Frank [King] Clancy from active play to the röle of manager of the Montreal Maroons, little Aurel Joliat of Montreal Canadiens, who weighs only 136 pounds, is the player of lengthiest continuous service in the National Hocky league. Joliat broke into the National league in 1922, and holds the record of having served not only 15 straight seasons, but all with the same team, possibly a record for major professional team sport of any kind. Joliat is starting his 16th season with the Canadiens.

Patrick Praises Seibert.

Manager Bill Stewart sent all of the Blackhawks, with the exception of Mush March, through an intensive drill yesterday afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's game with Cecil Hart's Flying Frenchmen. The same procedure will be followed this afternoon. The team knows it will have to be at its best to win from the Canadiens—who handed the Boston Bruins their first defeat Thursday.

March to Start.

ASK OAK PARK NOT TO USE COLORED BACK AT MIAMI

Oak Park High school's football team, Suburban league champion, will be without the services of Lew Pope, colored half back, for the intersectional game with Miami Central High at Miami, Fla., Christmas day. Officials of the southern contest yesterday requested Coach Glenn Holmes of Oak Park to keep Pope out of the lineup.

Coach Holmes is hopeful of obtaining permission to take Pope on the trip. Pope, 17 years old, is a senior. Oak Park was selected to represent the north in the game after Austin, city champion, accepted an offer to play in Memphis, Tenn., on Dec. 11.

ALUMNI HONOR N. U. ELEVEN AT DINNER TONIGHT

Northwestern university's varsity and freshman football teams will be honored by alumni at the annual dinner at the Stevens hotel tonight. A capacity crowd of 1,500 alumni and students will attend the banquet, which is sponsored by the Northwestern University club of Chicago.

Former Wildcat All-Americans and those who have received the most valuable player awards in previous years will be the guests of the club. Next year's captain and the most valuable player for the season just closed will be elected and varsity letters and freshman numerals awarded.

Speakers at the dinner will include Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner; President Walter Dill Scott, Tug Wilson, athletic director, and Coach Lynn Waldorf. H. L. Wessling, president of the club, will be toastmaster.

TUCKER LEADS ACES.

John Tucker, House of David first baseman, will lead a professional basketball team, the Bearded Aces, into Chicago against the Harlem Globe Trotters next Thursday night at St. Phillip gymnasium.

DINGHIES WILL RACE TODAY IN RACINE HARBOR

A fleet of at least fourteen Frostbite dinghies will race today at Racine, Wis., for the first annual Frostbite sailing championship of Lake Michigan. More than half the boats and crews will represent Chicago harbors.

The new A. J. Horlick trophy will be presented the skipper winning the most points out of three races. The starting gun will be fired at 2 p. m.

THERE'LL BE SOME FANCY EFFECTS AT ICE CARNIVAL

Skating Stars to Perform at Arena.

The production reaches a climax in the "Modern Mechanics" number in which members of the cast are made to resemble mechanical robots through the use of lighting devices. The musical background has been provided by Sanford Gold, who arranged the music for the Winterland carnival at the Cleveland exposition.

The cast of the "Gay Blades" company is headed by Maribel Vinson, outstanding figure skater. Among others who will perform are Guy Owen, ice dancing star; Frances Claudet of Ottawa; Frederic Mesot; the Simpson sisters of Banff, Canada; Mary Jane Halsted of Toronto; the comedy team of Ted Cave and Alfred Trenkler, and the Ice Rockettes, a girls' group from Canada.

CHAMPIONS TO BE NAMED TONIGHT AT HORSE SHOW

Nan-Su Farm Holds Lead; Red Top Takes Second.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They'll crown the horse champions at the international show at the International Amphitheater tonight. Six championship stakes, featured by the $2,500 world championship five gaited saddle horse event, will be the high spots on the program.

As the show swings into the final day Nan-Su farm, owned by Melville Rothschild of Highland Park, continued to enjoy the lead for championship honors.

The Highland Park horses made little progress yesterday, however, while Miss Judy King's steeds added a blue ribbon and other honors to their score. At the same time Irving S. Florsheim's Red Top farm horses also fought their way into a contending position.

How They Stand.

| | 1st. | 2d. | 3d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Red Top farm [Irving S. Florsheim, Libertyville] | 8 | 6 | 1 |
| Miss Judy King, Atlanta, Ga. | 7 | 8 | 3 |
| Heyl Pony farm, Washington, Ill. | 6 | 9 | 3 |
| Delaine farm [H. S. Silberman, Glenview, Ill.] | 5 | 1 | 5 |
| Happy Way farm [Mrs. A. C. Thompson, Elmhurst, Ill.] | 4 | 7 | 12 |
| R. C. Flanery, Kansas, Ill. | 4 | 5 | 2 |
| James Vernor Jr., Detroit, Mich. | 4 | 0 | 2 |
| Geo. J. Peak & Sons, Winchester, Illinois | 3 | 3 | 7 |

A $500 stake for fine harness horses, to be judged by their conformation, finish, style, soundness, adaptability to harness, all round action, and way of going, was the headliner on last night's program.

Meadow Vanity, a winner at the recent New York show, carried away high honors for Red Top farm. This young harness star showed in excellent form. A second stake on the program was also worth $500. It was for junior five gaited horses. High honors went to the Florsheim owned Scarlet Secret. This triumph moved the Libertyville owned stable into second place in the standing.

Mount Adams Wins.

A brown gelding named Mt. Adams from Miss Lucy Kaufman's stable at Indianapolis, Ind., won the $1,000 champion jumper stake, one of the feature events on last night's program. Jumpoffs over the ten jump course were required to determine the first six places. Shannon d'Or, sorrel gelding owned by F. J. Anderson of St. Paul, Minn., was second and Rollo Reed, bay gelding owned by the Happy Way farms, Elmhurst, Ill., third.

Defeating the Black Horse troop, 5½ to 2, the Evanston Polo club team of Mike Healy, Hobart [Cowboy] Reed and Dan Peacock last night won the game that carried it to the title in the round robin tournament held in conjunction with the horse show.

nual All-Star game next summer. Officiating technique as well as rules discussions will be stressed at that time.

The fourteen year breach in relations between Notre Dame and Michigan was closed with the scheduling of a track meet between the schools at Ann Arbor on March 5 and a tennis match on May 5. The site of the tennis match has not been selected.

Football Game Not Discussed.

Coach Elmer Layden of Notre Dame and Athletic Director Fielding Yost of Michigan said football had not been discussed in connection with a resumption of relations between the two institutions, but that something might be done about such a contest at the spring meeting of the football coaches. Notre Dame is booked solid until 1940, when its schedule is complete except for an opening game. Michigan is committed to Michigan State for its opening date, leaving 1941 as the earliest possible date for resumption of football relations.

Schedules were drawn up for track, wrestling, tennis, and golf. Ohio State was awarded the Big Ten outdoor track meet on May 20 and 21. The indoor meet, March 11 and 12, again will be held at Chicago. The second annual dual meet between stars from the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast conference will be held in the Chicago area either the week before or the week after the National Collegiate meet at Minneapolis on June 17 and 18. Northwestern is said to be the likely site of this meet,

Bowling Stars to Compete Tonight in City Tourney

Chicago's leading bowling teams will compete tonight in the city tournament at the 131 South Wabash alleys. Among those who will try to oust the Budweisers from the major division lead are the Oak Leaf Motors, Baby Ruths, Power House Candy, Pragers, C. H. Webers, Live Stock Press, Burlington Zephyrs, Birk Brothers, and Fox De Luxe. The Budweisers have a total of 2,955.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Flora of Chicagoland

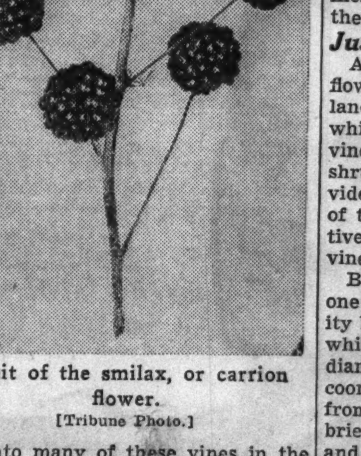
[THE CARRION FLOWER.]

December 3, 1937.

WHEN the outdoor fan walks through ungrazed woodlands in Chicagoland early in the summer he often finds himself tangled up in vines that weave in and out of the other vegetation a foot or two above the ground. These vines are annoying to say the least and often cause painful spills.

When we walked over the experimental farm early in the summer we ran into many of these vines in the heavy stands of oak timber where thousands of young cherry trees and numerous plants grow beneath the tall oaks. In one place we encountered a regular barricade of twisting vines that came up from the ground to cling to saplings.



Fruit of the smilax, or carrion flower.

Winter Beauty.

One of these shrubby vines that bother the outdoor fan in the summer is now making up for all the trouble it caused. This is the smilax [Smilax herbacea]. Practically all other plants or shrubs in the woods are devoid of decorative features at this season, but the smilax is carrying attractive clusters of blue black berries which delight the eye on a snowy winter day.

The smilax plants or briers are shrubby vines with tendrils which enable them to climb and display their smooth, shining leaves in the summer months. The one that we find on the farm is known as the carrion flower. There's a reason behind that name. The flowers of the plant have a highly disagreeable odor. In fact, they repel all discriminating insects, for the smell is similar to that of decayed flesh. Only the carrion flies like the scent. They alone visit the blossoms and fertilize them.

Just a Decoration.

As far as we can see, the carrion flower is of no particular value to the landowner. The attractive berries which still remain on some of the vines are not of medicinal value. The shrubby vine isn't big enough to provide cover for birds, and the flowers of the plant are certainly not attractive. About the only contribution the vine can make is decorative.

But the carrion flower does have one relative with an interesting utility background. It is the China brier which grows in Florida. Seminole Indians used to prepare a dish called coontie, or contee, which was made from the starchy roots of the China brier. The roots were chopped up and pounded in a mortar. Then this meal was mixed with water and strained through a basket. The sediment, when dry, was a red meal. This meal was mixed with honey and warm water. It jelled as it cooled and was eaten with corn bread or cakes.

SLOAN OFFERS WAYS TO CURE TRADE SETBACK

Urges Nation Return to Sound Economy.

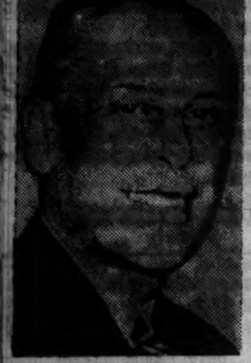
New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A series of concrete proposals for the removal of business fear, "the main obstacle to the general revival of American enterprise," was offered to a group of insurance executives today by Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the General Motors corporation.



Alfred P. Sloan.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Sloan asserted that until fear that the national economy is endangered is removed, "men will not invest their savings and risk their property; neither will they do those other things so essential in stimulating the expansion of industry."

Sloan Outlines Proposals.

Sloan's proposals included:

Development of "a spirit of coöperation, with mutual respect and confidence among all groups."

Balancing of the national budget through reducing governmental expenses.

Amendment of the Wagner labor relations act.

Determination by "law—not by burocracy"—of the standards of any maximum hour and minimum wage legislation.

Sloan said "the budget must be balanced by reducing expenses of government—not by increasing taxation. Government's share is already absorbing far too great a part of the national income." He asserted the capital gains tax should be eliminated "to accomplish the best result," but "in any event, it should be sharply reduced to the end that there may be a free and unrestricted flow of capital into and within the security market."

Suggests Tax Compromise.

As a compromise of the undistributed profits tax, Sloan said "some reasonable percentage, say 20 per cent, should be definitly allowed to provide for future needs, without penalty."

Sloan's fourth proposal said the Wagner act "should be amended if the broad interests of industry, the public and labor itself are to be served." He said, "unions must accept the same degree of responsibility as do other groups to respect the rights of others; to obey the law; to honor their contracts, and recognize their just share of industry's productivity."

Of the "fear," which he said jeopardized economic foundations, he continued:

"Too many believe, and too much has been done to make them believe, that the industrial system, as we understand it today, is being permitted to exist as a more or less temporary expedient—tolerated, I may say. Hence, that it is to be substantially altered or perhaps superseded. The spirit of industrial enterprise, which has contributed so much to our progress of the past, must be reestablished on a firm foundation by demonstrated fact and understanding as to objectives and methods before American industry can go forward with confidence—nothing else will do.

Roosevelt Plan Assailed.

Adoption of the "prudent investment" valuation basis advocated by President Roosevelt for utility rate making would result in times of economic depression in a loss of business by utility companies, Clyod O. Ruggles, Harvard university professor of utility management, told the meeting.

Utility companies should be allowed to make big earnings in boom times so that they can cut their rates during periods of depression, a necessary move to keep their business from going to other sources for power, said Ruggles. The utility that tries to base its rates on a "prudent investment" yardstick at all times will lose large industrial customers who can generate their own power more economically at certain periods, he asserted.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS RISES TO 86,173 UNITS

Output of passenger automobiles and trucks in American and Canadian factories this week was estimated yesterday at 86,173 units by Ward's Automotive reports. This compared with 58,955 vehicles in the preceding week which included the Thanksgiving holiday, and 101,660 in the corresponding period last year.

Many plants, the agency said, are now operating on a four day production week and schedules for the remainder of 1937 indicate the slack will not be taken up.

Ford's output this week was put at 13,070 vehicles against 7,960 in the preceding week. General Motors turned out 41,400 units compared with the revised production figure of 24,359 for the preceding week.

Rail Fare Hike in Southwest, West Ordered

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—The interstate commerce commission today approved certain increases in passenger fares of the western and southwestern railroads that will yield an estimated $2,500,000 a year to the carriers.

The commission's action today has no direct bearing on the pending railroad petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase and the petition of the eastern roads for a half cent increase in passenger fares.

The principal increase authorized is in the basic railroad fare for Pullman occupancy which is raised from 2 to 2¼ cents per mile. The new schedule calls for a boost in 30 day round trip Pullman railroad fares from 180 per cent of the one way 2 cents per mile rate to 190 per cent of the new 2¼ cents fare.

Other Increases Granted.

A similar percentage increase was made in 30 day round trip coach fares although the basic 2 cents per mile fare remains unchanged.

An increase in first class six month round trip fares from a basis of 1 2-3 of the one way first class fares of 3 cents per mile to a basis of 1 5-6 cents.

A 10 per cent increase in 12 months' excursion fares.

The commission authorized "arbitrary" increases in second class coach fares from Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Pedro, Cal., inland, the increase in each case to be competitive with motor bus rates.

Principal Lines Affected.

The principal carriers affected by the increases are: Union Pacific; Northern Pacific; Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie; Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific; Chicago and North Western; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe; Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines; St. Louis-San Francisco; Missouri Pacific; Southern Pacific; Denver and Rio Grande; Great Northern.

There is now pending before the commission a petition by the Pullman company for an increase in sleeping car fares of approximately 10 per cent. Today's increases, while boosting the railroad fares for Pullman occupancy, do not affect the fares charged by Pullman company.

The commission heard more testimony on the freight rate case. The transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States urged approval of the 15 per cent boost.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western, testified under cross-examination that the roads should have asked a 20 per cent increase. If the 15 per cent increase is granted, he said, the North Western may not apply it to all commodities.

EGG PRICES RISE ON UNFAVORABLE WEATHER NEWS

Refrigerator egg futures advanced yesterday at the Chicago Mercantile exchange on reports of unfavorable weather in the producing areas. The January delivery closed ⅝ cents higher at 18 cents a dozen, and December advanced ¼ cent, closing at 18⅛ cents. The cash market was weak with closing prices unchanged to 1 cent lower.

The Federal Surplus Commodity commission reported purchases of twelve cars of freezer eggs. Storage withdrawals were 4,600 cases less than Thursday in the larger markets.

Cash butter rose to new peaks for the year with all scores sharing in the advance, but traders were cautious, fearing the effects of present high prices on consumption. Futures closed ⅛ to ¼ cent higher and slightly below the opening. Local receipts remained comparatively light.

More Troubles Are Reported Brewing in Mexican Oil Field

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—New trouble is brewing in Mexico's vast oil fields, it was reported today. Angered over President Lazaro Cardenas' grant of big concessions in the lucrative Pozo Rico field to the Mexican Eagle company, a Royal Dutch Shell subsidiary, American interests operating south of the Rio Grande are considering an appeal to the United States department of state, a source close to these companies revealed.

American companies believe the Mexican president is favoring British interests, possibly on the grounds that the English companies have been less prone to turn to their government whenever Mexican legislation adversely affected their interests.

Agree to 35 Pct. Royalty.

The Anglo-Dutch corporation agreed to pay a royalty of 15 to 35 per cent on their new concession, it was said. The customary figure is reported to be from 5 to 10 per cent. The American concerns were said to believe that the higher rate will serve as a precedent for all new concessions. Due to the risk involved in developing new fields, American companies contend it is impossible for them to pay the rate agreed to by the Mexican Eagle company.

Another issue which is causing concern is the deadlock on wage increases. The oil companies have offered to boost workers' pay by a total of 13,700,000 pesos [the peso is 27.8 cents], a sum which the trade unions declare is grossly insufficient.

When it was rumored that the Mexican federal board of arbitration and conciliation would propose a compromise increase of 26,000,000 pesos, the companies threatened to suspend operations. Although the trade unions had access to the companies' books, there was a wide gap between the two estimates of the industry's capacity to pay. The industry charged the union had made an incompetent survey of costs.

Maintain United Front.

Despite the Pozo Rico grant the British and American interests are maintaining their united front against the unions' demands, it was said. It was understood that Shell informed American representatives it would remain adamant on the wage issue.

A clash has developed over the cancelation of Standard Oil of California's leases totaling 350,000 acres in the south of Mexico. Cardenas invoked article 27 of the Mexican constitution, declaring that all subsoil wealth is the property of the nation.

The oil interests call this a violation of the Calles-Morrow agreement. Mexicans assert this agreement was never ratified by their congress and hence has little, if any, legal standing.

American companies have ceased development work entirely.

Two More Fast Trains to West Coast Planned

The Santa Fe and Union Pacific railroads announced yesterday that because of the heavy public demand for space on their high speed trains running between Chicago and Los Angeles, effective about Feb. 20, each road will put a second 39 hour and 45 minute train into service between the two points.

Under the arrangement the Union Pacific will operate its City of Los Angeles every third day, both from Los Angeles and Chicago, and the Santa Fe will run its Super Chiefs from Chicago on Tuesdays and Saturdays and from Los Angeles on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The Union Pacific, which uses the tracks of the North Western between Chicago and Omaha, will have accommodations for coach as well as Pullman passengers on each of its two streamlined trains.

Operated in Two Sections.

The Santa Fe's Super Chiefs will be operated in two sections, one for sleeping car passengers and one for coach passengers.

The Union Pacific is to use the seventeen car streamliner now under construction in the Chicago shops of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. Details of the Santa Fe equipment will be announced later. However, it was learned that all equipment used on the run will be of modern lightweight construction.

Ever since the Santa Fe and Union Pacific have had their 39 hour 45 minute trains in operation between Chicago and Los Angeles these trains have been operated at virtual capacity, and during the peak passenger travel periods of the summer and the holidays they have had long waiting lists.

Bookings Made for April.

The City of Los Angeles of the North Western-Union Pacific has had a waiting list at times of 125 to 150 persons, and customers have made reservations for the Santa Fe's Super Chief as far ahead as April.

The capacity of the Union Pacific's present City of Los Angeles is 75, and the new train will have a capacity of 105, making 180 units of space available every three days. The present Super Chief has a capacity of 103 persons.

10,021 Passengers Leave Chicago Airport in Month

A total of 10,021 passengers departed from the Chicago Municipal airport during November, J. C. Graves, president of the Chicago Airlines Ticket company, reported yesterday. Departures in October were 13,906 passengers. In November, 1936, departures totaled 11,873 persons.

FRANCE ARRANGES TO TAKE 5 MILLION MORE OF U. S. GOLD

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—About $5,000,000 in gold has been engaged for export to France on the Lafayette, sailing tomorrow night, it was reported in Wall street today. This would make a total of $30,250,000 in gold shipped to France since the first week of November.. Early last month $5,000,000 was sent to England.

The latest shipment, like the previous ones, is understood to have been arranged by the French authorities through the American stabilization fund. As such it may not be reflected immediately by a corresponding change in the monetary gold stocks of the country, although it is believed likely that the inactive gold fund of the treasury ultimately will be reduced by a transfer to the stabilization fund to replace the gold released by it for the shipment.

Against the reported export to France, imports of $2,194,400 in gold were reported officially today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. These included $1,893,800 from Canada and $97,800 from India received here and $202,800 from Australia received in San Francisco.

The dollar's value rose in relation to foreign currencies on exchange transactions today. The British pound fell 3-16 of a cent, closing at $4.99 3-16.

UTILITIES POWER CASE DELAYED BY FEDERAL JUDGE

Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday indicated that he will grant a continuance until Dec. 16 of a hearing on a petition filed several days ago by attorneys for the Associated Investing corporation seeking to restrain the Atlas corporation, which holds a large interest in the Utilities Power and Light corporation, from further dealings in the debentures of the utility company.

Attorney Robert N. Golding at the hearing yesterday told the court that certain debenture holders he represents wanted the hearing continued to give factions in the involved affairs of the Utilities Power and Light corporation an opportunity to compose their differences.

Judge Holly indicated that he would grant the continuance in the hope a speedy reorganization could be had. Attorneys for the Atlas corporation are to inform him today whether they will agree to maintain the status quo until Dec. 16.

FREIGHT TRAFIC DROPS AGAIN, DUE TO THANKSGIVING

Railroad freight trafic dropped 88,624 cars last week, totaling only 558,627 cars, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. This was a decline of 13.7 per cent from the preceding week's movement, due largely to the Thanksgiving day holiday.

Loadings for the week were 121,673 cars, or 17.9 per cent, below those of the corresponding week of 1936, and were below the like week of 1935 for the second successive week.

COURT AIDS PLAN TO REORGANIZE STANDARD GAS

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Federal Judge John P. Nields of the United States District court in Wilmington, Del., presiding over the reorganization proceedings of the $900,000,000 Standard Gas and Electric company, handed down a ruling today permitting the utility to solicit acceptances of the plan of reorganization presented to the court on Nov. 24.

The judge also appointed Daniel C. Hastings, former senator of Delaware, as special trustee to litigate the $100,000,000 lawsuit against certain officers and directors of the utility, H. M. Byllesby, Standard Power and Light corporation, and others. The suit, brought by stockholders of Standard Gas and Electric, charges the defendants with corporate "abuses" to the utility.

Two Dividends Are Voted by U. S. Smelting

Directors of United States Smelting, Refining, and Mining company yesterday declared two dividends on the common stock, and several other companies voted extra payments in order to reduce federal surtaxes on undistributed earnings.

A dividend of $3 will be paid Dec. 22 on the United States Smelting stock, and another payment of $1 will be made Jan. 15, both to stockholders of record Dec. 10. Payments of $2 each were made in April, July, and October this year.

North American company declared a final dividend for the year of 70 cents on the common stock. In the three preceding quarters, the company paid dividends of 30 cents each. The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the preferred shares was also authorized.

American Gas Votes Extra.

An extra payment of 35 cents and the usual quarterly dividend of the same amount were voted by directors of American Gas and Electric company. The quarterly dividend will be paid Dec. 24 at the same time as the extra, instead of in January as usual.

Noblitt-Sparks Industries, Inc., announced an extra dividend of 50 cents on its capital stock, in addition to the usual quarterly payment of 75 cents. Directors also authorized a cash bonus to employés to be paid before Christmas.

Day's Dividend Declarations.

LOWER MARGINS CUT RESTRICTED STOCK ACCOUNTS

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The number of restricted accounts of a group of nineteen New York Stock exchange member houses on Nov. 20 dropped sharply to 15.1 per cent as a result of the reduced margin requirements which became effective in November. This was disclosed in figures given to the Securities and Exchange commission and the Federal Reserve board today.

This total compares with 39 per cent as of Oct. 26, and 47.1 per cent on Sept. 20, when the 55 per cent margins were in effect.

On Nov. 20 the same houses had a total of 57,356 accounts, of which 8,646 were restricted, while on Oct. 26 there were 48,000 accounts, of which 18,962 were unable to trade.

STOCKS SURGE AHEAD; TRADING PACE QUICKENS

Rail Fare Increase Buoys Market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 3.—Continuing the advance that started during the last hour of Thursday's session, stock market prices surged forward today, despite intermittent profit taking, to score gains of fractions to around 3 points. Gains ranging up to 6 points for individual issues appeared occasionally in the list.

Trading showed a decided improvement over recent sessions, the turnover for the day reaching 1,556,980 shares, compared with 937,180 shares in the preceding session and with 1,187,520 shares a week ago. Brokers were reported to have taken new hope as volume increased when prices worked higher and dwindled on the setbacks.

Prices Shaded Near Close.

Justification for the better tone that was evident throughout the day was found by observers in the decision of the interstate commerce commission to grant the petition of the western railroads for higher passenger fares. Although the increased revenues that such a move entails were estimated not to add greatly to earnings, Wall street opinion was reported in many quarters to have been pleased with the apparent willingness of the commission to help the roads overcome the effects of the fall in business.

Hope was expressed that the request of eastern lines for higher passenger fares will be granted, with the all-around rise in freight rates completing the job.

Industrials Lead Advance.

Industrial issues assumed leadership of the market, with steels, motors, and coppers active. United States Steel common was bid up to 59⅝ at one time, then eased to 58¼ for a net gain of 1 point. Bethlehem and Republic Steel met good support, the former adding 2⅛ and the latter a fraction. Inland Steel jumped 5 points on a few sales.

Motors found conditions more favorable for a time, but they, too, were forced to close below their best prices. Final gains for Chrysler and General Motors were only fractional, compared with earlier advances of 1 and 2 points.

New York Central and Southern Pacific assumed leadership in a firm railroad group, both moving in moderate volume to score net gains of fractions to one point. Others in this category were Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Atchison, and Union Pacific.

PURE OIL GROUP AGREES TO LET SHORTS COVER

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Underwriters for an issue of Pure Oil company 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock have agreed to make available a "reasonable" amount of the stock to satisfy existing trading contracts and relieve a technical "corner," stock exchange sources said today.

Only about 8,000 shares of an offering of 440,000 shares of the stock, made in August, were sold. The stock was traded on a when issued basis. Recent figures indicated about 3,000 shares were sold short, and inasmuch as the issue was not listed, difficulty was experienced in obtaining shares to satisfy these commitments.

STOCK VALUES DROP 4 BILLIONS IN NOVEMBER

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The total market value of all listed stocks on the New York Stock exchange on Dec. 1 was $40,716,032,190, against $44,833,215,320 on Nov. 1 and $60,019,557,197 on Dec. 1 a year ago. The average market price of listed shares on Dec. 1 was $28.92, against $31.84 on Nov. 1 and $44.26 on Dec. 1, 1936.

Collateral loans to stock exchange members by New York banks aggregated $687,786,579 at the close of business Nov. 30, a drop of $37,836,293 under the $725,622,872 a month earlier, the exchange announced today. On Nov. 30, last year, the borrowings totaled $984,004,702.

Drop Merger of Chesapeake and Alleghany

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Directors of Alleghany corporation and the Chesapeake corporation announced jointly today abandonment of a plan to consolidate. Railroad analysts said this probably would result in the eventual dissolution of Chesapeake corporation. Alleghany corporation is the top holding company of the former Van Sweringen rail system. Chesapeake corporation is its subsidiary.

Directors said the plan, dated last July 8, "had contemplated merger of the two corporations into a new company to be called the Chesapeake corporation."

A Baltimore, Md., state court disapproved the proposal previously, interpreting it as unfair to holders of preferred Alleghany stock.

May Wait to Establish Loss.

Chesapeake corporation would be in more favorable position for liquidation if a capital loss could be established, since dissolution now would involve a large capital gains tax payment for Alleghany.

Should the interstate commerce commission approve the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company's petition to purchase Alleghany's holdings of New York, Chicago & St. Louis and Erie Railroad stock at $1.35 a share—for which Alleghany paid substantially more, such a loss could be established.

Vote to Amend Bond Indenture.

Alleghany directors also announced approval of a plan to amend, with stockholders' consent, the indenture securing the corporation's 1950 bonds and providing for purchase of the bonds on the market with cash deposited under the indenture.

Nearly half of dividends totaling $13,400,000 declared by C. & O. Railway directors last month goes to Chesapeake corporation. Approximately 70 per cent of Chesapeake corporation's dividends in cash and C. & O. common stock, also declared in November, passed to Alleghany.

PONDER METHOD TO TAX LOANS OF U. S., STATES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The house ways and means subcommittee, studying the general revenue question, turned today to a discussion of either a constitutional amendment or legislation by which the federal government and states could tax one another's securities.

Representative Vinson, chairman of the subcommittee, said such a reciprocal taxing arrangement would subject about 50 billion dollars' worth of securities to federal and state revenue laws. There are $14,354,000,000 of state securities now exempt from taxation, and some $35,548,000,000 of federal securities carrying the tax-exempt clause. In addition, territories, and insular possessions have outstanding about $100,000,000 in securities.

Vinson said about all the ways and means committee could do would be to recommend consideration of the question by the house judiciary committee.

OFFICE DEVICE MAKER REPORTS LARGER PROFITS

The Addressograph-Multigraph corporation, manufacturer of office equipment, reported yesterday that for the ten months ended Oct. 31 it had a net profit of $1,663,133 before federal surtax, equal to $2.20 a share, against $1,000,617, or $1.34 a share, for the corresponding 1936 period. Net profit for October was $118,430, against $125,469 in October, 1936.

The United States Smelting and Refining company for the ten months ended Oct. 31 had a net income of $5,713,703 after interest, federal income taxes, depreciation, depletion, amortization, etc., equal after 7 per cent preferred dividend requirements to $8.22 a share, against net income of $5,055,325, or $6.97 a share, for the first ten months of 1936.

Earnings reported yesterday were:

Apartment Hotel Changes Owners in $200,000 Deal

Saul Plast, president of the Central States Hotel company and also head of the Realty Sales and Operating company, yesterday bought the seven story Midway-Drexel apartment hotel at 6020 Drexel avenue, lot 46 by 166, from the Royal Neighbors of America. The purchase was for an indicated $200,000, of which $43,000 was cash. Hugh C. Michels was broker. Landis, Landis & Landis, and Sonnenschien, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse were attorneys.

'GENTLEMEN'S PACT' ASSAILED IN GRAIN FIGHT

Board Order Lashed as Unprecedented.

In the battle between the Chicago Board of Trade and Cargill, Inc., before the Commodity Exchange administration yesterday Cargill attorneys assailed the board's "gentlemen's agreement" limiting speculative holdings and charged the board acted without precedent in ordering the Cargill Grain Company of Illinois to liquidate 1,000,000 bushels of September corn.

Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, head of commodities control board, hears testimony.

Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the Commodity Exchange administration; J. W. Bain, department of agriculture attorney, and J. H. Mehl, assistant CEA chief and chairman of the hearings, represented the commodity exchange commission.

Sale Ordered in Fear of Squeeze.

Cargill Grain, which is a subsidiary of Cargill, Inc., and a member of the Board of Trade, was ordered recently by the board's business conduct committee to dispose of the corn to avoid a threatened market "squeeze." The order to sell was based on the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" between the government and the Board of Trade, under which speculative holdings in excess of 5,000,000 bushels are forbidden.

The "gentlemen's agreement" was the target of Cargill's last attack. Irving B. Goldsmith, Cargill attorney, hammered at alleged vagueness of the agreement while questioning C. D. Sturtevant, chairman of a special Board of Trade committee.

"I want to find out if there are any rules under which I may be told how much I hold or whether I can be punished for it by the business conduct committee," Goldsmith told Chairman Mehl when asked to explain the pertinency of his questioning.

Sturtevant and others of the Board of Trade committee were unable to explain the origin of the agreement, but they said they believed it was made in 1926 between the late Charles W. Lonsdale, Kansas City grain dealer, and the then Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine.

Used as a Yardstick.

No member of the committee could recollect in what capacity Lonsdale was acting for the Chicago Board of Trade in making the agreement. Sturtevant asserted, however, that in recent years it has been used as a yardstick by the business conduct committee. Lonsdale died Nov. 11, 1930.

Official records in the secretary's office of the Board of Trade showed that Lonsdale was a member of the Chicago board from May 26, 1914, until the time of his death.

On Dec. 2, 1930, Lonsdale's membership was transferred to Fred Vincent, another partner in the Kansas City grain firm of the Simon & Shields Grain company. The official records also showed that Lonsdale never held any office in the Chicago board.

Sturtevant denied in response to direct questioning from Goldsmith that the business conduct committee had failed to invoke the gentlemen's agreement against concerns other than Cargill. He said that steps similar to the action in the Cargill incident had been taken, but he declined to give details because, he said, he "would be violating a confidence." Chairman Mehl said the commission had no power to require an explanation.

Fight Small Limits.

Sturtevant and other witnesses continued the campaign which the Board of Trade and others in the grain trade are waging to convince the government that small limits should not be placed on speculative commitments in grain futures. Government experts have suggested a limit of 2,000,000 bushels on individual speculative holdings and the Board of Trade has asked that the limit be made 5,000,000 bushels.

In a statement to the commission, Sturtevant contended that a limit of 2,000,000 bushels not only would interfere with the in-and-out floor trader who contributes to the liquidity

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A late rise of fractions to 3 points by rail liens stood out in an otherwise quiet bond market today. Lower priced carriers moved forward in active dealings following reports of increased passenger rates for railroads and the possibility of an early decision on the general freight rate boost.

Other corporate issues tended a little higher in quiet trading. U. S. Government loans tended to falter, with most losses held to 1-32 to 3-32 of a point. Among the wider gainers were Southern Railway 4s, up 3; Southern Pacific 4½s, up 2⅛; Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, up 2; Erie 5s, up 2⅜, and St. Paul 5s, up 1¼.

Chicago Stocks.

Advances outnumbered declines on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, although most price changes in either direction were small. Trading expanded moderately to 36,000 shares.

Issues which improved fractionally included Armour common, Bastian Blessing, Butler Brothers, Marshall Field, and Borg-Warner. Middle West capital stock, most active issue, finished ⅛ lower.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were mixed yesterday. First National and Northern Trust each gained $5, Chicago Title and Trust, $3, and Continental Illinois $1. Lake Shore Trust was $2 lower, and National Builders lost $5.

COTTON

Cotton futures fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday, opening lower on foreign selling, hedging pressure, and liquidation induced by the delivery of nearly 21,000 bales of spot cotton on December contracts at New York. A strong rally followed in sympathy with securities, but the best prices were not maintained. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were 0.02 cent higher to 0.01 cent lower. Other American markets finished .05 cent higher to .03 cent a lb lower.

Trading in cotton futures on the New York exchange on Dec. 2 aggregated 112,100 bales, with a total of 3,018,000 bales of uncompleted contracts in the active deliveries. Trading on the Chicago Board of Trade was 350 bales, with an open interest of 10,600 bales.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 0.03 cent higher, with New Orleans, 8.10 cents; New York, 8.08 cents; Houston, 7.80 cents, and Galveston, 7.75 cents a lb. Prices follow:

Commodities

Stimulated by a moderate renewal of industrial demand, prices of most commodities rose sharply yesterday under the leadership of hides, rubber, and metals. The upturn was one of the widest in recent weeks for several important staples.

The smelter which Thursday cut its domestic copper price one-half cent announced yesterday that the quotation had been revised upward the same amount to 10½ cents. Producers continued to quote 11 cents a pound.

Tin for immediate delivery was marked up ¾ cent to 44¼ cents a pound. In metal futures trading, copper improved 0.11 to 0.20 cent a pound and lead finished irregular.

Approximately 65,000 hides were sold in the Chicago cash market on the basis of 10 cents a pound for light cows, 9½ cents for branded cows, and 14 cents for native steers. The prices for cow hides were ½ cent above levels of recent sales. In the New York futures market hides rose 0.65 to 0.75 cent a pound.

Butter, eggs, lard, silk, cottonseed oil, and cocoa were among the other staples which advanced. Raw sugar for immediate delivery was 0.05 cent a pound higher at 3.35 cents a pound. Sugar futures were mixed and coffee was a bit lower.

WHEAT FIRMER; ESTIMATES CUT ARGENTINE CROP

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

| | Yesterday. | Thursday. | Yr. ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | $ .92⅝ | $ .92⅝ | $1.20⅝ |
| Corn | .56¾ | .56⅛ | 1.02¾ |
| Oats | .30¼ | .30⅛ | .46¼ |
| Rye | .69 | .68¾ | .95½ |
| Soy beans | .95⅝ | .95⅝ | 1.35¼ |

Wheat prices advanced sharply in the early trading yesterday as the result of estimates reducing the new Argentine crop to about 194,000,000 bushels from 250,000,000 bushels harvested in 1936. The estimate forecast the smallest crop since 1929, with the exception of 1935.

December wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade led the upturn, touching 96⅝ cents at the top, or 2¼ cents above Thursday's close, and selling at the highest level since Nov. 1. Liberal profit taking developed in all markets on the advance and closing trades were around the low figures of the day, except on the December contract on the Chicago board. That delivery finished at 95 cents for a net gain of ⅞ cent, but the May contract was unchanged and the July option was ½ cent a bushel lower.

December Wheat at Premium.

At the close December wheat was at a premium of about 2½ cents a bushel over the May delivery, compared with a premium of only ¼ cent on Tuesday.

There was some talk on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday of a concentrated holding in December wheat. No deliveries of cash wheat on December contracts have been made in the local market so far this month. Cash interests bought the December delivery and sold the May contract yesterday, presumably changing over hedges into the distant future on grain that is not in a position to be delivered on future contracts.

Part of the weakness in the December delivery at Winnipeg was attributed to larger offerings of cash grain by farmers, although there was some selling of the future in the Canadian market against purchases in Chicago.

Wheat Export Sales Moderate.

Only moderate sales of North American cash wheat were reported to have been made for export yesterday.

Corn and other grains followed the action of wheat, although the former developed considerable strength at times as the result of reports indicating an active foreign demand. Sales of 500,000 bushels of corn were reported.

Closing trades on corn futures were at gains of ⅝ to ¾ cent a bushel. As a result of the advance, Illinois farmers sold cash grain more freely, as 44 to 45 cents a bushel was obtainable at country loading stations. Price changes in oats, rye, and soy beans were largely confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel. About 92,000 bushels of soy beans were delivered on December contracts.

LIGHTER SWINE ADVANCE; OTHER KINDS VARIABLE

A sharp rise in the market for underweight hogs, which were scarce yesterday, carried the top price up 25 cents to $8.75, highest since Nov. 16. This price was paid for 165 pound averages.

Stock weighing 210 pounds down was in broad demand at 15 to 25 cent higher prices, but after a strong to 10 cent higher opening on hogs above this weight the market for butchers sagged back to the preceding day's levels, losing all of the early gains.

A stronger undercurrent developed for slaughter lambs yesterday, with prices largely in line with the best time of Thursday and as much as 10 to 15 cents above the low spot that day.

The majority of the steers and yearlings on the market consisted of stock carried since earlier in the week. Offerings met the usual slow Friday clearance at steady to weak prices.

URGE MORTGAGE FIRMS BE FREED OF SURPLUS TAX

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Officials of the National Association of Real Estate boards declared today that President Roosevelt's proposals to stimulate private home building should be accompanied by repeal of the tax on undistributed surpluses of mortgage corporations. Edward A. MacDougall, New York, chairman of the association's finance committee, told the senate banking committee that the undistributed profits tax handicapped mortgage associations which must build up reserves. He urged also that debentures to provide funds for the housing program be made tax exempt.

MacDougall said there could be no large scale housing construction in larger cities under the $1,200 a room limit placed on costs by the pending Wagner bill. He suggested a $1,600 limitation or some flexible provision.

Before the house banking committee, Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve board chairman, contended 5 per cent was the lowest interest a home owner should pay.

House Committee Named to Probe Sales of Autos

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A subcommittee was named today by the house interstate and foreign commerce committee to study a proposal to investigate automobile distribution. Hearings will be held on a resolution introduced by Representative Withrow [P., Wis.], demanding an inquiry by the federal trade commission. The measure charged unfair and unethical practices by manufacturers to compel retailers to "force the market." The subcommittee is headed by Representative Crosser [D., O.].

United Biscuit.

Investors' Guide: Please give me some information and your opinion on United Biscuit common stock.—S. M. T.

Answer: The United Biscuit Company of America is one of the three largest manufacturers of biscuits, crackers, and cookies in this country. Although operating mainly in the middle west and east, it obtains national distribution for bulk and package products sold under the label "Supreme Bakers" and under trade names of subsidiaries, which include the Sawyer Biscuit company.

Fifteen bakeries and 40 warehouses are operated in various parts of the country, and one subsidiary manufactures cartons used by the company.

A purveyor of food, the company continued on a profitable basis throughout the depression. Because of the semi-luxury nature of its products, particularly more profitable items, however, sales and profits were sharply reduced.

Sales recovered from less than $15,000,000 annually in 1932 and 1933 to more than $20,000,000 in 1935 and 1936, but profits have been restricted by inability to increase prices enough to cover increases in costs. Price-cost ratios were comparatively favorable in 1933 and 1936, but higher costs have cut into earnings again this year.

Net income was $794,000 or $1.59 per common share in the first 9 months of 1937, compared with $1,017,000, or $2.07, in the first nine months of 1936.

For all of 1936, net income was $1,181,000 or $2.39 a share, compared with $895,000 or $1.75 in 1935, $950,000 or $1.86 in 1934, $1,015,000 or $2.03 in 1933, and $908,000 or $1.79 in 1932. The company experienced its best year in 1929 when net income was $2,254,000 or $4.39 a share.

Financial position is good, current assets being $4,074,000 and current liabilities being $1,103,000 on Dec. 31, 1936. Funded debt consists of $4,700,000 of 5 per cent debentures.

There are 459,054 shares of no par common and 10,998 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred stock, giving effect to the recent call of 1,200 preferred shares for redemption Jan. 15.

Dividends of 40 cents quarterly have been paid on the common stock since June 1, 1933. This is the same rate as that from 1928 to 1931, when the rate was boosted to 50 cents for nine quarters.

The common deserves a fairly good rating. The preferred is rather high grade. The debentures are reasonably sound.

Board Order Lashed as Unprecedented.

of the market, but would hamper the flow of grain to big processors and interfere with export transactions.

George A. Koehl, for twenty-six years a member of the Board of Trade, expressed the opinion that any restrictions placed on the in-and-out floor trader would hamper liquidity of the market.

W. E. Campbell, for 27 years a farmer near Lakota, N. D., and now an independent grain trader, asked the commission to place no limits on speculative trading other than to "make the sky the limit."

Alfred W. Mansfield, general partner in Thomson-McKinnon, Chicago commission firm, disclosed that the National Biscuit company often has open futures commitments in excess of 5,000,000 bushels of grain in connection with its hedging operations. He said that the figure includes commitments in anticipation of future hedging requirements.

Opposes "Tinkering."

Richard Uhlmann, secretary of the Uhlmann Grain company, Chicago, appealed to the commission not to "tinker with the mechanism" of the nation's grain marketing machinery. He also asked that the commission take note of the difference between "spreaders and criminals" when limiting speculative grain holdings.

In response to direct questioning from Chairman Mehl, Uhlmann said he believed that a 5,000,000 bushel limit on speculative commitments would eliminate abuses and still permit most traders to function. A 2,000,000 bushel limit is too small, he contended.

Hearings will be resumed today on proposals to extend to ten days the period between final delivery date and the end of trading in an expiring grain future.

Everyday Economics

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

"Hot" Money.

"Hot" money is a term used to describe funds which have been temporarily transferred from one nation to another by holders who have been frightened into making such transfers because of the possibility of harmful political action affecting money in the nation from which the funds were shipped.

Such money is "hot" because it is volatile. It doesn't stay put. In normal times investors in one nation transfer large amounts of their capital to other nations by purchasing stocks, bonds, real estate, and other property in those nations. They do this because of the attractive investment opportunities offered and most of them plan to keep their expatriated money invested in this manner for a long time. This type of investment over international frontiers is not "hot" money because it isn't ordinarily subject to quick removal.

In recent years, however, individuals and corporations in European countries have been shipping to the United States hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of cash for temporary refuge with the definite idea of taking it back home as soon as the crises which caused the flight of this capital shall have passed. Such money is "hot" because it may move at any time.

"You get big value," says J.L.

"More people would smoke cigars," said J.L., "if good cigars weren't so expensive. Let's put a Heart of Havana in every Harvester and price it at a nickel. That's a price the man in the street can afford to pay." So we did, and you get the biggest nickel's worth on the cigar counter. Buy a Harvester, the five-cent cigar with a Heart of Havana, and you'll get big value. (Don't forget the name Harvester.)

West Virginia Pulp-Paper Bonds to Bear 4½ Per Cent

An amendment filed yesterday to the registration statement of the $10,000,000 West Virginia Pulp and Paper company first mortgage bonds disclosed that the bonds will carry 4½ per cent coupon, and will be redeemable for sinking fund purposes at 102 to Dec. 1, 1940, and at declining prices thereafter. It is expected the offering will be made publicly on Dec. 8.

SETS RECORD ON 1,170 MILE FLIGHT—Jacqueline Cochran of New York as she arrived at All-American air races in Miami in 4 hours 12 minutes and 28 seconds after leaving New York. The previous record of 5 hours 1 minute was held by the late Jimmy Weddell. (Story on page 1.)

WIFE SEES SPEED FLYER KILLED—Rudy Kling of Lemont, Ill., with his wife as he received trophy at Cleveland races last fall. Yesterday in Miami, Fla., Mrs. Kling was a witness when her husband and another flyer, Frank Haines of Detroit, were killed at All-American races.

ICE AND SNOW IN CALIFORNIA, BUT ONLY FOR UNIQUE CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS—This is the home of George Skinner at 919 South Matthew street, Los Angeles, all decorated for Christmas as a hobby. The icicle clad, snow banked bungalow attracts many visitors. Skinner made the ice in his refrigerator and then crushed it. The snow is the studio variety, corn flakes and cotton batting. Chimes sound when the door bell is rung. (Story on page 6.)

TRY TO EXTRICATE BODY OF ILLINOIS FLYER KILLED AT MIAMI—Miami airport attendants at the wreckage of the plane of Rudy Kling of Lemont after fatal mishap yesterday. Kling's tiny racing plane crashed while rounding a pylon. The same down draft of air current apparently caught the plane of Frank Haines of Detroit, for it crashed a second later and he, too, was killed. (Story on page 1.)

CHINESE FLYER MAKES DIRECT HIT ON JAPANESE TRAIN ON NORTHERN FRONT—Japanese engineers inspecting locomotive on Peiping-Hankow line after it plunged through trestle when Chinese air bomb struck it and exploded. Fighting progresses in the northern provinces of China, but most attention is centered on Shanghai and Nanking in the south. The Japanese evacuated a portion of the foreign area in Shanghai yesterday after vigorous protest from United States marines.
